COUNCIL TAKES FIGHTING STAND

'Seven-Four' Council Plan Appealed To Supreme Court By Va. Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH — The City Council of the City of Virginia Beach would rather fight than switch to any other form of apportionment. That is the word from the City Manager's office.

Less than 24 hours after learning that the U. S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals had reversed Judge Walter Hoffman's lower court decision upholding the so-called "seven-four" plan of electing councilmen, City Council took a stand and released its feelings through House-

Hatchett noting that an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States would be made.

On Monday the appeals court, in a unanimous decision written by Judge Albert V. Bryan, called the recently adopted seven-four plan unconstitutional, on grounds that it violates the "one man, one vote" doctrine laid down by the U. S. Supreme Court.

In the opinion, however, the appeals court noted that the reasons behind the plan were "understandable," but added that "reasons of this kind may not be counted in a ruling on the constitutionality of an apportionment."

The one man, one vote doctrine, simply stated, says that each legislative state or municipal must represent a like number in population.

The seven-four plan was drawn and adopted for the purpose of guaranteeing representation to the "major" population boroughs, which are basically rural and agricultural in nature. The plan took into consideration the diversity of interests in Virginia Beach and wrote in rules which would give all areas a voice in government. This was recognized by Judge Hoffman in his ruling and by the appeals court, even though the appeals court was compelled to follow what the plan in the primary," he said. The court did not believe that the U. S. Supreme Court.

"Just exactly what the Supreme Court means remains to be seen," said one city official after the appeal was noted. "I thought we had proved the validity of the seven-four plan in the primary," he said. The court did not believe that the U. S. Supreme Court.

59 Per Cent Increase In B-T Traffic

VIRGINIA BEACH — In a report issued earlier this week, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel showed a 59 per cent gain in traffic in 1955 over the traffic totals for 1954. Little Creek-Kiptopeke ferry in 1953.

In 1953, the ferry had a total of 731,215 automobiles, trucks, busses and miscellaneous vehicles. The Bridge-Tunnel had a total of 1,137,322 cars, trucks and busses cross it in 1955, an increase of 433,437 vehicles.

In the period between 1953 and 1955 cars increased by 335,735 or 74.5 per cent; trucks increased by 24,381 or 13.9 per cent; and busses increased by 6,937 or 40 per cent. (Miscellaneous vehicles, such as railroad cars, wagons and the like decreased 100 per cent over the period.)

The total revenue taken is increased by 50.1 per cent over this

Water Lines In Kemps.

VIRGINIA BEACH — By early next spring, if all goes according to plan, areas of Virginia Beach now without city water facilities, will be connected to new water lines, according to an announcement made by City Manager W. Russell Hatchett Tuesday.

Bids for the project go out this month and Council will act on those bids at the end of the month for water projects in Kempsville, including the Providence Road and Acredele areas.

There had been some doubt that the bids would be advertised at this time since it is unknown whether federal aid funds will be available. Hatchett removed that barrier in his statement.

The City Manager also released plans to appeal for additional federal funds for water lines leading to City Hall at Princess Anne and to the growing area of Sandbridge, although no date, tentative or otherwise was discussed.

The text of Hatchett's statement is, as follows:

"I have today conferred with Malcolm Pirnie, consulting engineers, and am advised that the engineering is complete on some 48,300 lineal feet of transmission line leading from Virginia Beach Boulevard to serve the Kempsville area, including the Providence Road and Acredele areas. We expect to advertise next week for bids on this project to be opened Thursday, June 23rd, and give to Council for its consideration at its regular meeting to be held Monday, June 27th. If the bids are proper and in line with the estimates of the engineers, I shall recommend to the Council that those submitting the low bids be awarded the contracts immediately whether federal funds are available for this project or not. It is anticipated it will take two hundred days to complete this project.

We are centering our attention in the acquisition of Federal aid for the transmission leading to City Hall at the Princess Anne Station and Sandbridge, with a circuit tying into the lines coming from South Virginia Beach Borough."

The Tidewater Navy Skydivers then took to the air for their daring performance in freefall flight. Pulling the ripcords late in their fall, the skydivers presented colorful and exciting entertainment for the crowd on hand.

At 2 p.m. the Blue Angels performed their series of aerobatics over Oceana's seven miles of runways.

Prior to the weekend, officials at Oceana said they were expecting close to 50,000 persons to attend the air show, but the crowd fell way below their expectations. Last year's August 8 show drew more than 30,000 on a poor date.

Officials at the base were hoping that the opening of the beaches on May 30 would produce an even larger crowd, but the inclement weather formed many people to stay at home.

Besides keeping people away from the show, the weather, with its low cloud ceiling, prevented the

Bids Called For

VIRGINIA BEACH — Under the provisions of bond revenue legislation passed in recent meetings of Virginia Beach City Council, sealed bids are being called for on certain projects.

The projects include the $2 million water and sewerage series of 1965. The bids will be received on June 8, 1966. At that time City Council will be meeting in special session for the purpose of receiving the bids and taking prompt action on them.

Bidders must use the regular bid form, which together with financial information for bidders, may be obtained from J. C. Wheat, Inc., 84 E. Main Street, Richmond, Virginia.

Thieves Take Saddles

VIRGINIA BEACH — Playland Park on Salem road has been open only for a few days, but already it has become the victim of thieves, according to a report made to police by Hazel R. Noreck, one of the operators of the park.

Eleven saddles valued at $1,550 disappeared from an equipment room over a two week period.

Candidates To Speak At PAHS

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Rev. Clayton E. Grigger, of St. Francis Mission, said Tuesday morning that all city council candidates have accepted an invitation to participate in an open forum June 6 at the Princess Anne High School auditorium.

Grigger said "This is our opportunity to become informed about issues facing our city and how the candidates expect to meet the challenge."

Grigger and the Rev. Leonard R. Graves, Jr., of Emmanuel Episcopal Church, sent a letter to each of the clergymen in Virginia Beach urging them to inform their congregations "about the forum and its purpose. 'Our participation is a necessity if we are to be responsible and informed citizens,' they said. 'Our city,' they added, 'has a great future and tremendous potential which will only be realized if we, the citizens, put forth the efforts necessary to meet the challenge and opportunity that is ours.'"

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. Monday night.

There will also be a second forum June 8 at 8 p.m. at the Seacoast Community Center on South Birdneck Road. This "non-partisan candidates' meeting" is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Council on Human Relations.

The Seacoast meeting will consist of a 5 minute talk by each candidate and an hour question-and-answer period following the candidates' talks.

An informal reception is planned for the candidates following the meeting.

There will also be a meeting of

'First Representatives' Reveal Council Platform

VIRGINIA BEACH — Five Virginia Beach City Council candidates, known as the "First Representatives" candidates took advantage of a large crowd at the Cavalier Hotel last week for the 500th for Senate banquet. While the banquet was going on inside, workers for the group placed campaign literature under the windshield wipers of nearly every automobile parked outside.

The literature included background information on the five candidates and the platform of the group.

The stated platform pledged support for what it called the elimination of "one-man" rule in Virginia Beach, voting machines in heavily populated areas, a Civil Service Commission under which non-elected City employees would work and the highest quality educational opportunities for all.

Also included in the platform were pledges of support of new conflict-of-interest laws, increased activity by the Virginia Beach Industrial Commission, expansion of the City's Library system, new building and developing ordinances, expansion of recreational facilities and improved fire protection.

One plank in the platform called for the creation of a City Planning Commission "which will carefully weigh all zoning applications honestly and with consideration only for the needs and best interests of the residents and property owners in the area involved rather than for the selfish economic interests of the few."

The platform did not say that Virginia Beach's present planning commission had any such deficiencies and did not elaborate on the meaning of the vague platform plank. Several parts of the platform were identical to that of the Organization, which was released earlier.

Woman, 71 Dies Mon.

VIRGINIA BEACH — An elderly woman was struck and killed by a car Monday evening as she attempted to cross Atlantic Avenue at 82nd Street.

Mrs. Alice B. Towles, 71, of the 200 block of 82nd Street was fatally injured when she was struck by a car at 8:30 p.m. Monday, police said.

The driver of the car, William E. Byrd, Jr., 19, Monday, has been charged with manslaughter, according to police. He resides in the 7300 block of Ingleside Road, Norfolk.

Investigating officers said Mrs. Towles was pronounced dead on arrival at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach. She reportedly received head injuries in the accident.

Police said Byrd's speed was estimated at about 25 m.p.h., below the 35 m.p.h. limit, and that section of the avenue and that Byrd claimed he saw the woman crossing the road and tried to stop.

According to police, the woman, at the time of the accident, had crossed three of the four lanes, going from east to west, and was struck by Byrd's southbound car in the cross lanes.

Mrs. Towles was the third politician fatality of the year in Virginia Beach and the eighth traffic death.

A native of Petersburg, Mrs. Towles has been a summer resident of Virginia Beach since 1959. She is a winter resident of Chantlottesville.

She is survived by a brother, Robert Lee Byrd of Long Beach, Miss.

Register To Vote

The General Registrar of the City of Virginia Beach will be at the Ocean Park Fire Department on Shore Drive from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. tonight to register voters for the July Democratic Primary.

THE BOARDWALK WAS DESERTED Monday as if it was in the dead of winter. The temperature, which ranged in the middle 60's and the winds, which blew very hard, made it seem like fall in Virginia Beach. Despite all this, the tourist trade started briskly. (Staff photo by Moore)

Pocahontas Village GC Installation

VIRGINIA BEACH - New officers of the Pocahontas Village Garden Club were installed with impressive ceremony on May 14 at the White Heron Motor Lodge. Installation officer was Mrs. S. G. Ireland, national accredited judge.

The ladies who will serve for the coming year are Mrs. J. E. Davis, president; Mrs. A. Johnson, first vice president; Mrs. J. T. Godwin, second vice president; Mrs. D. V. Barrios, recording secretary; Mrs. O. J. Fortin, treasurer; and Mrs. G. J. Kendall, historian.

A short business meeting was held. Mrs. Kendall read the past year's history which was well received. Mrs. Davis was awarded the Sweepstakes award for her thirteen blue ribbons in the artistic class, and Mrs. Kishbaugh won for her horticulture entries.

For the installation ceremony, Mrs. Ireland read the duties for each office as a colored candle, symbolizing each office, was lighted. Then heads bowed while she gave the prayer.

As a surprise, each new officer was presented with a gold nail adorned with her color flower, and the president received a gold hammer, symbolizing the hammer and nails must work together to build.

VIRGINIA BEACH - A much needed service business has been opened recently in the Virginia Beach Borough at 234-17th Street - Benny's Venetian Blind Service. It offers twenty-four hour delivery on renovating Venetian blinds.

Self Service Post Office

VIRGINIA BEACH - Virginia Beach will be provided with 24-hour a day, 233 days a year basic postal service with the installation of a self-service postal unit in the Pen-Brook Shopping Center, Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite, Jr., announced recently.

"Postmaster General Lawrence F. O'Brien has authorized installation of the unit, in line with President Johnson's mandate that the quality of Federal services to the public be improved," Postmaster Crosswhite said. "The innovation will supplement present postal operations by offering the most asked for services around the clock. It is one of 100 similar operations to be opened around the country within the next nine months."

The 13' x 13' self-service unit will stand on an island in the parking area of the shopping center. In addition to mail boxes with snorkles for drive-up mailing, there will be vending machines for stamps, postal cards, envelopes and minimum package insurance. Letter and parcel scales, bill and coin changers, postal information placards and a direct-line telephone to the post office for 24-hour information service will be available. A specially designed depository will accept parcels.

Four experimental models, in Canoga Park and Buena Park, California; Atlanta, Georgia; and Whalesen, Maryland, underwent an extensive program of testing to develop the most useful type of self-service operation. By carefully evaluating test results, a composite unit was designed by post office engineers using the most suitable equipment and construction.

In recent surveys taken at the experimental models set up in suburban Washington, D. C. and suburban Los Angeles, California more than 90 per cent of the people in the nearby areas praised the improved service. Postmaster J. T. Crosswhite, Jr., reported.

The red, white and blue unit reflects contemporary styling with emphasis on a wide, overhanging, fully-lighted canopy as protection against rain and snow. The entire unit is protected with modern alarm devices.

Postmaster Crosswhite emphasized that the self-service operations do not replace regular post office functions. They will help reduce crowding in lobbies of nearby post offices and shorten waiting periods for services. This will mean greater efficiency, which is a necessity with mail volume rising at a record-breaking annual rate of more than five per cent.

New Service Offered

The company also repairs and rents lawn mowers.

Benny is associated with Ernie's Household Shopping Center located next door which features everything for the household. Ernie is a well known locksmith.

Benjamin Carl Forsman retired from local business, consisting of a restaurant and real estate, due to ill health.

He is well known in church and civic activities, having resided in Princess Anne County, now the City of Virginia Beach, most of his life. London Bridge is where he has lived for the past thirty years.

Mr. Forsman has been extremely active in church work at the London Bridge Baptist Church, and was instrumental in helping to build the present new church. "Bennie" as he is known to his friends, had been secretary and treasurer of the Sunday School department for nine and one-half years, active with the Junior and Adult Choir and other church activities.

He is a veteran of the United States Navy, and has retired from the U. S. Civil Service after twenty years of service.

He was one of the founders and charter members of the Princess Anne Junior Chamber of Commerce, and is a charter member of the London Bridge Volunteer Fire Department.

Bennie has also been active as a member of the Moose Lodge of Norfolk.

He has served as a delegate representing Princess Anne County at the Legislature in Richmond concerning the Princess Anne and Norfolk Association Proceedings, and was a long and active supporter in county and local government, political, civic and charitable affairs.

Friday night was the official opening of the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club for the season. The official opening of the Cavalier Beach and Cabana Club for the season was celebrated Friday night with a shrimp and beer buffet.

They say a bad beginning is a sign for a good ending. In this case the ending should be tops. You might know the rain took over Friday night, and for a while it looked as though the night was going to be a complete failure, but as the night went on the people started coming.

Mrs. Rosalind Westgate will be the new social director this year for the Cavalier. She is quite charming and I feel that the club members can look forward to a wonderful season under the supervision of a person so capable.

Some of those attending the buffet were: Mr. & Mrs. M. F. Camp, Mr. & Mrs. R. H. Denton, Norman Arrington, Mr. & Mrs. Joe Lagolia, Col. & Mrs. Gerald Heister, Mrs. Yvonne Duffley, W. H. Bryant, and P. C. Hartman.

"COME BACK AT ANY TIME," invites City Manager Russell Hachett after the Virginia Beach units of the League of Women Voters had attended a meeting of City Council last week and later toured City Hall. Anyone there you recognize?

Stop, Look & Listen Tour

VIRGINIA BEACH—As a child we were fascinated by the antics and shenanigans of one of our favorite aunts, Virginia—dubbed "Jinx," who had the colossal nerve to join the Rights for Women Voters in 1917. She lived in Washington, and (to her delight) was actually jailed for marching down Pennsylvania Avenue waving a banner bearing the words "I am a Suffragette."

Pioneers like "Aunt Jinx" are partly responsible for women today who feel they are definitely capable of being informed and of having a say-so in government on the local, state and national level.

The Virginia Beach League of Women Voters recently descended on the Virginia Beach City Council meeting to observe, to ask questions and to influence people to vote in the coming councilmanic election, which incidentally has women in the race, for the first time at Virginia Beach.

City Treasurer V. A. (Jack) Etheridge was host to the tour for the League, and after sitting in the Council meeting, where their only complaint was the bad acoustics in the room, they were presented to Ann Cotton, the city voting registrar who explained where people could register to vote in all primary and secondary elections and who answered many questions about Virginia's voting laws.

Etheridge introduced City Sergeant John Marr who has a definite mind of his own when it came to the "molly-coddling" of teachers, police, firemen, and other recreational forms when they are being punished in a short-term sentence. Denying a child what he wants is the best possible punishment," he said. Some ladies did not agree.

Ivan Mard, Virginia Beach's Commissioner of Revenue, spent two hours introducing the League, approximately 45, to a tour of the city jail, the tax administration building and the city planning offices. Each department head gave an explanation of each working group. Mason Griggs spoke of the great problems of any city growing as fast as Virginia Beach, and explained, with maps, the City's plans for future growth.

We saw deeds and wills of plats of land dating back to the '70s, all written in a fine old-English handwriting (some translation was necessary). The City Hall in Princess Anne is historic in a quiet dignified setting.

The League of Women Voters of Virginia Beach had toured the sacred precincts of the city fathers who took time and effort and gave true Southern hospitality to them on a busy Monday morning.

VIRGINIA BEACH—Miss Margaret Holt Coleman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Herbert of Virginia Beach, will graduate June 6 from Mount Vernon Junior College in Washington, D.C. She was a 1964 graduate of the Country Day School for Girls.

She was presented with the Drama Cup, the French Award, was one of four students to win the Citizenship Award which is voted upon by the students and approved by the faculty and administration, and she was the first one to receive the Citizenship Cup Award which had not been given since 1963 and which is presented to the most outstanding student.

Miss Coleman plans to make a trip on June 22 on the Queen Elizabeth to spend the summer abroad with college friends, visiting the heart of Europe, Scandinavia and Berlin.

Upon her return, she will enter Hollins College as a junior.

She laughingly calls herself the "janitor," but it is evident that she enjoys every facet of home-town show business. She could not be called an amateur in the "business," however, as she served as a professional when traveling for the Bert Claster productions, and she was "Miss Anne" of the TV show "Ripper Room" a few years back.

Anne enjoys Little Theatre work as a hobby while her real professional life is devoted to the education of local children. She has been a seventh grade teacher of math and science and W. T. Cooke school for many years, and when the fall term begins in September she will be found at the newest elementary school at Alantown. She revealed that the school sits on what was once a part of her grandfather's farm, and she finds it funny to think that she may be teaching at a spot which was once "Gran's pea patch."

She is the wife of Bob Henry who is a postal supervisor, and they have two children, Leah who is a rising college sophomore, and Bill who will also be a sophomore next year, but in high school. They live happily together on 27th street with the family dog named "Gili."

As well as taking on the presidency of the Virginia Beach Little Theatre, Mrs. Henry keeps up to date on education by serving as the Recording Secretary of District 1, Chesapeake Teachers. She earned her Masters degree at Longwood College.

The final production of this year's season of plays by VBLT will open Friday night, June 3, with "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" and is said to be the "funniest play" ever produced by the local group. Those to be seen in the cast are Gary Jones, "Anne, Phenomenon," George Martin, Angela Walker, Tim Everly, Bob Walmsright, Bob Funnis, Sandy Hastie, and Lou Goodwin.

Directed by Geo. Williams, it will run June 3, 4, 5, 10, and 11. The box office will be open on the date of performances from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 6 p.m. until curtain time 8:30 p.m. Phone number is 428-8382.

The Courtyard Playhouse is on 17th street, between Atlantic and Pacific avenues.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

The City Council Election

Regardless of any future action in the courts, there will be a City Council election in Virginia Beach on June 14. We have been and still are in complete sympathy with the seven-four representation plan passed by the present Council and the Virginia General Assembly, then called valid by the U. S. District Court. We still consider it an equitable and sound plan, no matter what the Appeals Court says.

Actually there is little difference in the opinion of the lower court and the decision of the appeals court. The lower court took into consideration the peculiar problems of the boroughs of Virginia Beach and stated that while the seven-four plan did not follow the mandate of one-man one-vote to the letter, it was a good plan. The judge also said he did not believe the deviation was serious enough to call the plan unconstitutional. Now the appeals court has said it understands the sound reasoning behind the seven-four plan, but that it is unconstitutional because it does not follow the one-man, one-vote mandate to the letter. But at least the appeals court did not wish to cause any further hardship upon Virginia Beach and has allowed the June election to proceed. Now the Supreme Court of the United States must decide.

We, therefore, endorse and support the eleven organization candidates for City Council. Without exception they are excellent leaders, worthy and well-qualified to govern our growing city. Although four members of the ticket are newcomers, they are not newcomers to positions of leadership, particularly in civic affairs. The Organization has been conducting a good campaign on a precinct level, meeting and talking with individual voters and talking with small groups.

The members of the Organization ticket have been willing to discuss all the issues with anyone, and they have done a fine job of doing just that.

Seven members of the ticket have proven records in municipal matters. They have done an excellent job in governing our city in its fledgling years. They know the problems and objectives and deserve to be reelected. We, therefore, support for reelection the following candidates: Lawrence Marshall, Bayside; Kenneth Whitehurst, Pungo; S. Paul Brown, Princess Anne; Earl Tebault Blackwater; John McCombs, Virginia Beach; Al Bonney, Kempsville; and Frank Dusch, at-large.

Murray Malbon, Robert Cromwell and George Ferrell, all running at-large, are well known in Virginia Beach. Ferrell has been Chairman of the School Board, a most responsible job. Cromwell has served on the bench in Virginia Beach and Malbon, has long been a highly respected businessman in our city. The other newcomer, G. Dewey Simmons, Jr., running for the Lynn-haven resident seat has long been a behind the scenes worker in civic projects and is a well-known real estate man. We highly endorse the election of these four men also.

The Organization has picked eminently qualified men to hold such high public office and the voters of Virginia Beach should respect the fine record of the Organization in the past, as well as its future objectives, and elect on June 14 the eleven Organization candidates to the City Council of Virginia Beach.

This Is Dairy Month ... Again

June 1966 marks the 30th time that this month has been designated "Dairy Month." And finally the dairy specialists have come through with the reasons June has been chosen and not some other month.

The first is the abundance of milk at this time of the year. Cows are feeding on the lush green pastures and their production is normally quite high at this time. And we are told that the milk they produce on pasture is a little bit better, although we have never noticed. Seems it has something to do with a little more Vitamin A and carotin, whatever that is.

The second reason is probably more important. Milk needs promotion in June, since, for some unknown reason, the consumption of milk drops off considerably in June. According to the experts, by the way, Virginians are NOT consuming the amount of milk they need. Take warning.

Thirdly, milk and milk products are ideal for summer eating. A glass of milk is quite refreshing on hot summer days.

So June is Dairy month, and since one of the largest dairy producers in the area is in Virginia Beach and an important part of our economy, we urge you to help celebrate Dairy Month this June.

NICE WRAPPINGS

Commencement Time In Virginia Beach

For those who may not be aware of the growth of Virginia Beach one statistic may bring them to reality. Before this week is out, more than 1700 stu-

Time Is Drawing Short

Just a few more days remain for registering to vote in the July 12 Democratic primary. The books will close on June 12, and anyone not registered by that time is simply out of luck.

We wish to commend the council candidates and several civic organizations for their efforts in getting new residents of Virginia Beach and established residents who have never voted before registered to vote. They have done their job well. Although there is still no official tabulation, it is expected that more people will be registered to vote by June 12 than ever before in the history of Virginia Beach. Now only one more public-spirited thing remains to be done. Those same record-breaking numbers must show up at the polls.

We can think of no better way to exercise one of our basic freedoms than to get out and vote. For that one must be registered. With the removal of poll tax requirements, the process is simpler than ever before and less expensive. There is no reason for anyone who qualifies not being registered to vote.

The registrars have made themselves available extra hours, including nights, and have made their locations generally known. That is all they can do. The rest is up to the individual citizen.

We consider the July Democratic primary an extremely important election, since both U. S. Senators will be nominated by the Democratic Party. As many people as possible must be registered to vote and then they must vote.

Remember the deadline is now only a few days away. If you have not registered, please, out of respect for yourselves and your part in the governing of our country, do so.

dents of Virginia Beach high schools will graduate. That figure represents just about three times the number who graduated ten years ago. And by next year the number will be even greater, with a graduating class from still another high school.

Graduation time to the student is certainly an exciting time. It brings about the end of one era and the beginning of another. Many will go on to college to prepare themselves for the complex world of today. Some will go immediately into the business world. Others will become homemakers immediately and a few will enter the armed forces of our country. Wherever they go and whatever they do, they take with them a prized possession — a high school diploma.

We only hope they are able to attend college if they wish. Colleges today are so badly overcrowded and getting worse. We only hope they can find jobs, if they wish to work now, since competition is keener today than ever before. We only hope they can fight for our country if they must and become the leaders of tomorrow who can lead us out of the tensions the world knows today.

These graduates of this week are our hope for tomorrow. They can no longer be the carefree teenagers they were last week. Now they must take on the great responsibilities of being high school graduates.

We congratulate them on their commencement day and wish them the best of everything as they commence their new lives.

And we note with regret that the Class of '66 will be the last of Virginia Beach High School, but we note with pride that the class of '67 will be the first class in the brand new building to be known as Oceana High School. Whatever the name, we welcome it to Virginia Beach.

Gull's-Eye View

BY N. S. CROW

The way rumors have been flying lately, I decided to do a little flying too. I let the security of my perch on Pacific Avenue and set a course for City Hall at Princess Anne.

Actually I went there to do a little investigating, and I needed a bird's eye view. A fellow by the name of Etheridge, the City Treasurer, I think, and the Virginia Beach campaign manager for a fellow by the name of Spog from Portsmouth, I was told had been quoted in a Norfolk paper as saying that other city departments were trying to hire his office workers away from him, for some reason or another. We asked all the City Hall bird population and could find absolutely no evidence of this. They seemed to think it could be another "phantom in the sky."

This same Etheridge though did have some trouble with some of the employees in his office. That I am certain of. I made a stop in a deserted office and had plenty of time to read signed statements written by folks who had recently quit their jobs in the Treasurer's office. They quit because they had been told by influential persons in the Treasurer's office they would have to be fired, after not taking part in Spog rallies as told to do, according to the statements. They say they were even told how to dress for the rallies they did not attend. That really ruffled my tail feathers. The employees were questioned about their loyalties and about bumper stickers after they did not show up at the political get-togethers, the statements say. Imagine that. They said they did not feel they should be subjected to that kind of pressure, so they resigned.

Now, there's something new... intrigue right in a city office. While we were there, we buzzed the Treasurer's office from several different attitudes, and were able to pick up some other most interesting tidbits of information too.

One of those tidbits was really fascinating, and we would like to ask Mr. "prospective administrative assistant" Etheridge about a rumor we heard. Did he really pass around a petition in his office after those folks resigned? And if so, didn't that petition say that no one in the Treasurer's office was being pressured in any way to work for Spog? And did all of his employees sign that petition, if there was one? I sure would like some straight answers to those questions. You hear so many things these days. I just want to know the truth.

You know this senatorial campaign is really interesting in Virginia Beach. It is rising to a fever pitch. Perhaps Mr. Etheridge should go duck hunting for a day or so. It might relax him considerably. But come to think of it, I hope he can tell a duck from a crow. I wouldn't want to lose any relatives in this campaign.

Well, I must fly. Look for me in the most unlikely places. I'll be there, until we meet right here again next week.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Dear Sir:

Once again the public is being condemned by the press because of our lack of respect for the flag in last week's Armed Forces Day parade. Believe me, it is not really on our part—it is confusion! And it might be wise to examine the cause instead of criticize the result.

Nearly every unit in the parade carried an American flag. I think the parade committee could well take a lesson from the military and have one—and only one—color guard leading the parade, and let the individual units carry their own banners or pennants. If the Virginia police, who led this parade with magnificence, had been designated the ONE AND ONLY color guard, I am sure you would have found the public willing and eager to pay all proper respect to our flag.

Very truly yours,
Marjorie H. Kelley

seven-four plan under the provisions of which one resident representative is elected from each of the seven boroughs and four representatives elected at-large, fit the legal guidelines.

The appeals court did not over-throw the forthcoming "councilmanic" election of June 14. The decision read, "We think such a decision would be an unwarranted disturbance of municipal affairs at this time."

These candidates elected now will serve only until other plans can be made or the case is once again overruled by the U. S. Supreme Court.

Should the Supreme Court uphold the appeal's court a new plan will have to be drawn and passed by the Virginia General Assembly at its next session. Under these conditions, the councilmanic election would serve only about half of their expected four year term.

The plaintiffs in the suit, before the appeal, claimed at least a partial victory. They said they were satisfied with the ruling, but said they were disappointed with the delay in reapportionment. The appeal apparently came as a bit of a surprise to at least one of the plaintiffs, who said, "I believe an appeal would be highly unlikely. They wouldn't have a prayer."

Then Tuesday afternoon, Council released its stand, signed by the City Manager. The text of the statement is as follows:

"Believing that the 'seven-four' plan more equitably reflects the people of the City of Virginia Beach and is a constitutionally valid plan, I have been directed by the Council to state that an appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States will be carried forth in order to uphold the original opinion of Judge Hoffman."

The reapportionment case concerning the City of Virginia Beach has been in and out of courts and all on conference tables for more than two years at present, and it begins to look like the final chapter is far from being written.

The next step must be necessity. It must decide whether it will let the case. That decision could be quite a while in coming, and if it does decide to hear it, the actual hearing could be some months away. Meanwhile there is still a City Council election on June 14 to elect eleven members of that body under the controversial seven-four plan.

period: Ferry revenue in 1953 amounted to $5,025,737.45; $2,554,539.05 below what was brought in by the Bridge-Tunnel in 1965.

In 1953, cars accounted for $5,113,833.30, an increase of 75.6 per cent; trucks totaled up $1,873,855, an increase of 12.2 per cent; and buses brought in $247,880.23, an increase of 22.1 per cent. Total revenue for 1953 was $7,235,000.50.

These comparisons were taken from those two years because 1953 was the last full calendar year of operation for the ferry and 1954 was the first full calendar year of operation for the Bridge-Tunnel.

110 In The Shade

Wedgewood Dinner-Treatre, Today, Virginia, through June 25.

110 In The Shade by N. Richard Nash, music by Tom Jones and lyrics by Harvey Schmidt. Directed by Frank Staroba. Choreography by David McClung. Vocal I. recited by Frances Breeze. Orchestral direction by Joseph C. G. Costumes by Joseph C. G. Settings by Paul Iddings. Lighting by Stephen Osbrack. Cast includes: Arden Staroba, LaVerne Watson, Bailey Davis, Ron Reid, Sandra Wade, McClung, J. C. Calhoun and Larry Guy.

The musical, 110 In The Shade is taken directly from the romantic comedy, The Rainmaker. Actually the original play is still there with many of the lines set to music and a few songs added. If anything, the musical adaptation is better than the play, since the music lends itself so well to the script. Perhaps it just seems that way because of the perfection of the Wedgewood production.

The action is set on a hot summer day in the early 30's in a small town somewhere out west. The area is in the midst of a drought, which is affecting everyone in one way or another. The Curry family is deeply affected. The father, H. C. and his two sons, the practical and callous Noah and the fun-loving, not necessarily too bright, Jimmy, are involved in finding a husband for Lizzie, the only daughter. Admittedly, Lizzie is not beautiful. In fact, she covers any beauty she has with a superior intellect and a hard facade.

Into this scene comes Bill Starbuck, a con man who claims to be a rainmaker. His spellbinding convinces everyone but Lizzie and Noah, but even they are touched deeply by his short stay in the town.

Arden Staroba, as Lizzie, is magnificent. She captures all the sensitivity and loneliness of the prospective old maid to perfection. In the gay and lighthearted scenes she shows well the other side of Lizzie's character, and in the tender moments, she fairly radiates. Miss Staroba adds another dimension to her already long list of accomplishments at Wedgewood by exhibiting a nice singing voice.

Bailey Davis does a nice job as Starbuck, rainmaker with many wonderful dreams, but portrays the role with just a bit, too much intensity and at times a shade of a bellicose attitude. His fine singing ability, and excellent fluid movement on stage more than make up for any shortcomings, and he carries the role off well. He has the audience sympathy and excitement from his first entrance.

Lawrence Guy, as the father, H. C., handles this difficult role with ease. It is not an easy role since he must deal with each character differently. Guy never lets the consistency of characterization and emerged as a strong character.

The role of Noah is probably the most difficult in the play, and J. C. Calhoun was Noah. The audience has difficulty liking the too-realistic character. The role is written that way, and Calhoun, a newcomer to Wedgewood, does a fine, convincing job.

Ron Reid, plays the younger son, Jimmy. He travels happily through the action in a stumbling, bungling manner the role calls for. When Jimmy breaks out of his shell, Reid takes the stage, and it is rightfully his.

Sandra Wade McClung is delightful as the flirt, Snookie. She portrays the role in a pickle-like manner and her mischievous wiles and ways are most successful.

LaVerne Watson, who portrays the sheriff, File, also does a very nice job, but really does not come through until the final moments of the play. He seems to be underplaying too much earlier, although the role calls for restraint. File's scenes with Lizzie the highlights of the production.

The entire production shows the sure hand of director, Frank Staroba, who has captured the mood and theme so well.

Add to all that a fine orchestra, nice costumes, outstanding lighting, and a terrific set, and Wedgewood has come through again with a hit that will be hard to beat. Paul Iddings' unique set is simple and beautifully handled. It is enhanced greatly by Stephen Osbrack's lighting.

This is one of the finest offerings of the Wedgewood players and deserves good, large audiences.

OFTEN THE ROLE of a "custodian of the peace" is difficult and unappreciated. Here we have two of Virginia Beach's "Finest," showing a sense of humor as well as authority and dignity. They are (left) Patrolman Al Wallace, and recently promoted, Lieut. C. H. Payne. Police Chief James Moore will engage gentlemen lawyers from "The University" this summer to supplement the force, but we venture to say that none will be more handsome. (photo by Cassandra)

Beach Boothe HQS Opened

VIRGINIA BEACH — The headquarters of the Boothe for Senate campaign were formally opened in Virginia Beach last week. The headquarters is located in the 1700 block of Laskin Road.

C. D. Scully and L. Charles Burlage are the co-chairmen of the Virginia Beach campaign of former State Senator Armistead L. Boothe. Boothe seeks to unseat incumbent Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr.

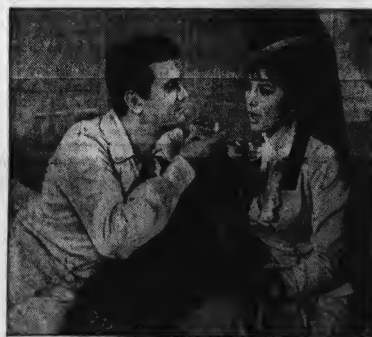

The candidate from Alexandria did not attend the opening ceremonies, but speeches were made in his behalf by both Virginia Beach campaign managers.

Scully said Boothe's supporters are "up against an entrenched and ruthless machine." He also predicted Boothe's nomination in the July Democratic primary and his ultimate election, saying the election will mark the beginning of a new era.

Burlage, long an outspoken anti-Organization democrat, told his audience that Boothe will provide a full and frank discussion of his stand on all vital issues of the campaign. Burlage said there is no comparison of individual ability between Boothe and Byrd. He asked for what he called a fight for freedom from the hand of the past.

A Virginia Beach steering committee in Virginia Beach was also announced by Burlage and Scully. The committee includes Nathan Supak, Robert Hotholmer, Roger Malbon, Victor Ashe, the Rev. Sidney Sanders, Mrs. Katherine Hardy, Michael Henry and Mrs. Dorothy Abdill.

THE GREAT LESLIE, a hero who conquers everything including women, takes Maggie Dubois, an independent-minded gal reporter, in hand in this scene from "The Great Race," Warner Bros.' new Technicolor-Panavision comedy which opens Wednesday at the Beach Theatre. Tony Curtis stars as Leslie, Natalie Wood stars as the reporter, and Jack Lemmon stars as Professor Patle. Leslie's implacable rival, "The Great Race," produced by Martin Jurow, was directed by Blake Edwards. Henry Mancini wrote the score of the film.

Four College Spong Reps. From Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH — Four Virginia Beach college students are managing "Students for Spong" units in Virginia Colleges. William C. Battle, State Campaign Manager for William B. Spong, State Senator from Portsmouth, announced that thirty-five student groups have been formed. Spong is running against incumbent Senator A. Willis Robertson in the July Democratic Primary.

Battle said that the movement has extended to more Virginia colleges and universities than any previous political group in recent state history. Battle, who managed the late President John F. Kennedy's losing Virginia campaign in 1960 when a record thirty-one colleges developed Kennedy-Johnson clubs, noted that Spong's supporters have now passed that mark.

Katherine C. Barnhardt, a junior and the daughter of Captain and Mrs. E. C. Barnhardt of Virginia Beach, will represent the unit at Sweet Briar College.

The co-chairman at Randolph Macon Woman's College is Celis Gerloff, a sophomore from Virginia Beach. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Gerloff.

Wilbur C. Fuller, a sophomore and son of the Reverend and Mrs. Norman Fuller of Virginia Beach represents Hampton Institute.

The Chairman of the unit of Old Dominion College is a first-year student, James H. Kahler, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Harvey Kahler, of Virginia Beach.

The college representatives will aid in recruiting help for Spong campaign in their local areas and will assist in distributing campaign literature, according to Battle.

League Backs 11 Candidates

VIRGINIA BEACH — Eight members of the Democratic Organization ticket, two independents and the only Republican in the race have been endorsed by the L. & J. Gardens Civic League in the forthcoming City Council election on June 14.

The split-ticket endorsement was announced by league president Victor J. Ashe, after 8 of the 19 candidates addressed the League. The two independents endorsed were Robert Kendall and Rolland Winter, both running at-large. The republican, Mrs. Lois Nelson is also running at-large.

The league also endorsed Lawrence Marshall, Bayside Borough; Albert Bonney, Kempsville Borough; G. Dewey Simmons, Jr., Lynnhaven Borough; Kenneth Whitehurst, Pungo Borough; Earl Tebault, Blackwater Borough; John McCombs, Virginia Beach Borough; S. Paul Brown, Princess Anne Borough; and Robert Cromwell, running at-large. Those on the Organization slate who were skipped over by the league are George Ferrell, Murray Malbon and Mayor Frank A. Dusch.

For the Organization Cromwell and Marshall addresses the group. Kendall, Winter and Mrs. Nelson also spoke. Three other independents Mrs. Shirley Marlow, James Tarter and James Logan, spoke to the predominantly Negro group, but failed to win an endorsement from the approximately 50 persons present.

Linkhorn Park GC

VIRGINIA BEACH — Linkhorn Park Garden Club will hold its final meeting on June 3, Friday, at 11 a.m. when Mrs. Joan Sawyer will be hostess to the group at a Pool Party and covered dish luncheon — "Dutch" style. Bathing attire is acceptable.

Mrs. Sawyer lives on Windsor Road. Her telephone is 428-8482. Club members are asked to call only if they cannot attend.

Gerald L. Gate of 205 Cheyenne Drive received a Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Pennsylvania's 210th Commencement held recently.

Among the 200 University of Texas Law students who are candidates for the Bachelor of Laws degree at the June 4 Commencement is Charles Talmadge Ross, 4121 Hermitage Point.

Capt. Jim's TIPS for SAFE BOATING

BY JIM KERRICK, SAFETY OFFICER
Virginia Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries

It is estimated that there are approximately three million boat trailers in use today throughout the country, but let us talk about your boat trailer.

More than likely last fall you pulled your trailer into the yard and parked it for the winter months. Now it is getting warmer, the fish are starting to bite and the family wants to go for a boating trip on one of Virginia's numerous impoundments, rivers or streams.

Ask yourself these questions: Have the wheels been removed and the bearings and hubs thoroughly cleaned and repacked with good grease? Is all of the electrical equipment in good working order and do the signal lights and reflectors comply with Virginia motor vehicle laws? Are the tires inflated correctly for the load you will carry, and have you inspected the tires to see if they should be replaced? Is the trailer hitch working properly and the safety chain intact? Are the rollers and tie-down straps in good shape and is your inspection sticker still in effect?

Take time to answer all of these questions as there is nothing worse than to get ready to go and find out you can't because you did not take time to check the trailer, or to be enroute and have a breakdown.

ENTHUSIASM and a revival of interest in the prospects of presenting a Class A horse show of the caliber of past great events of the old Carolanese Farm days is evidenced by the many bumper stickers seen around the city and the increased sale of booster buttons promoting the Virginia Beach Golden Horse Show. Show principals who gathered at the recently held Kick-off Luncheon are (l. to r.) show promoter, Robert Dillon; show co-chairman, Bruce Jones of Kempsville Ruritan Club; show promoter, William Dillon; show co-chairman, Mrs. George Jackins of the Kempsville Woman's Club; and Robert Shelburne, president of the Ruritan Club. More than a thousand participants are expected to come to Gerry Ashburn's Great Neck Stables on June 24-25 to compete for the $10,000 in prize money. (Boice photo)

Beach Tourist Season Opening

Blue Angels from performing their high-level stunts. The crowd was pleased, however, with the low level ones they did do.

Thousands of persons lined the adjoining roads of the base and watched from their cars. They also listened to the narration of the air show, which was broadcast over radio station WKVK.

Virginia Beach police reported several tie-ups from the traffic coming off the base after the show and automobiles leaving side roads around the base.

Motels in Virginia Beach reported full conditions both Saturday and Sunday, and were having to turn people away and trying to find them space in other places.

George Davis of the Aetna said he "couldn't believe it" and was "especially happy at the indications of a good season." The newer motels were also full to the point of overflow. The Sandpiper was reported full with people waiting in line.

Many people had to sleep in cars Saturday night. The Martha Washington, Americana, and the Avonmore were full Saturday and Sunday. None of the hotels reported any cancellations.

Hotel owners said most of their tourists came from the Richmond area, where it had already begun to rain Friday night, but they were not deterred by the weather.

This weekend was reported to be one of the biggest May weekends in the history of the resort area, despite the bad weather.

The resort area was not the only busy place in the city. State officials at Sea Horse State Park reported a packed house all week and long Campers' Club day for the park for the three day holiday.

Both fishing piers in Virginia Beach also reported a booming business all weekend, except for Monday. Both piers were packed practically to the limit Saturday and Sunday. The Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel also reported a brisk business over the weekend.

In spite of all the bad weather the first weekend of the tourist season was a success in Virginia Beach. The only ones who are unhappy are the surfers. The storm-tossed Atlantic is no place to surf.

Child Development Center

By Douglas Barnes

SEATACK — Sargent Shriver would certainly be proud of the recently established Child Development Center, patterned after "Head Start," which began its first session last week at the Community Center at Seatack. Dr. Melvin Humphrey, director of STOP explained that the program was to help culturally deprived children, ages 3, 4, and 5 years, to prepare for public school and contact with others in society. The program utilizes two VISTA workers and employs a staff of four, which includes teachers and aides. Introducing the children to their environment as pre-school youngsters is the main purpose of the project.

We visited the Seatack Center last week, noting the large, well-lighted school room with its new toys and equipment for play, and its cleanly attired children, integrated in happy fellowship. We were mainly impressed with the affection and gentle discipline with which the teacher, Miss Patsy Haynes, graduate of Norfolk State College, handled her little ones. Miss Haynes has also completed an 8-week course in Child Development at Duke University. She was assisted by Myrtle Humphrey, and volunteers Dorothy Strombridge, and Elizabeth Davis.

Miss Haynes said that she had been a member of this community all of her life, that she was supremely happy in her job, and that the only thing that she lacked was a used piano, since the children loved music. "It could be used by every one," she said. There's always a place for music in the Center.

The children are served juice at 10:30 and a snack-lunch at 12:00. The school operates five days a week.

This much needed and greatly appreciated haven for little ones is an asset to Virginia Beach, for "inasmuch as we have done it unto one of the least of these little ones, ye have done it unto Me."

Miss Haynes and her staff would be happy to have visitors, if they go to assist and not to criticize.

An Urgent Message To Every HOME And PROPERTY OWNER In The United States

A BILL soon to be voted on by the Congress will deny you, as a property owner, the right to sell or rent to persons of your choice.

WE BELIEVE this is a forced, not fair, housing bill that deprives you of a basic individual freedom—the right to dispose of your private property as you choose.

WE URGE you, as a property owner, to defend your freedom of choice by writing a letter of protest to your Representative in the House and to your two United States Senators.

NOW, read the details of this legislation.

THE BILL is H.R. 14765 in the House of Representatives and S. 3296 in the Senate.

TITLE IV of the bill concerns housing.

1. It will deny you the right to exercise freedom of choice in contracting for the sale or rental of your property. This means that the Federal government could force you to sell or rent your property to a person not of your choice, whether your property is your home, rental housing, a room for rent in your home or boarding house, or land to be used as the site for housing.
2. If you insist on exercising freedom of choice in contracting for the sale or rental of your property, a complaint may be filed against you in a Federal district court. This court, sitting without a jury, may order you to sell or rent to a person not of your choice. It may also assess unlimited damages against you.
3. If the complainant alleges that he cannot afford a lawyer, he will be furnished with counsel free. You, however, will have to pay your own lawyer to defend your freedom of choice.
4. If the Attorney General wants to make an example of you, he can intervene in the case. Then you will have to fight the complainant and the United States — all because you want to defend your freedom of choice.

THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF REAL ESTATE BOARDS IS NOT AGAINST OPEN OCCUPANCY, OR EQUAL OPPORTUNITY TO OBTAIN HOUSING.

The real issue is whether one person should be given the right to force an unwilling owner to enter into a contract at the expense of the owner's individual, human right. To deny any property owner freedom of choice erodes the rights of all people.

We believe that progress in race relations will be retarded—not advanced—by this attempt to deny people freedom of choice. Under the influence of church, school, and men of good will, the objectives of the struggle to obtain equal opportunity in housing are achieved. Voluntary efforts to this end should be given every encouragement. A forced housing law that tramples on a fundamental right will not advance this important cause.

WHAT CAN YOU DO ABOUT IT?

WRITE TODAY to your Representative and to both your United States Senators. Tell them what you think. Tell them that this bill would grant one group a so-called right by destroying a basic human right that belongs to all persons. Caution them that good race relations will be set back by this attempt to deny people the freedom of choice.

WRITE TO WASHINGTON TODAY

what is the definition of a private brand?

To some people, it is a retailer's own brand created with selling price first in importance and quality second.

To us at A&P, it's the opposite.

Quality comes first.

Value...the best for the least is the rule for our private brands.

If this wasn't true, how foolish we'd be to invest, as we have, literally millions of dollars in processing plants and testing laboratories.

If all we wanted were products we could sell cheaply without quality control, anybody could produce them for us.

The idea of quality private brands isn't new at A&P.

As a matter of fact, it's one of our oldest policies—and by golly, we're proud of it.

Are A&P Private Brands a good reason for shopping A&P? They're one of many.

VIRGINIA BEACH — A record annual total of $7,445 mail inquiries from prospective travelers were received at the Ocean Hiway Association headquarters during the fiscal year ending April 30, 1965.

The 67,445 inquiries included 32,419 keyed responses from advertisements and news releases in newspapers and magazines used in the 15-65 Ocean Hiway advertising schedule. It represents an 8.4 percent increase over last year's previous record high of 62,223 inquiries, according to M. Bishop Alexander, chairman of the Association's advertising committee.

March, the top inquiry month for the year, brought 12,795 pieces of mail to the Association headquarters. January with 11,888 inquiries, was the No. 2 month.

Although Ocean Hiway mail inquiries are normally relatively low for the month of May, the Association processed 14,081 requests for literature in May, 1965, the first month of the 1966-67 year.

Recent surveys conducted by the Association show that a high percentage of persons who respond to Ocean Hiway advertising are converted into travelers on the route and to its affiliated areas along the coast between New York and Florida. In a cross-section sampling survey of persons who answered Ocean Hiway advertisements one year ago, 76 percent of those who returned questionnaires said they have already traveled the Ocean Hiway. Of the 24 percent who have not yet used the Ocean Hiway, more than half indicated that they intend to do so when they make their next north-south trip.

The Story Of Rabies

This is the first of five articles in a series being published as a public service by the Virginia Beach Sun. The material was made available by the Virginia Beach Health Department and the Department's Director, Dr. Madge May, Ed.

Rabies has been feared and recognized since early history. In ancient times, when many conditions were associated with the stars, a period of summer was determined by the rise of the Dog Star, Sirius. At this time madness in dogs believed to be most prevalent, hence the legendary warning to beware of "dog days"—July and August. Actually, this ancient belief is without basis, although it still persists in some parts of this country. Rabies incidence may be highest in the late winter and spring, although it occurs in any season.

Although rabies (also called hydrophobia) is not a leading cause of death in humans in Virginia or the United States, approximately 200 persons in Virginia and 60,000 persons in the United States take the series of anti-rabies inoculations annually. It is a terrifying disease and 100 percent fatal (once symptoms appear) since there is no cure once it develops.

Louis Pasteur developed the first effective treatment for humans in 1885. He successfully built up the immunity of the human bitten by a rabid animal by injecting at first weakened doses of treated virus.

The vaccine was improved through the years, but it carried a danger of serious reaction among a small percentage of persons treated. In the 1930s, American scientists developed a better vaccine, a type produced on an avian embryo, which has greatly reduced the possibility of reaction sickness.

Probably as important is a serum developed 10 years ago for temporarily neutralizing the growth of the virus in a victim. When a victim receives a bite on the head or neck — only a short distance away from the brain for the incubated virus to travel — the danger is intensified. The rabies vaccine must have time to build up the body resistance, and if there has been any delay in the victim's seeking treatment, physicians use the serum to halt the advance of the virus until the vaccine's work takes over.

The rabies vaccine is given in 14 to 21 doses, one daily until the series is completed.

In seeking to inform the public, health officials fear two extreme reactions on the part of the populace. One is near hysteria — because the disease is so horrible. The other is complacency, that medical science will take care of the problem once a person discovers he has been bitten by a rabid dog.

Anti-rabic treatment is usually indicated for all persons who have been bitten when: (1) the animal was caught, identified and showed clinical signs of rabies, usually determined by a veterinarian. (2) The animal died or was killed and the laboratory found positive evidence of rabies. (3) A laboratory examination found no evidence of rabies or was unsatisfactory, but in the opinion of a veterinarian, the symptoms were suspicious or definitely suggestive of rabies. (4) The animal was caught or identified, and rabies is known to have been present in that community. (5) The victim is a child who has been in contact with the animal but is too young to give reliable testimony. (6) The victim was bitten by a wild animal, such as a skunk, fox or bat. Persons bitten by bats are always given treatment. Recent studies show that bats can be true carriers—transmitting the disease without suffering from it.

(Next Week: Main Source of Rabies).

Charts Sent To 15 Bands

VIRGINIA BEACH — Complete co-ordination charts have gone out to 15 High School Bands participating in the 5th Annual Virginia Beach Music Festival, according to Charles Forbes, General Chairman of the festival.

This annual Mid-June event is sponsored by the Virginia Beach Chamber of Commerce. The Instructors of Virginia Beach and Forbes Candies.

According to the list of bands attending, this year's festival will have greater geographical representation than any previous festival. Outside of the Hialeah High School Band, the other bands come from inland cities. Many of their members will see Virginia Beach and the Atlantic Ocean for the first time.

The 4-day competition is scheduled for June 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th with participating bands saluting Virginia Beach with a boardwalk concert on June 13th at 4:30.

Other highlights of the program include mass band concerts on Tuesday and Wednesday nights after marching exhibitions, a spectacular parade on Thursday morning and entertainment, dance and presentation of awards on Thursday night at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center.

Four judges prominent in the field of band music will evaluate the concert, sight-reading and marching exhibition of the competing bands.

Beach Soldier Killed Sat.

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Defense Department announced earlier this week that Spec. 4C Ronald E. Ange, 18, son of Roscoe S. and Mrs. Elnora Crews Ange of 404 Edinburg Court, died Saturday in fighting in Viet Nam.

Ange attended Kellam High School before enlisting in the Army in November, 1964.

He was stationed in Hawaii a year before being transferred to Viet Nam last month. He was attached to the 25th Infantry.

Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, Miss Donna Marie Ange, two brothers, Michael Ange and Paul Ange, and his paternal grandfather, Lemmie Ange.

THERE'S A NEW FLAG flying over Kingston School. Presented to the Princess Anne county chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution by Rep. Thomas E. Downing, it once flew over the United States Capitol and has been given to the school by the DAR. Berton E. Owens, Jr., raised it for the first time Friday morning while Betty Anne Gupion watches. Both children's mothers are members of the DAR. Bert is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Berton E. Owens, Sr.; Betty Anne is the daughter of Mrs. Anne W. Gupion. (staff photo by Padrick).

Charges Dropped

VIRGINIA BEACH — Following a hearing in Municipal Court, four young men had extortion charges against them dropped.

Police had charged Jerry Lynn Kantowski, Robert W. Coburn, John Linwood Spruill and Louis J. Caruana with attempting to get $1,000 from Mrs. Salina Grandy to "ransom one of their buddies from the Communists."

The judge dismissed the case after agreeing with the defense attorney that the Commonwealth had not proved a case of extortion since the men did not threaten to harm Mrs. Grandy.

THE SECOND ANNUAL Red Cross Youth Leadership Training Center was held at Camp Owassa last weekend with more than fifty young people attending from all over Tidewater. Packing up and now "going home" on Sunday afternoon are Francine V. White, Maxine Stoehr, Belinda Hernandez, and Candy Beigle, with Mrs. Hester Moore, Director of the Red Cross Youth, Tidewater chapter. (photo by Cassandra)

BETTY JEAN BARNES and friend clown it up at Camp Owassa after an event in the swimming meet held at Virginia Beach last weekend. Water safety, leadership skills and nursing services were all stressed along with fun.

A Good Mind

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."
— Philippians 2:5

Have you ever given thought to the expression which points out that "what you think you are"?

Think happy thoughts and your attitude toward life is certain to be brighter and cheerful. Look for gloom and you will find it.

It follows that our life becomes enriched when we turn our thoughts to God, when we keep in mind the high example of the dedicated life of Christ upon earth.

Keep God in your life, every day.

ENGINEERS put the finishing touches on the Little Island Coast Guard Station this week in preparation for the park opening tomorrow. The old station will be used as a bath-house and the garage that housed the Coast Guard vehicles will be used as a concession stand. A large parking lot is located on the south side of the buildings to facilitate their use. (Staff photo by Moore)

ADDITIONAL SURFING AREA

Good Turnout Expected For Little Island Park Opening Sat.

By JACK MOORE

VIRGINIA BEACH — Harold Whithurst, director of the Virginia Beach Commission of Parks and Recreation, announced Friday that the Sandbridge recreation area, now known as Little Island Park, will open its doors to the public Saturday.

With the opening of the park, the area's thousands of surfers will have an additional 850-foot section of surfing area north of the Back Bay pumping station. Approximately 2400 feet of shoreline, south of the station, will be set aside for swimmers.

Little Island Park was laid out on the site originally the old Coast Guard Station and has a total of 144 acres. The old station was closed down in 1964.

The station buildings are getting temporary renovations in order that they might be used this summer and will be completely renovated next winter.

One of the three buildings at the site, a two-story affair which was constructed in 1962 was given bathroom plumbing. It is still in fairly good condition, and was used as the primary building at the station.

The other two buildings, constructed in the thirties, are in too poor condition to be used this summer without complete refurbishing.

Whitehurst said there will be a few picnic tables and portable restrooms for Saturday's opening. They will be placed near the beachfront.

The park will be open only during the daylight hours this summer, but might be extended to night operation next year if construction of the campsite moves on schedule.

The park has a total of 3,200 feet of shoreline on the ocean side a similar length on the Back Bay side. Only the ocean side of the park will be used this summer.

Up until now the beach was heavily used by beach buggies, but the park beach will be closed to that traffic from now on. A ramp south of the park will be provided eventually. Beach drivers will have to go through the park to reach the ramp.

Charles Kiley, Public Works director said the city constructed three parking lots along the length of the park — each one will hold approximately 500 cars. One will be located north of the Little Island buildings and will be used primarily by the surfers.

The other two lots, located at the immediate south of the buildings and a few hundred feet south of the buildings will be used by bathers.

Kiley said a 30-foot-wide road, an extension of Sandpiper Road, will run from the edge on through the park, and the parking lots will be unpaved at first. The beds were recently put down, but because of the need of the land for its use, the work was sacrificed temporarily. Kiley said the lot and road will be surface trenched this summer and paved next spring.

City Council Campaign Draws To A Close -- Election Day June 14th

VIRGINIA BEACH — What may have to go down in history as the quietest and most tenuous campaign in history is now drawing to a close. On Tuesday, June 14, the polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 7 p.m., and voters will choose eleven new City Council members from the nineteen candidates whose names appear on the ballot.

There are 14 Organization Democrats, chosen in the primary election in April. There is one Republican. Five independents joined together under one banner and called themselves the First Representative candidates. Two others are running strictly as independents.

Close examination of the campaign platforms set forth by most of the candidates show little that can be called a really "hot" issue. This campaign has lacked much of the heat of past campaigns in Virginia Beach.

The Organization promises a continuation of good government in the city, with refinements in many areas. The First Representatives offer many refinements also, as well as the establishment of new city departments and offices. The lone Republican and the other independents say they seek much the same kind of refinement in the operation of the city of Virginia Beach. Although the planks in the various platforms are worded differently and although they seek ends through different means, the basic platforms are much alike.

Kenneth N. Whitehurst

Political buffs, who have long been prognosticators in Virginia Beach, say that the Organization has an edge, because the city has been growing and progressing nicely under the government of the present Organization councilmen.

The absence of issues may cause a smaller electorate than earlier anticipated, but more than ten thousand voters may turn out at the polls on Tuesday, according to several forecasters. Estimates range from 6,000 to as many as 19,000.

The campaign has been a somewhat unusual one. The candidates, particularly those backed by the Organization, have been working on the precinct level, talking with individual voters and with small groups. Only during the final week of campaigning did all or most of the candidates get together on the same platform for a mass meeting of any kind. Three such meetings were held, the largest of which was at Princess Anne High School on Monday. Except for supporters of the individual candidates and the League of Women Voters, the turnout was considered relatively small.

Those elected on Tuesday will be serving an indefinite term, although they are being elected for a regular four-year term. The so-called "seven-four" plan, under the provisions of which the election is being held has had a difficult time, and its validity remains questionable at this time. The plan was originally drawn by City officials and City Council when the old apportionment was called unconstitutional. It was adopted by the Virginia General Assembly and given the legal nod of approval by the U. S. District Court.

On appeal, it was called invalid by the Fourth U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. However, the appeals court allowed the June 14 election to proceed, saying that it would cause undue hardship to change plans at this time. The high court then called for a different plan to be drawn and approved by the General Assembly at its next session. Just last week the City Manager released a statement by City Council that the decision is being appealed by the City to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Earl M. Tebault

The entire plan then is still not clear.

John W. McCombs, Vice-mayor of old City of Virginia Beach, said the election will be held. The seven-four plan was drawn to guarantee representation by all boroughs, with the at-large representatives serving the larger boroughs, in that manner, all interests of Virginia Beach, including agriculture, would still be served, according to arguments for the plan.

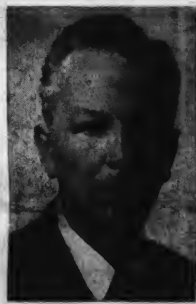

Regardless of the outcome of any litigation, the candidates for the eleven seats on City Council are, as follows:

There are seven incumbents on the Organization slate.

Frank A. Dusch (at-large), retired Naval Officer, Councilman for 14 years, Mayor for 12.

John W. McCombs (Virginia Beach borough), Hotel owner and operator, Councilman for 14 years, Vice-mayor of old City of Virginia Beach.

Councilmatic Forums Interesting Evenings

VIRGINIA BEACH — The City Council candidates were on the "chopping block" for three open forums this week at Princess Anne High School, the Bay Harbor Club and at the Seacock Community Center.

Monday night's meeting at the high school brought about 200 persons out to hear eleven of the 19 candidates speak and all present answer questions from the audience.

Tuesday night Lawrence Marshall, representing the Organization candidates and Mrs. Lois Nelson, the only Republican in the race, addressed a dinner meeting at the Bay Harbor Club, sponsored by the Seacock Club, the Jaycees and the Civitan Club.

Wednesday night was almost a carbon copy of Monday, when each candidate who wished spoke for five minutes, then all answered questions.

At Princess Anne High School, the forum was sponsored by the Rev. L. R. Graves, Jr., of Emmanuel Episcopal Church and the Rev. Clayton E. Crigger, of St. Francis Mission. The two ministers also allowed each candidate five minutes to address the audience. Then questions were asked by the audience.

Applause was generous for each speaker, and, although there were many "load" questions, a kinked the candidates fielded them well. Organization candidates continued to call for progress through organization, and pointed with pride to past accomplishments.

First Representative candidates continued to state what they think is wrong with Virginia Beach, as did the two independents and the Republican.

19 Answer Questionnaire

VIRGINIA BEACH — The League of Women Voters of Norfolk-Virginia Beach has received responses to a questionnaire sent to all 19 candidates for Virginia Beach City Council. The questionnaire sought background and biographical information on the candidates and asked what each considered to be the most important issue of the campaign.

All members of the Organization slate answered the issue question, with the 27 point Democratic Party platform encompassing improvements and expansion. The First Representative candidates answered the same question with their 11-point platform. The two independents listed a number of important issues, and the lone Republican also gave a long list of issues.

None of the candidates actually answered the final issue question but took the opportunity to re-emphasize all the planks in their individual platforms, which have received full airing previously in the press, on radio, TV and in public meetings.

Bar-B-Q For Robertson

VIRGINIA BEACH — Ticket sale for the Robertson barbecue Friday was going quite well all week, according to Henry L. Lam, campaign manager for A. William Robertson in Virginia Beach. The barbecue, sponsored by the Robertson Campaign Committee, is scheduled for 6 p.m. Friday, June 10, at the stadium of Princess Anne High School.

Some 3,000 tickets to the event were printed, and a large turnout is expected, according to a Robertson campaign spokesman.

The guest speaker for the occasion is Thomas N. Downing, First District Congressman, who announced his support of Robertson early in the campaign.

DOWN THEY CAME

'Signs Of Our Times' Cause Problem For Some Candidates

VIRGINIA BEACH — A new issue was introduced into the forthcoming City Council election in the past few days, and quickly disappeared from view and sound.

It all began when a Public Safety Department worker in Virginia Beach called the headquarters of the First Representative Council candidates and asked them not to continue the display of bumper stickers, posters and the like on public property and to remove those put up. The call was made, according to a city spokesman, because such political material was appearing on road signs, street signs, utility poles, and on public buildings. The spokesman added that one sign had to be taken down for refacing at a cost of $30 to the City of Virginia Beach. The sign reportedly bore bumper stickers of the First Representative candidates. Other violators were also called.

One of the "Firsters" then criticized the city administration, saying, in effect, that the Organization would not go any lengths in a campaign. No campaign posters or bumper stickers were placed on such property by Organization candidates or their campaign workers, according to a source at Organization headquarters, because they had been told not to do so before the campaign started.

Virginia Beach City Manager Russell Hatchett issued a statement Monday in rebuttal. The text of that statement is as follows:

"I am sure the citizens of Virginia Beach realize what the appearance of our streets would be if all the nineteen candidates for City Council were to display their political posters as they desired. One would never be able to see a directional sign because it would be completely covered up. "Our city has spent thousands of dollars on its beautification program and I am at a loss to understand

SEEMS THAT THE POLE WASN'T BIG ENOUGH for all the signs, so one candidate's face was covered by another bumper sticker. Sorry about that.

Last Graduation At VBHS

VIRGINIA BEACH — We are fortunate to have heard the Honorable Thomas N. Downing, U.S. Representative (D-Va.), of Newport News, speak at Va. Beach on two previous occasions. We have also exchanged a few words with Mrs. Downing at a political coffee.

Last week at the Va. Beach High graduation of 173 students, including 28 Honor Students, we again heard Downing. He was introduced by James C. Mounie, principal, to a capacity audience as their main Commencement speaker. His subject was: "The Time of Opportunity." He brought out the fact that one must get an objective in life and work towards its attainment, and that the winning of a goal brings happiness when it involves service to others as well as to oneself.

Learning to accept responsibility, becoming involved with life and grasping the opportunity of education because competition is great, is essential. Your education is never finished," said Downing.

As fresh and untouched by life's realities as their green caps and gowns indicated, the graduates listened with nostalgia since this would be the last graduating class from the present V B H S. The Honor graduates wore white robes. Mrs. Margaret Jeter, assistant principal, is also leaving the school this year, no doubt, to offer her talent and experience to other educational fields. She assisted Mr. Mounie in the presentation of diplomas.

Sherron Fruin, daughter of Captain and Mrs. J. L. Fruin, was Salutatorian, while Ragan Bradshaw Pulley, Jr., was lauded by his classmate for his outstanding Valedictory Address. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Bradshaw Pulley.

The High School Chorus, under James Miller, wittily sang "Climb Every Mountain" and "You'll Never Walk Alone," — ending the program with the chorus and seniors rendering their Alma Mater for the last time. The marshals were members of the Junior Class National Honor Society and were: Margaret Beavers, Penny Brown, Mary Harshultz, Linda Leigh, Ruby Melton, Merle Preston, Laura Reinhardt, Karen Silverstein, Michael Strickler, Lucy Wise, and David Wooten.

On May 30th the school had its Awards Presentation in an auditorium ceremony. Those receiving scholarships were: Teresa Hughes, James Mathias, L'Ren Lawler, Tommy Mathias, Linda Burmuck, Lois Ann Meador, John Maddux and Shirley Anne Jones. Those receiving awards were: Nancy Sparks, John Ott, Diana Furniss, Marv Lee Wetmore, Letitia Leigh, Ragan Pulley, Melvin Mathias and James Hoggard and John Ott.

Vicar Takes Course

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Vestry of St. Francis Episcopal Mission have approved the cost of a short course and a leave of absence from June 14-23 for their Vicar, Mr. Clayton E. Crigger, to attend a Refresher Course offered at the Virginia Seminary in Alexandria, Va.

Courses offered during the period will be: Old Testament by Dr. Newman, Pastoral Theology by Dr. Stanley. These men presently serve on the Faculty as Professors at the Va. Seminary. St. Francis Vestry feels that courses of this nature will be helpful in keeping their clergymen abreast of new thought trends and enable him to provide a more effective ministry.

Union-Kemp. Commencement

KEMPSVILLE—The large gymnasium, painted a cool green, was hushed as the capped and gowned academic procession, led by Rev. Melvin R. Boone of the First Lutheran Baptist Church, entered to the familiar tune of "Pomp and Circumstance," heralding the graduating class of 1966 of Union-Kempsville High School. Preceded by the faculty wearing colorful hoods from their various colleges, 188 grave seniors, eleven of whom were Honor Students, marched slowly to their seats. The girls wore white satin caps and gowns; the boys wore navy blue. Faculty members acted as marshals.

In the academic procession also were, Principal J. V. Boykin, assistant principal, Donald E. Morgan; Supervisor of Secondary Schools, Elmer E. Tarrall and the Commencement Speaker Dr. J. Rupert Picott, Executive Secretary of the Virginia Teacher's Association.

After the Invocation of thankfulness and joy in the future stretching before them given by Rev. Boone, James P. Davis, Valedictorian, introduced the main speaker. He discussed the wide traveling experience and background of Dr. Picott whose position has carried him all over the world. Davis later received a full scholarship along with the Salutatorian, Lydia P. Goffigan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Goffigan. David's parents are Pic and Mrs. F. M. Davis.

Dr. Picott spoke on "Change and Challenge." He reiterated the tremendous changes that have taken place in the status of non-whites since 1954 and stressed the amazing strides which had started under Kennedy and continued by President Johnson. "Their desire to see that minority groups get their chance economically, socially and educationally is a great challenge to every student graduating tonight," said Dr. Picott.

Quoting Robert Frost, Rudyard Kipling and other writers, he told the class not to take lightly their responsibilities but to grasp the challenge and to be prepared for any job anywhere.

"The entire world is open to you, but only if you are equipped," said Picott. "A college education is a must today for every phase of endeavor is highly competitive. Africa, India and all foreign lands are open to those trained to travel. Teach and work abroad and then come home and help those less fortunate than you."

Principal Boykins presented the graduates with their Diplomas, bound in maroon booklets. His assistant was Professor Morgan.

Elmer E. Tarrall brought greetings from the School Board congratulating the students using the Class Motto, "Try Not To Equal But To Excel," for a brief address. He said that success and opportunities came from effort

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Signs of Our Time

We are absolutely delighted that the Director of Public Safety, the City Manager and the members of the Beautification Commission of Virginia Beach took special note of all the campaign posters and bumper stickers that seemed to be appearing everywhere for the forthcoming City Council election.

Many of the campaign posters and the like were appearing on road signs, street signs, utility poles, trees and anything that happened to be available along the right-of-way. With little or no regard to public safety the stickers were being pasted to speed limit signs, directional signs and even "Stop" signs, partially or completely obscuring the sign. What must the candidates or their workers be thinking? How could they do such a careless thing? Not only did it present an ugly sight, but it also presented a downright dangerous situation.

Not all the candidates were responsible. In fact only six were really at fault. The five First Representative candidates and one of the independents were the offenders. The Republican, the other independent and the eleven members of the Democratic Organization ticket did not use this unfortunate method to tell their campaign story.

One of the things that we have praised so many times in this newspaper concerns beautification. We advocate a beautiful city at all times. And it seems ridiculous for a few to mar the beauty of this city for such a purpose. So many times in the past in this and many other cities, campaign posters and stickers have remained where they were put until they rot. This certainly causes a beauty problem.

The Welfare Of Our Children

Any driver who does not have automobile liability insurance should not be on the road, but one who has no insurance and drives through many neighborhoods in Virginia Beach is courting disaster.

The primary reason that automobile drivers are frightened out of their wits these days while driving through calm, secure and complacent subdivisions is the children at play.

We think it is wonderful that homeowners are doing so much to beautify both their front and back yards, as well as the side yards. Nothing will please us any more than beautiful neighborhoods. But because of this the children seem to have no place to play

Virginia Beach Claims Another

We would like to take this opportunity to welcome another permanent citizen of Virginia Beach who came to our city as a transient. The distinguished gentleman liked everything about Virginia Beach so much, he decided to make it his home.

Vice Admiral Edmund B. Taylor has recently retired from the U. S. Navy, capping a brilliant career that spanned many years and many commands. Admiral Taylor, until his retirement, was Commandant of the Fifth Naval District. Now he is just another victim of Virginia Beach friendliness and hospitality.

Another transient becomes a permanent citizen. It happens often and it makes a good story, but when it is Admiral Taylor, the story is doubly effective. We wish the Admiral many happy years of retirement in Virginia Beach. We also extend an invitation to a long time friend of Virginia Beach, the new Commandant of the Fifth Naval District, Admiral Reynold Hogle, to join us when he retires some years from now.

All of the signs put up in Virginia Beach have already cost the city time and money. Department of Public Safety workers had to be dispatched to get the ones down that the candidates did not after they were asked to do so. In many cases, the complete bumper sticker would not come down, thus the residue of them is left for posterity and the DPS.

Most road signs are reflectorized and the residue of gummed paper certainly takes away from their effectiveness. The signs must be cleaned or in many cases refaced. Needless to say, defacing city property is against the law.

In several cases the poster hanging and bumper sticker sticking got really out of hand. We found it most amusing to note that one candidate's workers had pasted a sticker right over the face of another candidate's poster. And these are the people who are running against the present administration for City Council.

Many of the posters and the like were placed on windows or public business establishments. The placing was entirely unauthorized. Again we wonder why this was done by those working for candidates for high public office. It would seem to show a lack of responsibility.

Many other campaigns will be coming up in Virginia Beach in the future, and we hope this mess has taught a severe lesson. In the meantime we shudder to think what Virginia Beach might have looked like if all nineteen candidates had placed posters and bumper stickers arbitrarily throughout the city in places where they should not be.

but in the streets. We are very sorry we have had to break up baseball games, football games, rope jumping sessions, marble games, hopscotch games and the like so that we could drive through a street, but that's the way it is. Cars are meant to drive in the streets and kids are meant to stay out of them, the streets, that is. Perhaps we should simply pull up onto the beautiful lawns and drive. That way we would never hit any kids.

The other day we drove by a deserted playground. A block later all the horn blowing in the world hardly moved the multitude of kids playing in the streets. The filthy words that came from the mouths of those kids when we tried to drive slowly by without hitting any one of them were rather unbelievable.

The bigger and older children should know better. But it's the little tykes who do not know better that worry us. They appear from nowhere and dart into the paths of cars. And they are barely old enough to dart. The fault in this case lies with the parents, who seem to care so little for their young children. They are not even in sight while their babies are in real danger. No wonder insurance rates are so high. When the death or injury of a child occurs, it is tragic, but most of these occurrences could be avoided if parents would try to care a little more.

And perhaps the driver can do something about it too. He can call the police and ask an officer to help him remove the obstacles to his driving. Perhaps the authorities are needed to return the younger ones to their rightful owners. And perhaps they could persuade the older ones not to be so arrogant.

All we want to do is keep them off the streets. We do not think that is too much to ask.

Errors In Left Field

Reprinted from the May 27, 1966 edition of THE NEWS, Lynchburg, Va.

It seems that other newspapers across the state also realize the gross deficiencies in the Spong and Boothe campaigns. And it also seems that rumors are recognized in Lynchburg just for what they are worth . . . nothing.

—ED.

Do we detect a note of desperation in the "divide and conquer" tactics of the two men challenging Senators A. Willis Robertson and Harry F. Byrd Jr. in the July Democratic primary?

The pair—State Sen. William B. Spong Jr. and Mr. Armistead L. Boothe—have resorted to spreading rumors and hurling charges based on those rumors. Have they run out of issues? Or is it that the issues they have raised have backfired?

For example: On Tuesday, Mr. Boothe accused Mr. Byrd's supporters in Southwest Virginia of trying to trade their

Please Get Out And Vote

According to the best and most recent figures we have been able to locate, there are approximately thirty thousand registered voters in the city of Virginia Beach. About one-third of them are expected to go to the polls Tuesday. And that is not enough.

More voters show up in state and national elections than do in municipal elections. We cannot help but wonder why. If anything, we would expect more to show up in city elections since the issues directly and deeply affect the voters.

We continue to be appalled at the general apathy of the voters in Virginia Beach. We continue to urge the largest electorate ever in next Tuesday's councilmatic election. The only way to register approval or disapproval is through the ballot box. There is a fine opportunity for this next Tuesday.

We feel that the Democratic Organization now serving our city has done a fine job and that it should continue to guide Virginia Beach in a progressive and organized manner. But no matter how a citizen feels he should get out and vote on election day and let his voice be heard then, not later.

To our way of thinking a nonvoting citizen is only half a citizen. Please get out and vote Tuesday in this important election of our city.

Good Turnout Expected

People will continue to use the beachfront along the National Wildlife Refuge as a "highway" on south to North Carolina.

Other renovations at the six-acre Little Island site were made to the old facility's garage. From now until the end of the summer, it will be used as a concession stand.

support of Mr. Robertson for Spong support of Mr. Byrd. In other words, Mr. Boothe is saying that the Byrd camp is seeking a Byrd-Spong vote in the Southwest.

This is a particularly vicious charge. It impugns Senator Byrd's honesty, integrity, and his intelligence. For such a deal would be a politically stupid thing to do, one that would backfire on the perpetrator, for it could not remain hidden. Senator Byrd's honesty and integrity are above question. As for his political savvy—who has a better political background in Virginia?

To accuse him of personal dishonor and political stupidity only reflects upon the man who makes the charge. This isn't the first time Mr. Boothe has stuck his foot in his mouth. The more he talks, the more voters he wins for Senator Byrd.

The latest charge made by the Spong camp on Tuesday is even more ridiculous—and hence, more desperate. Mr. V. A. "Jack" Etheridge, the Virginia Beach campaign manager for Mr. Spong, is spreading the rumor that Senator Robertson intends to resign, if re-elected, and turn his office over to his state campaign manager, State Sen. Edward E. Willey of Richmond.

What Mr. Etheridge is saying is that if the voters choose Mr. Robertson, they will get Mr. Willey instead. Mr. Etheridge is trying to create the impression that the voters must really choose between Mr. Spong and Mr. Willey.

Undoubtedly, they would rather campaign against Mr. Willey than Mr. Robertson, but it won't work. And, in making the charge, they are accusing Mr. Robertson of running under false pretenses, and therefore, of playing fast and loose—and dishonestly—with the public office he has served so long.

The truth is, the Spong camp is running under false pretenses in making the charge: the opponent is Robertson, not Willey. They may well wish it weren't so, but it is, and they know it!

In the beginning of their campaigns, Messrs. Spong and Boothe made a great noise about running on the issues. But Senators Robertson and Byrd have most of the issues going for them. Their positions reflect the convictions and opinions of the vast majority of Virginia voters. As a result, Messrs. Spong and Boothe have been left, figuratively, and oh, so politically, out in left field.

Far out.

Gull's-Eye View

BY N. S. CROW

I am embarrassed, but I have to admit it. I was flying high over Laskin Road the other day navigating, as usual, by the utility poles and road signs below me. But somehow they looked so different. I had to lose altitude to take a good look. There was so much color on the usually drab poles and road signs.

When I saw what all the color was from, I began to have a marvelous time reading all the campaign posters and bumper stickers pasted on the signs and poles. There were so many of them for some independent candidates for Virginia Beach City Council and for a group of independents that I began to wonder where the signs for the Organization were. While I continued flying, reading and wondering I forgot to watch where I was going and ran squarely into a "Stop sign" with two campaign posters on it. Well, brother, this crow has a black eye.

I was so angry both at myself and the sign hangers that I flew directly to the Director of Public Safety's office. I told some bird there what had happened and how angry I was at all the candidates in the race. He explained to me that his crew was busy taking them down at that very moment and that the candidates involved had been warned. He also clarified my thinking when he said that the Organization candidates were not guilty. That made me feel better.

Then I went back to Laskin Road, this time flying a little higher to avoid problems. I had originally been looking for some action in the Senatorial races, but there just has not been any recently. But I do understand the Robertson folks are holding a big barbecue Friday in, of all places, a stadium. A number of my friends and I have already made plans to drop in, since the food will be so accessible. And I always did like outdoor barbecues.

I understand our Congressman is going to be there, and I have some things I want to say to him. I can't say what we will discuss, but if later on he is talking about something mighty important and he says, "A little bird told me . . .", don't be surprised!

I'll be covering the polls Tuesday (from a safe altitude) to see how many interested citizens there are in Virginia Beach. Get it, I hope there are many. Go ahead, look up, right after some poll worker hands you a guide ballot. You may see your friend, N. S. Crow. Incidentally, anyone heard any good rumors lately? I seem to be fresh out.

Patients Need Much Blood

VIRGINIA BEACH — The General Hospital of Virginia Beach fights life-giving battles every day, and the declining factor in winning is often a simple pint of blood. The Red Cross Bloodmobile will be set up there on Friday, June 10, from noon to 6 p.m. to collect the life-sustaining blood from volunteer donors.

Dr. John J. Krueger reports that the laboratory must cross-match around 175 pints of blood each month and that of that, 90 to 75 pints are used for surgical and maternity patients every month. Many patients who come in for elective surgery are found to need blood beforehand, as well as times when transfusions are necessary during and after operations.

The Bloodmobile's appeal for donors is out for local citizens to support the local hospital in its dedication of saving lives.

PAHS Class Of '56 To Meet

VIRGINIA BEACH — The second graduating class of Princess Anne High School, the class of 1956, will hold its tenth anniversary reunion June 18 at the Shore Drive Inn.

Members of the reunion committee, according to co-chairmen Beverly Barger Craft and Janet Morgan Hawkins, have been working on the project since October. One of the committees, Mrs. Frankie Balfour Abourjille, said questionnaires were sent out to as many class-mates as could be located. The class had approximately 200 graduates.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Editor: Much has been said in recent months by the various candidates for the United States Senate. All candidates are in favor of higher education and several of them have expressed their views on how we can foster and encourage higher education. But Army Boothe has stated he favors an allowance of a modest tax credit to parents who are helping to put their children through college.

Of all the various methods, this method seems to me to be one of the surest ways of fostering higher education without Federal domination and also helping to lift the burden from the shoulders of millions of parents.

This platform proposal of Army Boothe is yet another indication of his interest in progressive government. This, along with his other forward-looking programs, proves that you lack there the voice of all Virginians in the forthcoming Democratic primary.

Sincerely yours,
ALBERT TEICH, JR.

Editor: As the self appointed spokesman for the home-owners of eighty-third street may I repeat, in writing, our verbally expressed thanks for your solution to our "Water hazard" problem.

As you were quick to point out that it was all in a day's work but with your ever increasing work load of major undertakings in the City we were doubly pleased that you felt there was justification in our request.

We were all delighted that you and Mr. Holman took time out from your well earned week-end relaxation to join with us in what we were pleased to call our "Dedication Party" at five o'clock last Saturday afternoon. Your arrival made our day. Thank you both for coming.

It would be unfair to close without an added word of appreciation of your Division's work in co-operation with the Director of Public Safety, Mr. Reeves Johnson, in the elimination of the dangerous situation which has existed at the junction of U.S. 60 and Atlantic Ave. and our street and I would ask that you be kind enough to convey our thanks to Mr. Johnson for his efforts in this connection.

Again, the sincere thanks of all of us here for your timely and expeditious handling of two problems which have long been a source of vexation to the neighborhood.

Steve Legum, 17, ranked first in state high school competition upset top-seeded Ted Wood, 6-3, 6-3, to win the Boy's 18 and under spot. Ted beat him in the same tourney last year.

Nancy Pearson, 18, defeated Nancy Griffin 6-2, 6-2 to win the Girl's 18 and under division.

Boy's 16 and under was won by Seymour Abrons, 16, 6-2 and 6-0. He defeated Dick Hotchkiss for the title.

Girl's 16 and under was won by Nancy Hotchkiss. She defeated Talbott Jordan 6-4 and 6-3.

Tennis tournament chairman Jack Garnett Jr. said most of the Virginia Beach players will be top-seeded in the state tourney and will probably go on to the international tournament in Tampa, Fla.

Garnett said the best young tennis player in the state came from the Virginia Beach-Norfolk area and Richmond.

Lions Elect New Officers

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia Beach Host Lions Club will hold its annual installation of officers June 27 at the Cavalier Hotel.

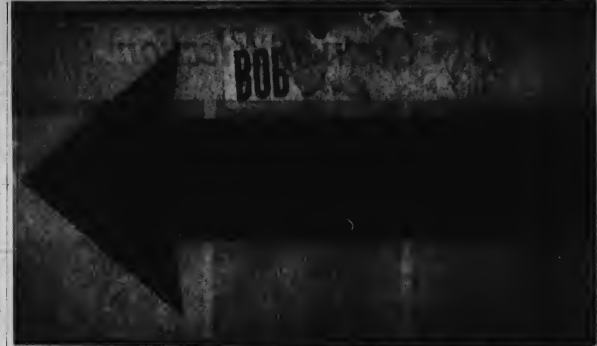

The new officers are Guy Narter, president; Walter Pankiewicz, first vice president; Robert Coulthand, second vice president; Jim Cook, third vice president; and Jack Wilder will remain as the club's secretary-treasurer.

The officers of the club recently returned from the Lions state convention in Arlington where they received the "Merit Award", for their increase in membership over the past year and the activities during the past year.

Outgoing president H. Webster Brown said the host club was founded in 1934 and all other Virginia Beach Lions Clubs were chartered by them.

Brown said all the new officers are the same old ones, with the exception of Page Ware. They just moved up one notch, he said.

The installation of officers will consist of a cocktail hour from 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7. Dancing will follow for those who wish to do so.

THIS DIRECTIONAL ROAD SIGN on a Virginia Beach road still bears the remains of a Councilmatic campaign bumper sticker. Although most of the sticker has been pulled off by someone, much of the gum and paper remains. The sign had to be taken down and repainted.

Signs Of Times

stand why those aspiring to be City Councilmen would want to mar the beauty of our city, and put the city to a lot of expense re-painting our signs and repairing the damage, and we must remember safety of the people is involved in this matter.

The candidates of the Organization ticket have not displayed their literature on public property, I was advised at the beginning of the campaign they would not do so and it is my hope none of the candidates will put the city to the additional expense of having to remove their signs, and it should be realized that defacing city property is a violation of the law.

The Director of Public Safety in Virginia Beach, Reeves Johnson, said his men began taking the posters and stickers down as soon as they were seen. At the same time the candidates were advised of the violation of the law and asked to take the signs down.

Johnson was alarmed at the placement of many of the signs. He said, "We have enough trouble getting people to respect our road signs in the first place." He noted that stickers and posters had been placed on "Stop" signs, and said that motorists are tempted to read all the posters attached to the sign and that they could easily miss the sign.

In addition to the road signs, stickers were turning up on utility poles, the sides of buildings and on the front windows of many business establishments. Bumper stickers of one independent candidate were stuck to the outside of numerous windows of stores and other businesses along Pacific Avenue during the night recently. A check with several of the merchants showed that no permission to put the stickers there had been given. Many merchants were angry about it.

Within a few hours after the City Manager's statement was issued, most of the signs had been taken down, either by the candidates or the public safety department.

Strickland Named

VIRGINIA BEACH — Johnny Strickland has been appointed Virginia Beach District Softball Commissioner for the 1966 season.

"I plan to hold district 14-inch and 12-inch slow pitch tournaments," said Strickland. "The winner in each event will advance to the State Open Playoffs on Aug. 27 at Richmond."

"Players who have competed in unsanctioned tournaments and former pros who have not been reinstated for softball competition will not be eligible to play in our events."

Attends Reunion

LYNNHAVEN — Mrs. Edward Semelle travelled across the country to meet many old friends she hadn't seen for 25 years, and she received an honor. It was her high school graduating class reunion.

Oceanside High School in Oceanside, California graduated 84 students. The first called reunion brought back 60 classmates, and Mrs. Semelle arrived from the farthest point.

She reported she had a "marvellous time" and that all former classmates had weathered the past 25 years courageously and were "in fine shape."

The 25th year class reunion was the high point of her 3 week vacation trip from which she returned last week.

SPEBSQSA At Bayside Lions

BAYSIDE—The Bayside Lions Club met Wednesday, June 1, at 7:00 p.m. at Shore Drive Inn with the president, E. Howard Pauley, presiding.

Program Chairman "Bill" Hancock, presented a group from the Norfolk Chapter of SPEBSQSA (Society For the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America, Inc.).

Maurice Trotman, directing, "All" Roper was spokesman for the group. Several fine old songs were rendered by the chorus to the delight of all present. A Quartet, chosen by Mr. Roper, without prior arrangement, sang two numbers from "The Music Man."

The Norfolk Chapter of S.P.E.-B.S.Q.S.A., which has a membership of 38, at present, recently took top honors in competition with about 1,500 men in the southern section of the Middle Atlantic District and will be one of four chapters which will be entered in the Eastern District Competition at Atlantic City, N.J. in October. "The Portmen" a star quartet from the Norfolk Chapter, also will compete as a unit.

This organization meets regularly once a week for practice and makes appearances at many clubs and civic functions.

Roper, spokesman for the group, said that his organization well comes any man 18 years or over to come to the meetings, to listen and observe, or to sing. They hope to increase their membership.

They will be singing at the Norfolk Arts Festival at City Park on July 4th.

Program chairman, Bill Hancock, announced that the next regular meeting of the club will be held on Friday night, June 10, at the Shore Drive Inn. This will be the installation meeting and "Ladies Night."

Run To - 'See How They Run'

Last week, we saw Ginger Rogers give an outstanding performance in "Hello, Dolly" on Broadway.

She and her cost received 9 curtain calls. The output of energy displayed by Miss Rogers was exhausting to watch; we felt tired but extremely relaxed after the show. She was magnificent.

And this past weekend, we enjoyed even more the Virginia Beach Little Theatre's final production of the season, Philip King's three-act farce "See How They Run." It was a thriller-diller, a Curly Howard Capers, hilarious without being raucous; wit and repartee were in every line.

The nine characters speak, think and run so fast that the 2 1/2 hours seem like minutes. The Western Chase and the Keystone Cops have nothing on these players who roll through their lines with alacrity, giving an evening of unforgettable mirth with superb acting.

The play takes place in an English village during an afternoon and night in the hall of the vicarage, when Penelope Toop, a former American actress, played by Carey Jones, is being severely criticized by Anne Pennington (Miss Skillion), for daring to fix the flowers on the church altar, her exclusive prerogative. The Toops have not been married long, and Penelope shocks the parish by wearing pants (slacks) while bicycling through the village. Penelope also waves to an American corporal, Clive Winston, played superbly by Tom Eyerly, who with Angela Walker (Miss Toop, a typical English maid), in this report, at least, steal the show.

Anne Pennington runs them a close second with her inebriated scenes and her Skelton-like falls to the floor after being unintentionally struck by Mrs. Toop. She witnesses Penelope rehearsing a rolling-on-the-rug scene with the corporal (a scene from a play in which they had toured America). This was the man to whom she had waived; he had recognized her as an old theatrical acquaintance and had stopped her to renew their friendship.

Enticed by Mrs. Toop, the corporal decided to take a night on the town, off-limits, and for this purpose, he lends him the vicar's second suit, hiding his uniform in the hall window seat. Miss Skillion is shocked by what she sees upon returning to the house to get her bicycle tire fixed. Ida, the maid, is a perfectionist at mixing up things and situations.

The vicar comes home to find Miss Skillion crooked on cooking sherry, and stows her in the hall closet.

Into the scene comes an escaped Communist prisoner, played convincingly by Sandy Hastie—his eyes are wild—he slips the vicar with a pipe and strugs him of his clerical habit (Anglican bib).

Ida then stows the undressed vicar in the closet with Miss Skillion just as Penelope's uncle, the Bishop of Lax (Bob Wainwright) shows up for a visit to look over his nephew's progress as a man of the cloth.

Returning from their innocent evening of pleasure, their togetherness is misunderstood as Clive Winston is mistaken for the vicar.

The confusion increases as another visiting minister, Rev Arthur Humphrey, played by Bob Furnias, joins the crowd while Sergeant Towers, an English bobby, played by Ian Goodwin, straightens out all problems by chasing down his prisoner. The corporal finds his uniform, Penelope is forgiven, and all are happy again.

The greater part of the third act shows Vicar Toop in his nylon underpants and -knight, armed with a poker, chasing the Bishop in his updraft nightshirt, who is in turn chasing the Communist prisoner in clerical garb, who's chasing the corporal in Vicar Toop's clothes. All are running through the stage, out to the lily pond, back through the drawing room, and out again. Doors bang. Mrs. Toop faints. Ida screams, and the action reaches a climax of excitement when the commie, armed with a pistol, forces Mrs. Toop on the sofa saying "Shut up—but stay quiet. You are my wife!"

Directed by Geo. Williams, it will be seen two more nights, Friday and Saturday, curtain time 8:30 p.m. at the Courtyard Playhouse, 17th street between Atlantic and Pacific Ave. CASSANDRA

Capt. Jim's TIPS for SAFE BOATING

BY JIM KERRICK, SAFETY OFFICER

BOATING ACCIDENTS CLIMB IN VIRGINIA

Boating accidents are caused; they don't just happen. Reported boating accidents in Virginia increased from 67 in 1964 to 82 in 1965, a rise of 22 percent, while the number of registered boats in 1965 was only 15 percent greater than the number registered in 1964.

Boating fatalities nearly doubled. In 1964 there were 29 and in 1965 there were 55, an alarming increase of 90 percent.

In 1965, 47 of the reported accidents involved a collision with another boat. There were 10 capsizings, 7 sinkings, 4 cases of striking floating objects, 3 collisions with fixed objects. The remainder of the accidents involved unintentional grounding, flooding, fire and explosion, falling inside the boat, and falling overboard.

What are the human factors that cause such accidents? Lack of training and experience is one; failure to apply the lessons of boating safety once they have been learned is the other.

Lack of training and experience may lead the boater into dangerously rough water and treacherous currents, which overtax the performance capability of his craft; cause him to fail to recognize or ignore weather warnings; fail to stop a proper lookout; or exercise poor judgement in loading his boat.

Safe operation of any boat, whether it is a twelve foot fishing skiff or a cabin cruiser, requires some training or experience, preferably some of each. Training may be handed down from father to son, from experienced boater to novice, or it may be obtained through a formal training course in safe boating.

A REVIEW

'The Tender Trap'

THE TENDER TRAP

Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, Norfolk, Virginia. The Tender Trap, by Max Shulman and Robert Paul Smith. Produced and directed by Timothy L. Jones. Cast includes Bob Dean, Foy Shaw, Lonnie Samuels, Ty Silbert, Hank Mauro, Ann Tynes, Beatie Bailey and Vicky Latimer.

The Tender Trap is a good farce comedy. The way it is now being produced at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, it should be quite popular with audiences. Tim Jones has created a fast-moving production with many laughs. The play has plenty of comedy built in, and perhaps in this production, it may be played a bit too broadly, especially in the "morning after the night before" scene.

Actually the pace began a little slowly and built well. The only things that destroy the rapid pacing were the long black-out scenes while scenery and properties were being changed. In addition the props should be moved a little more quietly in those same blackouts.

In order to keep the machine-gun pace sharp there was a little too much movement onstage, as obviously directed by Jones.

The story is a simple one. Charlie Reader, determined bachelor determined to stay that way, has an apartment in New York and is besieged by a bevy of beauties looking for fun, excitement and a husband. It is a wonderful life for Charlie until he meets the girl "who knows what she wants", and what she wants is Charlie. From there an serious complications set in for all concerned, and what develops is good clean fun.

Bob Dean, handles the lead role of Charlie Reader nicely. His ability to move well and his good comedy timing more than make up for the slight amount of maturity he lacks for the role. The audience is with him from the beginning, and they never leave him.

Charlie's friend, Joe McCall, chemist in New York away from his wife and thrust in this interesting situation, is portrayed ably by Foy Shaw. His is supposed to be a supporting role, but his outstanding comedy timing almost helps him steal the whole play. Only when he is searching madly for a cigarette is his role overdone, and a lesser "nicotine fit" can correct that.

Hank Mauro, who plays Earl Linquist, frustrated lover and accomplished chemist, does a nice job in his scenes. He is quite consistent in his frustration.

The funny beatnik role of Sol Schwartz was well done by Beatie Bailey. He is only onstage a few moments, but the audiences won't forget him.

Two of Charlie's lesser important girlfriends are played by Vicky Latimer and Ann Tynes. Miss Tynes as Jessica, does a nice job as the Southern charmer who brings Charlie cheese. Miss Latimer, as the provocative Poppy Watson, is quite believable as the sirene who brings Charlie a blue-fish.

Ty Silbert, as Sylvia Crews, holds the action together nicely. Her role of Charlie's long-suffering Number One girl is a little less erratic than the others. Miss Silbert handles it with a great deal of finesse and warmth, although her maturity overshadows some of the other players.

Lonnie Samuels is a delight to watch on stage as Julie, the girl "who knows what she wants." It is she who sets the trap for Charlie. In the earlier scenes Miss Samuels seemed a bit too sarcastic, sophisticated and knowing, but settled down and presented a good characterization.

Maybe it was just first night jitters and maybe it was a slight lack of experience, but many lines... good comedy lines... were lost by the cast members speaking too softly and by continuing to toss out lines while the audience was still laughing.

The flaws are really minor in this production and it is certainly a worthwhile evening of theatre.

The Story Of Rabies

All warm blooded animals, including man, are susceptible to rabies, which is transmitted by the entrance of virus laden saliva from a rabid animal into a wound generally caused by a bite of that animal. Although any animal may succumb to the disease, the chief transmitters of rabies are dogs and similar carnivorous animals, such as foxes, skunks, coyotes and wolves.
In Virginia the chief vectors of the disease are foxes. In all infected areas there are heavy losses of livestock. In Virginia alone, the cost to livestock growers each year runs upwards from $50,000. In April, 1953, a thoroughbred horse valued at more than $100,000 died of rabies on a Northern Virginia horse farm. These figures do not include the thousands of dollars lost each year to attacks on poultry by rabid animals.
Last year, a rabid fox attacked a group of children waiting for a school bus on a central Virginia highway. The terrified children scrambled atop a nearby parked car to escape from the snapping beast and sat there until a motorist stopped and killed it.
Accounts like these have been happening with some frequency in Virginia in recent years. Health officials of more and more localities are becoming alarmed at the trend the outbreak of rabies is taking. Once the disease was most common in dogs, but compulsory canine vaccinations have brought it under control in most places. In recent years, however, it has spread to wild life. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, in 1940 there were 6,194 rabid dogs and 277 miscellaneous reported cases, the latter including predatory animals, such as foxes, skunks and raccoons. In 1960, of 3,428 rabid animals reported, only 297 were dogs and 1,632 were predatory animals, including 910 foxes.
Of the 136 animal rabies cases confirmed in Virginia throughout '61, 99 were foxes. Of 139 animal rabies cases so far this year, 108 were foxes, 7 were dogs and the remaining 24 were other animals. To cope with rabies, about two-thirds of Virginia's counties and most of its cities have compulsory canine vaccination programs.

Open Forums

The biggest laugh of the evening went to Mrs. Lois Nelson, Raleigh, when she said Council should become "City Council instead of Sidney Council," a less than veiled inference concerning Democratic National Committeeman, Sidney K-Tam.

Those opposing the Organization criticized the seven-four plan, under which they are running for Council. Roland Winter, First Representative candidate, said the present administration has not provided effective leadership. W. B. Medkins called for a civil service type of employment in city offices, but later in a question period, had to admit that such a system was not free from doubt.

Nothing new and startling was introduced by any of the candidates, and few persons other than campaign workers and ardent supporters showed up, but the evening was judged a success as a public forum.

Who Finds All The Lost Mothers At A&P?

Don't believe we have lost mothers at A&P?
You would if you saw a teary-cheeked tyke look up at a checker or clerk and say,
"My Mommy's lost!"
Funny thing, children are never lost
—just their mommies are.
It happens every day.
We've had 106 years experience finding "lost Mommies."
And we have a whole group of friendly people working at your A&P who'll wipe away those tears and round up that missing Mother.
That's the way we are at A&P because we care about you...and yours.
Is this a good reason for shopping A&P?
It's one of many.

Summer Playgrounds To Open Tenth Anniversary Season

VIRGINIA BEACH — This summer marks the 10th opening of summer playgrounds sponsored by the City Recreation Dept. In the summer of 1957, the former Princess Anne County Recreation Dept. started an infant operation with 4 teams of Directors who shuttled between three playgrounds each on a six day week basis. The development and offering of this program has matched the spiral of population growth in the past ten years to a point where now the dept. will be operating from 5 separate sites, all operating on a 5 day week, and will employ 32 directors and 31 assistant directors. Opening date Fri. 17 June and terminating date will be Wed. 10 Aug.

Stephen Chipok, Director of the program, has held this post from its inception. George B. Shields, Physical Education Supervisor and Louis Breedlove, football coach at Oceana H.S., who are currently playground supervisors, were two of the playground directors during the department's opening in 1957.

The program's normal offering includes arts and crafts, drama, music-dance, nature activities, cont. j. and tournaments in individual and team games and sports that will be offered on a playground, regional and City Wide basis. The normal operation will be from 9:12-10:14:00 daily, Mon. through Friday. A tennis center will be in operation at Princess Anne High School for instruction only (children wishing to join this program will do so by signing up at the tennis courts at PAHS and the director will set up blocks of time based on these sign ups). The program is offered only to school age children.

In addition, 2 sites will be open in the evening hours to accommodate the high school age group. Union Kentsville H.S. is open every evening from 5:00-10:00 p.m. Bayside H.S. will operate only 2 nights a week: Tues. & Thurs. 1:00 p.m.-4:00 p.m. and again from 6:00-9:00 p.m. Bay side H.S. will also operate (only for the teen-agers) daily on Mon., Wed., Fri. at normal playground hours. Plans are under way to offer this group badminton, basketball, gymnastics, track & field, tennis, weight training, chess classes, volleyball, ping pong & softball not only on an individual choice basis — but actually receive instructional clinics. Mr. Ken Staflings will be gymnastics director, and Miss Vicki Lattimore will instruct the chess classes.

The Department's expectations in this 10th anniversary of the program, are that "It will be the best participation year of all."

The opening of the Summer Playgrounds is always preceded by a two day Institute for all Directors and Assistant Directors. This year the clinic will be held at Kings Grant Elementary School on 14 & 15 June. Starting time for

DORIS PADRICK'S

(Copyright, 1966 — Doris Padrick)

Events of the past couple of weeks bring forth only a "tired view" . . . Little school children enjoyed "end of school" parties (small contribution of working mother — batch of homemade cookies baked about midnight) . . . high schooler needed help picking out prom gown, transportation to beauty parlor, new dress to wear under cap and gown (pay rental fees), transportation to school to practice graduation march . . . in the meantime, one car breaks down . . . transportation for working mother in father's car, burn rides from news editor to cover stories . . . rising college junior needs transportation to fraternity parties, job applications, and dates . . . fussing to get complete family circle to high school graduation (mission accomplished) . . . transportation for graduate to new job . . . lock up bus schedule.

Not the "in" thing for teenagers to ride bus—too had for "teen's image," ride bus anyway! Two cars now running—tour drivers wanting to go in four different directions—parents stand firm; they get cars for own use . . .

"Neglected" small child demands backyard pool be set up, invites school mates to spend night (unknown to mother), whines for permission to go to corner store for new Batman cards, runs around screaming when icecream truck jingles bell . . .

Old dog feels young . . . sneaks out of open door, without tags . . . runs around neighborhood . . . gets caught by dog catcher . . . date with the judge tomorrow . . .

Like cub reporter, sent out by city editor to cover important wedding and who returns with no story because the bride didn't show up, it seems there must be a story somewhere in all that mess. But I'm just too tired to find it!

FARM BRINGS $2 MILLION

Contracts Signed — Planning Begins

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Terry Corporation, builders and developers, recently signed a contract to purchase the Old Donation Farm from the J. C. Hudgins estate. The land, which totals nearly 400 acres, was sold in a transaction which estimated land investment in excess of $2 million — representing the largest financial transaction for a single land purchase for residential development in Tidewater.

The J. C. Hudgins estate is being administered by Leighton P. Roper, senior vice president and trust officer of Seaboard Citizens National Bank. Consultant to the bank on real estate matters of the Hudgins estate was V. H. Nausbaum Jr.

Adjacent to Old Donation Church the land is bounded by Wilch Duck Road on the west and the western branch of the Lynnhaven River on the other three sides. The "Old Donation Farm," as an old deed so names the tract, is in the center of vast developments that have taken place in Virginia Beach in the past 10 years. Among those developments is Pembroke Manor, which was also built and developed by the Terry Corporation.

Although the tract has not been planned out as yet, it is estimated that between 800 and 900 homes will be constructed on it. A small portion of the tract has been retained by the Hudgins' estate as homesites for the estate's heirs.

Independence Boulevard is being extended through the new tract to link it with Virginia Beach Boulevard and Sullivan Road.

Most of the site is on high ground and includes an 11-acre lake.

The developers have decided to focus on the Old Donation site and let its history and heritage establish the theme of the land plan. Single family residences will be the core of the design.

The new residential community, to be named Old Donation Farm, will undergo initial land planning within the next three months and be ready for marketing and sales by spring of 1967.

When completed, the total residential construction costs will be approximately $18 million.

Principals of the Terry Corporation, Fred Neapolitano and Horace Cistola of Virginia Beach and Emilio Olivieri of New York, were engaged in the construction of residential, commercial and multi-family real estate in the mid-west and New York before moving to the Tidewater area.

Neapolitano and Cistola both are active in local civic and professional affairs.

The Terry Corporation began building homes in this area in 1954. Since then it has become the largest homebuilding and residential development organization in Virginia. The corporation provides employment for approximately 250 people in its operation.

Locally, since 1955, the organization has built approximately 2,500 residences, principally in Crestwood, Aragona Village, Malibu, Pembroke Manor and Brookwood.

The principals of the firm also founded Pembroke Square Associates, the owners of Pembroke Mall Shopping Center. The mall is the only enclosed shopping center in Tidewater at present.

Rose Culture

BIRCHWOOD GARDENS—Summer culture of roses was the topic by guest speaker, Charles Turrisi, member of the Tidewater Rose Society at the recent horticulture clinic, held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Tippin in Birchwood.

He stressed the point that rose beds should be kept clean at all times, take off the spent blooms, and clean beds of fallen leaves so that diseased spores on the leaves will not infect the rest of the plants.

It is also important to spray early in the morning, lessening the injury to foliage, to prune roses by cutting out dead canes, crossed canes and diseased canes. After pruning, cover cuts larger than the size of a pencil with a pruning material that is sold in all local nurseries and hardware stores.

Spray regularly for black spot, mildew, aphids, and other insects. Water regularly, and if leaves show a yellowing, it might be a lack of iron. Iron chelate placed at the base of the plant will be of help to overcome this lack.

Attending the clinic were Mrs. Thomas Betz, Mrs. Peter Marx, Mrs. Malcolm Kelly, Mrs. Thomas Boyes, Mrs. Donald Harvey, and guests Mrs. Ethel Young and Mrs. Pearly Turrisi.

Mrs. Howard Davis was hostess for the occasion.

James R. Fox of Virginia Beach was elected treasurer of the Virginia Tech student Society of Architectural Engineers for the coming school year.

Consulting Attorney Sought For Appeal

VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council Monday passed a resolution to hire a consulting attorney in the planned U. S. Supreme Court appeal of a lower court decision which declared the 74 council election plan unconstitutional.

City Attorney Harry Marshall made the request for the attorney. It is estimated by sources that the appeal will cost the city approximately $5,000, but there was no move by council Monday to appropriate the necessary funds.

One city official remarked that a ruling by the U. S. Supreme Court on a similar matter might make such an appeal unnecessary before it is heard.

There has been no word yet as to who the City Attorney's office will hire for the appeal.

Council also appointed four city officials to two committees assigned the task of updating the Southeastern Virginia Regional Transportation plan.

Those named were Chief Reeves E. Johnson, city safety director Charles Kiley, city engineer, Mason Gamage, director of the Planning Commission and assistant City Manager Roger Scott. Johnson, Kiley, and Gamage were appointed to the technical committee and Scott was appointed to the regional policy committee.

The various committees are being formed by member communities of the Southeastern Virginia Regional Planning Commission and their purpose is to see that federal requirements are met in the planning and layout of highway systems in the area.

In other action council:

- Approved the purchase of two parcels of land near Princess Anne Court House for an estimated $41,000.
- Approved a request from the Commissioner of Revenue for an additional $5,300 for salaries of summer employees.
- Noted that water lines had been requested in Windsor Woods and Bayside Acres.
- Appropriated an additional $8,300 to be used in development of Little Island Park.
- Allocated $1,200 to the Department of Parks and Recreation for the operation of the Boardwalk trails this summer.
- Granted a use permit for the construction of 48 apartment units on the southeast corner of 18th Street and Parks Avenue.
- Approved a resolution calling for the support of the proposed Library Service and Construction Act now being considered by Congress.
- Agreed to charge $100 a week for license fees for tent shows and

Roanoke Unit Wins Trophy

VIRGINIA BEACH—The 90th Army Band of Roanoke received Governor's trophy for efficiency in training Tuesday at a Flag Day retreat ceremony staged by Virginia National Guardsmen at the State Military Reservation.

The crack Roanoke outfit, commanded by CWO Andrew W. Hull, won the citation for the period from June 1, 1965, to May 31, 1966. The presentation was made by the Virginia adjutant General, Major General Paul M. Booth, who congratulated Hull and members of the band for their consistent performance that has brought them the trophy several years in succession.

General Booth also announced a triple tie for the Adjutant General's Cup awarded for excellence in attendance. These units, all with 100 per cent counts, are Headquarters Detachment, 1st Squadron, 11th Cavalry; 2nd Squadron, 11th Cavalry; and Headquarters Detachment, 24th Artillery Group.

Beach Police At School

VIRGINIA BEACH—Three Virginia Beach policemen graduated from a three-week training course in Richmond Friday. The course was the first of two summer sessions.

LI. H. C. Terry of the Virginia Beach Police Department said the two sessions are presented and sponsored by the Virginia Association of Chiefs of Police, the State Department of Education.

The three graduates, according to Terry, are L. S. Taylor of the First Precinct, A. Sinclair of the Second Precinct and E. E. Morrow of the Traffic Division.

Those attending the second session, which began Sunday and ends July 1 are L. W. Barlow and W. W. Baker of the Juvenile Bureau.

Terry said 72 policemen from around the state graduated Friday. He said they were instructed by LI. R. L. Morgan of the Portsmouth Police Department, Capt. A. B. Roane of the Chesapeake Police Department and 30 other police and law enforcement specialists.

Terry said Rowland C. Heister, Special Agent in Charge in Richmond was the guest speaker at the awards dinner Friday night.

He added that the 1966 Police Training School is the best one he'd yet. Terry said this summer the courses were expanded to cover three weeks instead of the usual two and the results were the best on record.

THESE HUNGRY PEOPLE AND MANY OTHERS made up the large crowd which filled the cafeteria of Princess Anne High School for a barbecue in honor of U. S. Senator A. Willis Robertson. The threat of bad weather forced the affair inside.

VISIT TO NATIONAL GUARD

Sen. Robertson Here For Campaigning

VIRGINIA BEACH—Incumbent Virginia Senator A. Willis Robertson will participate in Governor's Day Ceremonies at Camp Pendleton this Saturday. Following the ceremonies, Virginia's senior Senator will be at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center for an address to his Virginia Beach Youth Committee. Saturday night, the Senator will address the closing session of the Virginia Association of Commonwealth Attorneys at the Cavalier.

Senator Robertson has only made one brief campaign stop in Virginia Beach so far at which time he made two speeches and held a brief press conference. The speeches were made at the new Pembroke Mall Shopping Center and at City Hall at Princess Anne.

Last Friday, a barbecue, attended by nearly 800 persons was held at Princess Anne High School for Senator Robertson. The major at that activity was made by First District Congressman, Thomas N. Downing, one of the first to announce his support of Senator Robertson.

Downing told the group that he was "putting everything on the line" in his support of Robertson. He said that the voters will have the opportunity of putting him out of office if he had made a mistake in backing and campaigning for Senator Robertson in his bid for re-election.

VIRGINIA BEACH—This afternoon, 25 college students will complete a seven day training course preparatory to becoming Virginia Beach Summer Policemen.

LI. Harry C. Terry, department training officer said the city hired 32 law students this summer, 10 coming back to work a second season. Terry said some of the men had been with them for two seasons.

The ones who have served with the Virginia Beach police previously did not take the course. Terry said.

"The school time is not as much as we would like to have," Terry said, "but will at least give them some of the basic problems that we are confronted with."

"This, as you know, will be our fourth season with the law students," Terry added.

He said the men come from the University of Virginia, University

Also during his presidency the Virginia Beach chapter of the Jaycees was selected as the outstanding chapter in the region.

Four Newcomers And Seven Incumbents Win Handily

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Organization Democrats, showing more vote-getting power than in recent elections, swept easily to victory in the City Council election Tuesday. Complete returns Wednesday showed that the seven incumbents and four newcomers had piled up an impressive margin of more than 2 to 1 over their seven independent and one Republican opponents.

The final tally of votes was expected to reveal a record turnout in a municipal election. Approximately 11 thousand voters or better than one-third of the registered voters in Virginia Beach turned out at the polls. The turnout was far better than many political buffs and political reporters had forecast.

One informed source said that, although voting got off to a slow start Tuesday morning, the pace picked up greatly in the last two or three hours. The excellent weather was also called a factor in the heavy turnout. A spokesman for the Organization said he was delighted by the large vote. The candidates on the Organization ticket gave a large amount of the credit to the Campaign Committee, headed by R. R. "Buddy" McChesney.

The Organization continued to pile up large majorities in every precinct as early returns came in, and before the polls had been closed two hours, it was evident an Organization sweep was in the making. The sweep has been considered by many to be a public rejection of personal attacks by some of the independents, as well as complete public acceptance of the seven-four plan of apportionment, awaiting a hearing in the U. S. Supreme Court.

When the new Council takes office in September, there will be four new men. G. Dewey Simmons, Jr. will represent Lynnhaven Borough, and D. Murray Malbon, George Ferrell and Robert Cromwell, Jr., will serve at-large. The seven incumbents elected Tuesday are Lawrence Marshall, Albert Bonney, S. Paul Brown, Kenneth Whitehurst, Earl Tebault, John McCombs and Mayor Frank Dusch. Whitehurst, Brown, Tebault and McCombs were unopposed and piled up early pluralities.

When he was asked about the Organization Sweep Va. Beach political leader and Democratic National Committee man, Sidney S. Kellam said, "The large vote may be attributed to the fact that people are enjoying good government and they want to work to preserve it."

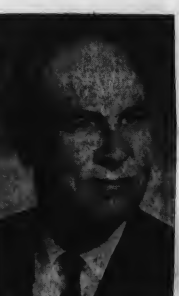

D. Murray Malbon

The anti-Organization forces never seemed to get their campaigns off the ground, and although seven independents had joined together under a common name before the end of the campaign, they never seemed to agree on a common platform or common goals. These platforms, collectively and individually, were mainly based on negative attitudes.

The Organization candidates campaigned on their record of good, progressive government in Virginia Beach and worked mainly on the precinct level, meeting voters, ringing doorbells and attending small meetings and gatherings. At no time did the Organization attack its opponents personally.

Two Receive Citations Wed.

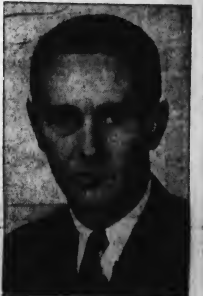

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mayor Frank A. Dusch and City Manager W. Russell Hatchett of Virginia Beach received meritorious service citations today "for valuable contributions unselfishly rendered to the promotion of National Guard activities in the Commonwealth of Virginia."

LI. Col James D. Sisk, of Roanoke, president of the Virginia National Guard Association, made the presentations at an informal luncheon at the State Military Reservation where 1,800 National Guardsmen are in summer field training. Major General Paul M. Booth, Virginia adjutant General, joined in the tribute to the officials of Virginia Beach for their friendly and close cooperation in support of Virginia military activities. Units of the Virginia Army National Guard annually stage their field training at the reservation, which is surrounded by the City.

"We are grateful," General Booth said, "for the assistance rendered by the City of Virginia Beach in connection with the operation of the state military reservation and for the excellent coordination which always prevails between the National Guard and the people and officials of the City."

The citations were authorized by the executive council of the Virginia National Guard Association, which is devoted to promotion of the best interests of the Commonwealth and the National Guard activities in the state.

Both awards came as a surprise to the city leaders.

Mrs. Robert Glenn Dunn (Boice Photo)

VIRGINIA BEACH—Miss Linda Darlene Rudd became the bride of Pfc. Robert Glenn Dunn, USA, on Saturday in the Star of the Sea Catholic Church with a formal double ring ceremony performed at 3 p.m. by the Rev. Edmund Kollar.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Edward Rudd of 2201 N. Wolfshire drive. The bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Sandy G. Dunn of Norfolk. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a long white chiffon gown with empire waist and lace bodice, her elbow length veil featured a headpiece of white organza roses in clusters and pearls. She carried a cascade of white roses and lilies of the valley.

Serving as maids of honor were Miss Karen Kanzenbeck and Miss Rose Lee Barnett. Bridesmaids were Miss Sharon Williams, Miss Bart Hudson of McLean, and Miss Sherrie Coats of Houston, Texas, cousin of the bride. Charles Perrino of Norfolk was the best man. Ushers were Michael Dunn, brother of the bridegroom; Joseph Eller of Norfolk, cousin of the bride; and Ellis Early. Kenneth Shelton served as ring bearer, and junior groomsmen was Mark Dunn, the bridegroom's brother.

The reception was held at the first and second class petty officers club in Oceana and was followed by a wedding trip to Charlottesville and the Shenandoah Valley.

Picnic Sat.

MEMBER AMERICAN GEM SOCIETY

Party Line... By OLGA EDWARDS

A pool party at this time of year usually suggests college students free from books and ivory covered walls, eating hamburgers and holding, and giving each other a fraternal grip. The high school crowd, discussing world-striking events with chips and candy bars also enjoy pool parties. They arrive on the scene, the girls with streaming hair, wearing stretch pants; the boys with beetle cuts and comfortable in gaily flowered jans.

Mrs. Clifford R. Sawyer, who lives in Bay Colony, entertained her Linkhorn Park Garden Club last week at a different kind of pool party. After a short business meeting, tending to chairs around her private pool, the members enjoyed a beautifully appointed gourmet luncheon "fit for a king." Such dishes as a raisin corn pudding, pickled bean salad, crab meat au gratin, jellyed lime and cottage cheese salad, Smithfield ham, fried chicken, and three creations of potato salad were there and Deviled eggs a la Luncheon, preceded by a gin-punch hour and followed by honey squares and chocolate cake. Calories were not discussed!

The hostess wore a custom made black silk bathing suit which complimented her blonde hair. Joan makes beautiful fashionable suits and sells them. She mentioned a black lace beach coat that went with the suit. A Navy wife, Joan was reared on Long Island, and is now moving closer to the Atlantic. Her casual hospitality reflects her wide traveling with the Captain and her family.

All members were fashionably attired; Berge Beale's pink knit bathing suit with large hat was lovely. She swam in the large pool insured for privacy by a Walpole fence. Mary Elizabeth Crump took like a daffodil in her highwaisted pale yellow Jersey dirndl sport dress. Marian Townsend, an excellent swimmer, wore a dressmaker flowered bathing suit with an enormous yellow lip hat. Edna Lam's sun glasses and shift were impressive while Anita Malbon, president, was attired in a Hawaiian sleeveless print with square cut neckline. Mable Kantapoulos wore a white lacy sundress and Ruth Pardue's denim sport dress with full skirt was outstanding. Others were individual in

Drain Pipe Dedication

Once in a great while a rather unusual bit of news, like flotsam and jetsam, floats by and commands our attention and interest. All of us are party to and recognize the criticism directed to our city government because they never seem to do the things wanted on time and sometimes they seem to neglect action completely. But the two men who carried the message to Garcia in this instance are C. S. Keller, director of public works, and city engineer Earl Holloman. The subject was the completed installation of the Drain Pipe at 83 street. Truly "twas a consummation devoutly wished" and was participated in by the interested willing residents who performed from time to time some physical labor side by side with the workmen. Upon completion and at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Hardy (see letter in Forum from him in today's issue) they staged a "wetting-down party" in honor of Mr. Keller, Mr. Holloman and THE DRAIN PIPE.

The happy party givers and their honored guests were Mrs. Helen Booker, Mr. and Mrs. Hardy, Mrs. F. L. Fair, Mrs. Helen Denton, Mrs. H. W. Graham, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kennedy, Flight Surgeon U.S.N. Lt. and Mrs. Calvin Peters, and Keller and Holloman.

Fashions Plus Installation

By Douglas Barnes
LITTLE CREEK—There is something about a model! And there is something about a Navy Wife, too! Color them both ambitious, brave, capable, different, fascinating, glamorous, and all adjectives complimentary. Service people in Tidewater add a proud tradition; models add beauty and know-how—they could be one and the same. They are what men have fought for, since time began.

Last week, the Little Creek Officers' Wives club met in the swank club ballroom for cocktails, a rose luncheon, installed officers, and enjoyed a fashion show presented by Rose Hall.

The more than 400 ladies, seated in the ballroom and overflowing into adjoining rooms, elected Mrs. John G. Now as president; Mrs. Joseph Sahaj, first vice president; Mrs. Frederick Purdum, second vice president; Mrs. Richard A. Griswold, recording secretary; Mrs. June K. Dollemeyer, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Laurence H. Heldorn, treasurer. Multi-colored paper roses in magnolia leaves decorated the long banquet tables and were created by the arrangement and decorating committee with Mrs. C. W. Ward as chairman. The hostess group, the ladies of COMPHITRAANT, had Mrs. F. M. Vannoy as chairman. At the main table sat also Mrs. C. E. Duncan, Mrs. Vannoy, Mrs. R. G. Anderson, Mrs. A. M. Harris, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Mrs. H. H. Aull, Mrs. R. E. Mack, Mrs. V. J. Vaughan, Mrs. B. B. Whitham, Mrs. M. Kelly, and Mrs. R. Morgan. Mrs. Vaughan is publicity chairman. Mrs. N. P. Watkins is past president, and presiding in her place was Mrs. R. M. Harris.

The famous Renoir painting "Abres au Bord d'un Fleuve", which the Norfolk museum is raising money to purchase, was on display during the social hour.

Rose Hall Specialty Shop presented the loveliest of models (Gren Holzeweig, Vera Pennington, Beverly Whitten, Linda Wirt, Barbara Claybaugh, and Bert Harper) in an extravaganza of sensibly priced, high-fashion outfits. Suzanne Lawton and John Gilliland were commentators while mood music was provided by Mrs. Aull.

The ladies watched for over an hour as bathing suits, at home and spectator outfits, sportswear and summer knits, church and travel attire, cocktail, date, dinner, dinner-dancing, and evening dresses were displayed with the latest in accessories.

Huge drop earrings, fashionable umbrellas, straw bags, white leather bags, two-tone shoes, beaded and gold evening purses complimented such apparel.

Among the fascinating fashions shown were a red, white and blue nautical bathing suit with white island cover-up, a yellow slack set with hood, a beige, black and blue three-piece jacket dress, a white sheath with black ruffles, a yellow long sleeve shift, and a floor length aqua evening gown with beaded front.

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

The Problems Of Surfing At Virginia Beach

There has been a tendency by all those concerned to push the many surfing problems at Virginia Beach "under the rug", but they can no longer be ignored. They must be looked upon as real problems that are with us now and are likely to get worse. As far as can be determined, the solution to the problems are difficult and may even be impossible, but at least they bear discussing.

Now that a new and larger area for surfing has been opened at Sandbridge we may see a few less surfers at the south end of the beach in Virginia Beach Borough, but only a few. The new Little Island area at Sandbridge is very nice and we are certain that it will be used, but it is quite a way from the populated area; thus presenting a transportation problem. And the road to Sandbridge is still far from being ideal.

The surfers, however, seem to be a resourceful group, and we feel sure they will be using the new area to complete advantage. The old area around Steel Pier then may be less used or can be used by new surfers.

Surfing has become an important sport in Virginia Beach, although the waves are not really right for surfing. Surfers come from the entire area to participate in this sport. The old area on Memorial Day weekend was extremely dangerous.

There were so many surfers there that traffic in the water was unbelievable. Several persons were injured by unmanned and unguided boards and many new boards sported "dings" after the weekend outing. One was reminded of traffic on Virginia Beach Boulevard during rush hour while viewing the scene. The surfers appeared to be navigating a watery obstacle course.

The New City Council

The new Virginia Beach City Council has been elected and will soon take office. We hope the members will take office for a full four-year term, as they rightfully should. That now is up to the U. S. Supreme Court, but, it is even more obvious than ever before that the seven-four borough and at-large apportionment plan is equitable and workable.

In this election, the eleven Organization candidates have been successful, and for that we are pleased. The voters of Virginia Beach have seen the results of the excellent and progressive government in our city in the past and have elected those who will continue the same policies. We feel that the voters have made wise choices, and were not fooled by the negative attitude of the independent aspirants.

We hope that those who opposed the winners will now rally behind them for the good of the city of Virginia Beach. The voters have had their say and they have duly elected the eleven they wanted. Now it is up to everyone to support those eleven for the successful operation of good municipal government.

It is obvious that some of those opposing the seven-four plan were doing so for political reasons. But surely they can now see that the plan is a good one. All the people voted on all the candidates and, even numerically speaking, elected representatives from boroughs and on an at-large basis. Now we can only hope that the Supreme Court will weigh all the evidence and note well the diversity of interests in Virginia Beach. We also hope the high court will look at the results of this election. If the justices do that, then there is no reason why the plan should not stand for many years to come.

We congratulate the winners in the Obviously the surfers themselves must engage in every possible safety practice, and they must obey the rules and regulations set up by the city of Virginia Beach. Otherwise they must be prosecuted, as many have already been.

The big problem is, of course, not enough for so many surfers, particularly on a nice, sunny day when the "sur's up". And we do not know the answer. Two areas have been provided now, at Steel Pier and at Sandbridge. They should take care of a large number of surfers, and we hope that the problems are solved, at least for the time being. But we are not being optimistic. We expect new problems as the sport continues to grow. The surfers feel they are being "put upon" by not having enough area, but they sometimes do not realize the problems that the city has in providing enough area.

The surfers, obviously, cannot ply the waves in front of motels, hotels and residential areas, because of the danger to swimmers. This leaves very little area, therefore compounding the problem. The surfers themselves have been most co-operative for the most part. They have policed themselves, keeping out an element which causes trouble. They have also seen that most of their number keeps within the law. And they have accepted their lot relatively well. We cannot, however, blame them for complaining that they do not have enough designated space for surfing. Unfortunately, we know of no solution to the problem, and it is likely to get worse.

We can only suggest that everyone involved work together to keep the problem from getting out of hand and work toward an equitable solution.

Students And Jobs

There are many unemployed high school students this summer who would like to be employed. Unfortunately they could not find jobs. The reasons they could not find jobs are varied, and in many cases, the fault lies with the student.

Long before school closed this year the Virginia Beach branch of the Virginia Employment Service worked closely with school officials in efforts to find jobs for students wishing to be employed this summer. The program was highly successful; and the idea is to be complimented and supported with the hope that even more can be done next year.

It is obvious, however, that there are bound to be more students than jobs, since summer help in too many cases in Virginia Beach, is obtained from other areas of the state and even from other states. We do not understand why so many Virginia Beach merchants and businessmen hire students from other areas so readily when there are willing workers living here.

In other cases it is the student's fault if he cannot find a job. Too often he is looking for a part-time job with little or no exertion required and with top executive pay.

We admit that jobs can be hard to find, but if every effort is made by the students, we feel certain that a job of some kind can be found. If not, there are always plenty of enterprising jobs to be done in neighborhoods by those not afraid of hard work.

HE COULD USE A HELPING HAND

The New Recreational Area

We congratulate the city fathers of Virginia Beach on a job well done. Less than a year after purchasing a new ocean and bay area, at Sandbridge for recreational purposes, the park is open, at least on a limited scale. The new park, to be known as Little Island recreation area, has been opened to the public, but the weather last weekend was not co-operative.

The new area, so far, does not have a great deal to offer, but there is plenty of beautiful beach, a surfing area, a place for picnics, a concession stand and the like. In the near future, bathhouse facilities will be provided. There is a good road to the new area and there are good parking facilities. There are big plans ahead for the area, including possibly a museum, and we look forward to the eventual completion of the new area.

From the day we first heard the area was to be purchased by the city we were delighted. Now that part of it is actually open to the public, we are even more delighted. We urge all citizens of the city to take advantage of this ideal setting for recreation.

Virginia Beach Summer Police

Some years ago city officials came up with the idea of hiring law students during the summer to augment the regular police force in Virginia Beach. This has been a highly successful endeavor and in the years the program has been in effect, a number of fine young men have been a part of it.

This year there are law students from colleges in Virginia, North Carolina, and Tennessee, all carefully screened and chosen from a large number of applicants. Ten of the more than thirty serving this summer also were on the special police force last year. Only the very best applicants are selected each year, and high caliber police work has been the result.

Actually this summer police force, made up of law students, is a fine thing. It not only gives the law students an opportunity to work under excellent conditions in a related field of their intended profession.

The young policemen are not just put on the streets and told to act like policemen. They are trained as carefully as possible in short training classes in the facets of their job. They are instructed in such subjects as criminal law, arrest procedures, search and seizure, court procedures, Virginia Beach ordinances, warrants, traffic, use of firearms and report writing, use of police radios, juvenile problems.

The program has been a good one for all concerned and we take great pride in it.

the like, sponsored by and for the benefit of religious, charitable, educational and civic groups instead of the $300 plus percentage of proceeds paid by commercial shows.

Several other water line applications and reports came up before council last night. City Manager R.

Russell Hatcher said the water lines planned in the Kempsville Providence Road area will be installed when the city finishes installing a water main to the subdivisions. The city will announce its second advertisement for bids for the project June 23.

The city first advertised for the lines last month. After the bid for the work is accepted work is expected to take about 200 days.

Council also authorized the Public Utilities Department to plan water service in Horsestead and the installation of water lines in Knob Hill, Avalon Terrace, Avalon Hills, Haven Heights, Kempsville Manor, Westview, Woodstock and Thalia.

Gull's-Eye View

BY N. S. CROW

How dare Mr. City Treasurer say that I was eating crow at the barbecue for Senator Robertson last Friday at Princess Anne High School. Just what does he think I am... a cannibal? If there was any crow eaten there by Mr. Downing or anyone else, I did not know it, and I was right there perched on top of the pavilion separating the two sides of the cafeteria.

All I had to eat though was barbecue at $1 a plate, and I'll have it known here and now I made a little contribution. I really resent all this talk about eating crow. Let's leave the personalities of my family out of this.

Mr. Etheridge says his friends and colleagues "convinced" him that Senator Spang was a good, capable, young man in last year's State Senate campaign. If it took practically all of 1965, poor Mr. Etheridge must have missed a powerful lot of convincing and those new found convictions could not be very strong.

Then Mr. Etheridge says that his friends and colleagues and last year's poll workers have "changed" I don't think they have changed. I think the City Treasurer misunderstood. They supported Mr. Spang for a regular berth in the minor leagues. They didn't say anything about sending him up to the majors. Really, Mr. Etheridge this is another election entirely, and I think it is a mighty important one. Of course, the ones last year were important too, but relatively speaking, a statewide office is surely more important than a state district office. And remember lots of winning pitchers in the minors can't make it in the major leagues.

Well, now that the City Council election is over and all the litter from the campaign posters and literature is cleaned up, my perch on Pacific Avenue should be providing a lot more senatorial activity scenery. Let's hope so. I want to hear some issues, not just how old one man is and how young another is. Come on, gang, let's get in there and fight a real good clean fight.

Gotta be going now. Have to see my cousin, Walter "Clay" Pigeon, who lives in the Dome. I want him to reserve me a good gull's eye view of the Robertson proceedings there Saturday.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Dear Sir:

Being a subscriber to the Virginia Beach Sun I always enjoy reading your Editorials. I especially enjoyed your Editorial in the June 8th edition concerning "The Welfare of our Children", thinking when I was reading it, how very true every word of it was. I live in the Princess Anne Plaza and have had to stop my car many times in order for the children to get out of the street, only to have them retreat to the curb and throw sticks and stones at the car.

However, during the school year, we of this area have another safety hazard regarding the parking of school buses. The drivers park in front of their own homes and this means they are directly across the driveway of the home across the street from them. This happened to us throughout the entire school year. This bus was not only a hazard to the traffic on this street (the street is too narrow to accommodate parked buses and the normal flow of traffic). Also during the week and especially week ends the children in the neighborhood are allowed to use the bus as a playhouse. Organization Sweep attacked public schools in Virginia Beach, Sidney Kellam, the operation of the City dredge, the seven-four apportionment plan under which they were running for Council, as well as city officials. One candidate, Roland Winter, a plaintiff in the reapportionment suit against Virginia Beach, based much of his unsuccessful campaign on personal attacks upon Frank W. Cox, Superintendent of Schools. Winter ran near the bottom in the vote standings.

Incumbent councilman, Larry Marshall, of Bayside, said, "The people have expressed approval of the Organization by this overwhelming vote of confidence."

In all but one precinct, the Organization ticket ran extremely strong, winning for each man in nearly every case. Only in the Plaza-Malibu precinct, the home precinct of two of the independents, were five of the Organization men defeated by more than a few votes. One Organization candidate when he saw the results of the Plaza-Malibu precinct, beamed broadly and said, "Things are really looking up there." The anti-Organization forces in the past have polled better majorities in that precinct.

Lois Nelson, the only Republican in the race, Wednesday sent best wishes to the newly elected members and thanked her supporters for the "help, understanding, loyalty and love" extended to her.

The councilmen elected Tuesday are supposed to serve a four-year term; however this is not definite at this time. The plan under which they were elected still faces a test in the U. S. Supreme Court. The plan, accepted by the U.S. District Court and overturned on appeal by the U.S. Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals, was drawn up by city officials and passed by the Virginia General Assembly. City officials contend it does not fit the one man, one vote mandate of the Supreme Court. The plaintiffs disagree.

One Organization supporter said that Tuesday's election proved the worth of the seven-four plan beyond the shadow of a doubt. He said, "Now everyone can see it works and works well."

In less than a month there will be another election in Virginia Beach, this one the Democratic primary for both U.S. Senators. After the heavy Organization vote Tuesday, many political buffs were saying the solidarity throughout the city could be an important factor in choosing incumbents Robertson and Byrd.

According to Terry, the classes, which began at 8:30 a.m. each of the school mornings, were held June 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 14th, 15th and 16th. Today was the last class day.

During the first day of classes, the men were given an introduction to and purpose of the school and were welcomed by Police Chief James E. Moore and City Manager W. Russell Hatchett.

The students, after the welcome, heard a lecture on Virginia criminal laws.

V.B. Toll Road

VIRGINIA BEACH—E. H. Orange, district supervisor for the Hampton Roads Tunnel Commission said earlier this week that the traffic using Virginia Beach Boulevard will be rerouted while construction crews are building a section of a box culvert at the Laskin Road overpass.

Orange said "New traffic on west bound business 58 (Virginia Beach Boulevard) will be rerouted from Oceana via First Colonial Road to Laskin Road at Hilltop."

"A delayed green traffic signal will be installed at Hilltop to take care of the left turning vehicles," he said.

"Local traffic will continue to use the road as far west as the interchange and at the same time a short detour will be used in the interchange for Laskin Road traffic," Orange said.

Presidents' Council Holds Summer Workshop

HOLDS SUMMER WORKSHOP NORFOLK — "Work" was the key word expressed for the consumption of the more than sixty ladies present for the President's Council Summer Workshop of the Virginia Beach Federation of Women's Clubs, Tidewater District, held last Thursday at the Lake Wright Motor Lodge.

A short business meeting was held during which a report from the executive committee asked that the Council recommend the sponsoring clubs help establish a Camp Civilian Building Fund to be used to build a cabin which may cost approximately $10,000 and which would be raised over a 3-year period. After some discussion as to how and who will raise the money, the recommendation was adopted.

It was also recommended that the Federation endorse the pilot project of the Norfolk Junior Chamber of Commerce regarding the enlightenment of junior and high school students to the dangers of venereal diseases, which was carried.

Mrs. Cam Farmer brought to the attention of the clubs present an appeal for funds to help the Norfolk Museum purchase the Renoir painting, "Thought in Norfolk," she reminded the members, "This museum is really an area museum for the entire Tidewater district for we all enjoy its many facets of culture." She is the one to contact in regard to this project.

Named To Comm.

VIRGINIA BEACH . . . Mrs. Peggy Thomas, chairman of the Women's Committee of the Norfolk-Portsmouth chapter of the American Institute of Banking has named Flora Halvorsen of the First & Merchants National Bank in Virginia Beach to her committee for the 1955-56 term.

The first meeting of the committee will be a "get acquainted" affair at the home of the vice-chairman, Carol M. Crouch on Tyler Crescent in Portsmouth.

The meeting will be held tonight.

ident of Norfolk Juniors, had as her topic "Start Effective Reporting Now," and she spoke from the experience of receiving incomplete and ineffective reports from the various member clubs. She gave tips on how to make the club reports more complete, and reminded those, whose job it becomes to make out the yearly reports, that the report is the basic evaluation of what the club has done for the past year.

Mrs. Walter L. Thomas of Newport News, first vice president of Tidewater District, VFWC, spoke on "Increasing Membership." She asked the members to ask themselves some very pertinent questions in regard to their own club's welcome and duties given to both new and old members within their respective clubs.

Following the luncheon, Mrs. Thomas installed the newly elected officers who will serve the Federation for the coming year. They are Mrs. James F. Groome of the Bayside Junior Woman's Club, president; Mrs. Howard M. Morgan of Alice Kyle Woman's Club, vice president; and Mrs. Harley Pruitt of Cradock Junior Woman's Club, secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Leroy Isabel of the Real Estate Board spoke urgently to the women about the proposed bill in congress which would restrict a property owner from choosing a renter or buyer. "Our right to choose and not be intimidated by undesirable persons is one of our precious freedoms which we will lose if we do not get in touch with our representatives in congress and let them know how we feel about this type of legislation." She named some of the congressmen to write, and urged the ladies to do it immediately before this one more freedom passes away because "we did nothing."

"To your representative, tell him you are against HR-1475; and to your senator express your disapproval of S-3295," she urged, "And be sure to let him know you are a registered voter!"

Only two of the scheduled workshop speakers were able to be present. Mrs. J. K. Scarbrough who was to speak on "Moral Laxity in Youth" was absent because of illness.

FIRST DISTRICT CONGRESSMAN Thomas N. Downing addressed the Robertson barbecue at Princess Anne High School. He was introduced by State Senator William P. Kellam, of Virginia Beach.

said that Robertson's seniority in the U. S. Senate and the Senator's ruggedness provide "a matchless combination for Virginia's future". Downing also praised Robertson's career in the Senate, especially in the field of foreign affairs.

Les Lam and Dr. Ira Hancock, Robertson's co-campaign managers in Virginia Beach said they were pleased with the turnout at the banquet, but felt that many stayed away because of the threat of inclement weather. More tickets were sold to the $1 a plate barbecue than were taken up at the time, they said Lam told the audience that the only issue in the campaign is Robertson's age, but said "an experienced man in Washington can do many things a man of 30 or 30 cannot do." Robertson, who is being challenged by State Senator William B. Spang in the July Democratic Primary, is 79.

Saturday morning, Robertson will tour facilities at Camp Pendleton and visit National Guard training units here for two weeks' encampment. He will also take part in the usually colorful Governor's Day ceremonies.

At the Dine at 4 p.m. the Youth Committee for Robertson will be announced, according to a campaign spokesman, and the Senator will address the committee. The spokesman says a large turnout is expected at the rally.

Marine Pfc. Ronald W. Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Jackson of 5600 Cayuga Court, Virginia Beach, has reported to Marine Attack Squadron 994 for duty and will work on the flight line as a plane captain.

Navy Lt. (jg) William A. Palmer Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Palmer of 1307 Lakeside Road, Virginia Beach, took part in Operation Jack Stay in the Rung Sat Special Zone, 16 miles southwest of Saigon, South Vietnam.

The auditions will be held Sunday, June 19, from 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Monday, June 20, from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. at the theatre, located at 3617 Argonne Avenue in Norfolk. "Guys and Dolls" will open at Cavalier Dinner Playhouse the end of July and run until September first, according to Jones.

A&P What every new bride should know!

Let's see!

His shirts... starch or no starch?

His eggs... sunnyside up or over lightly?

His coffee... a bit on the strong side?

His steak... medium-rare or rare-rare?

His favorite pie... apple or cherry?

Knowing these things is important.

Knowing this is important, too: A&P is a store you can trust.

Brides have been doing it for over a century.

As a matter of fact, nobody has ever had more brides walk down their aisle than A&P.

We think it's important for brides, new or old, to find a store they can trust, to know that everything they buy is totally guaranteed.

That's A&P Policy.

No matter who makes it, if A&P sells it, A&P guarantees it.

Is this a good reason for shopping A&P? It's one of many.

DORIS PADRICK'S

Fathers come in all shapes and sizes and ages and personality. But fathers are funny... some are funny (ha! ha!), others are funny (misunderstood)... Fathers are Father, Daddy, Dad, Pop, or maybe "my old man"... but whatever he is, he likes to be appreciated. And the ones who snort the loudest about the "non-sense of Father's Day" are the ones who hurt the most if you take them at their word, and ignore their special needs.

To figure out your father, find words that begin with F, and everyday rut. Be a friend to him on "his day"... if he likes go on from there. Fathers who are fun like fun that gets them out of the everyday rut. Be a friend to him on "his day"... if he likes people, plan a day at the beach. Even if he doesn't swim, eh will be fascinated with the frolicking on the sand and in the water. Maybe he is the fabulous type who is fearless—fix him up with spending on himself will be released to find a foolish bit of finery water.

Maybe he is the fabulous type who is fearless—fix up with rides at the amusement park. The Ferris Wheel will really get him up in the world!

Got a fat father who enjoys a feast? Let him forget his diet and cholesterol for this one day. Feed him at one of our many fashionable restaurants... or fix a man-size picnic with his favorite cold drinks and take him for a refreshing field trip away from the frantic facades.

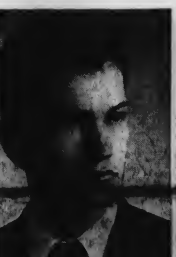

Fathers who are fastidious about fashion but frugal about spending on himself will be pleased to find a foolish bit of finery as a present or a flashy fedora to keep the sun off his frowning face.

Those who fight fatigue and look forward to freedom from stress will appreciate a day founded on family absenteeism. Everybody go somewhere else and let him read his paper, fumble over his coffee, raid the refrigerator, and forget the shaving... Firm fathers who inflict discipline could be surprised by every one facing up to individual responsibilities and showing faith in his facility for fair play. You might go one step further and really floor him by refraining from being flippant about his foresight.

Fishing goes with fathers too. Go with him if he wants company. Stay home and let him go with other fishing fathers if that is his special delight.

Don't fail your father. He's a fellow human being with many faults and feeling. Sunday is his day. He's your father. Think about him.

And a word to the wives—never forget, the father of your children is first of all, your husband. Husband begins with H... keep him happy!

SECTION B

Awards, Presentation Held

LITTLE CREEK—Eighteen Amphibious Force officers and enlisted men have received commendations signed by the Secretary of the Navy and two admirals for achievements ranging from combat in Vietnam to desk work in Norfolk.

Vice Admiral Charles K. Duncan, commander of the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force, presented the commendations at a ceremony at the Little Creek Amphibious Base.

The Bronze Star, highest of the awards, went to Marine Major Frederick E. Grube. He was decorated for "meritorious achievement in connection with operations against insurgent communist (Viet Cong) forces in the republic of Vietnam while serving with special landing force from June 18, 1963 to March 8, 1965."

The Navy Commendation Medal was awarded to Navy Captain Ferris L. French, Jr., SC, USN, amphibious force senior supply officer. Captain French was cited for outstanding "professional guidance and technical leadership of approximately 150 officers of the Supply Corps, resulting in the development of highly motivated and extremely capable young supply officers." He was also cited for his "new and advanced ideas, many of which have been incorporated as force policy; has applied the tenets of scientific management to the fiscal and budgetary problems related to shipboard supplies and equipment; has adopted automatic data processing techniques to previously impracticable problems with fresh and effective results."

Two Navy Unit Commendations were presented, one to Lieutenant Commander Leo A. Higgins who served aboard the auxiliary gas-turbine tender USS Comstock, which distinguished itself in support of U.S. forces in the waters off Vietnam. The second Navy Unit Commendation went to Lieutenant Junior Grade Fillmore J. Delaur, Jr., who was previously assigned to Attack Carrier Air Wing Seven, aboard the attack aircraft carrier USS Independence, serving off the coast of Vietnam.

Letters of commendation from Admiral Thomas H. Moorer, Commander in Chief, U.S. Atlantic Fleet went to Commander Raymond S. Howell, Jr., Commander Donald B. Gordon, and Lieutenant Commander Walter J. Blaszczak for their efforts in reactivating 11 reserve tank landing ships for duty in Vietnam. These three men helped coordinate the refitting of these ships in a period of two months.

Vice Admiral Duncan presented letters of commendation to Captain Eugene C. Barnhardt, III, for his outstanding devotion to duty in "completing several important projects and studies pertaining to amphibious operations, organizations and problems. The careful analysis and outstanding recommendations resulting from these tasks have contributed directly to a progressive increase in the readiness and administrative efficiency of the Amphibious Force."

Other PhilLant letters of commendation were awarded to LT Philip J. Rager; LT Arthur S. Tribble, SC; LT Leonard G. Davis; LT Frederick E. Perrill, SC; LT (jg) James F. Ahlrich, Jr.; LT (jg) Michael W. Murtagh; Chief Storekeeper Fred J. Artrip; Chief Storekeeper Richard V. Bjorn; and Disbursing Clerk First Class Jack A. Bedrosian. These efforts in reactivating LSTs of LST Reserve Squadron Two.

A PhilLant letter of commendation also was presented to Master Chief Hospital Corpsman John William Rickman. His citation showed his outstanding performance "directly contributed to the high state of medical readiness of ships within the force."

'Get Me That Frogman': HHH

LITTLE CREEK—Because the vice-president of the United States had an idea while he was watching a movie of a space craft recovery, Lieutenant Junior Grade Chris Bent of Underwater Demolition Team 21 completed an unusual assignment in May.

"Get me that frogman," Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey reportedly said.

Soon after, LT (jg) Bent was flying from St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands to Washington, D.C. to take part in a two-week series of briefings for young Americans.

Intended to dramatize the story of government, the briefings began before 1,300 high school leaders from across the nation. The briefers came from the State Department, Department of Defense and the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Emphasis was on youthful briefers, a fact not lost on the audiences of high school students. Most were juniors and seniors. After the first big day, the audiences ran from 300 to 600 persons, from 48 states.

The vice-president, who took part in the briefings, also took the briefing team through the White House on a special tour. The team, which included movie stars Richard Chamberlain and Gregory Peck, also met wives of Cabinet officials, top ranking military leaders and diplomats from nations of the Far East. When LT (jg) Bent, who is 26 and comes from Washington, D.C., ended the series of briefings, he was back to St. Thomas for more training with UDT-21. The team returned to Little Creek on May 26.

The Story Of Rabies

In the early stages of Furious rabies the animal may appear normal, even be friendly and affectionate than usual, then the animal becomes irritated; when picked up, it will try to get away and if not promptly freed, it will bite savagely. This is the way many children are bitten. Children should never be encouraged to be friendly with a strange dog no matter how "nice" the "doggie" happens to be.

A dog in the early stages of the disease begins to snap at flies, chase chickens, cats and other domestic animals. He has an urge to roam, wanders all over the neighborhood and countryside, becomes vicious and bites everything that gets into his way, including persons, animals, livestock or inanimate objects like houses, fences, auto tires, etc. In this state there is a tendency to eat sticks, straw and other digestible items. The eyes are glassed and always open and the voice changes to a peculiar howl-like bark. In a few days paralysis will develop, shown in a staggering, wobbling gait and drooped lower jaw. Then paralysis extends to the rest of the body. Finally, the animal cannot get up and soon dies. These are the symptoms of Furious Rabies. This form of the disease may last from 4 to 9 days.

In Dumb Rabies the early symptoms consist of sleepiness, melancholia, and the animal will try to hide and get away to itself. There is usually no inclination to bite unless the animal is disturbed. Paralysis of the throat, jaw, voice and leg muscles follow quickly. The jaws gape, swallowing becomes painful and impossible and the animal stops eating. There is no viciousness or irritability in this passive type of rabies, but persons may become infected by the animal infected or giving him medicine. Within two or three days, the paralysis increases to such a degree that the animal goes into a coma and dies.

RABIES IN OTHER ANIMALS

The CAT usually has the Furious type rabies and is very vicious. It generally hides in dark places or under bushes from which it will spring to attack persons or animals or any object that attracts its attention. CATTLE usually have the Furious type rabies, but rarely bite. Persons are exposed to rabies while attempting to administer to a "sick cow." They are nervous, restless and aggressive. Frequently they will paw the ground and butt into other animals and objects. They may indulge in fits of bellowing. The paralysis which sets in is much the same as described for dogs. HORSES and MULES usually show the Furious type rabies and are very vicious. They become restless and excitable, pawing the ground, and kicking at other animals and moving objects. They will bite without cause and frequently will tear off bits of their own flesh. The lips are sometimes drawn back, bearing the teeth and allowing slobber to run from the corners of the mouth. Paralysis develops rapidly.

The incidence of rabies in FOXES has been high in Virginia. The rabid fox shows no fear of people and will invade farm yards in daytime, attacking dogs, livestock and people. The mouth may be kept open, the animal may slobber. Whenever a fox loses its natural fear of dogs and man, it should be strongly suspected of having rabies.

A Good Mind

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."
— Philippians 2:5

Have you ever given thought to the expression which points out that "what you think you are"?

Think happy thoughts and your attitude toward life is certain to be brighter and cheerful. Look for gloom and you will find it.

It follows that our life becomes enriched when we turn our thoughts to God; when we keep in mind the high example of the dedicated life of Christ upon earth.

Keep God in your life, every day.

One day practically every home will have Flameless central air-conditioning.

why wait?

Flameless central electric air conditioning systems, it's one of the best investments you can make in your home's modern comfort and salability. A flameless central system can be easily financed with a home improvement loan through your bank. Your VEPCO-authorized Comfort Conditioning Contractor can install it in approximately a week. And once you start coming home to a delightfully cool house, you'll just wish you hadn't waited so long.

What kind of a guy is a Vice President and Investment Officer of a bank like Seaboard? A guy with the nickname "Skip" who was born in Newark, New Jersey. And was graduated with a Masters Degree in Business Administration from New York University.

An interesting kind of guy who likes to hunt. And fish. An ardent yachtsman. An amateur wildlife artist. Skip is first vice president of the Izak Walton League of Norfolk and Chairman of recent "Sports Shows", the American Legion Post #35, an elder and Sunday School teacher at Squires Memorial Presbyterian Church, member of Norfolk Sports Club and the Virginia Beach Anglers Club.

Ship Tested

LITTLE CREEK—An Atlantic Fleet amphibious ship is the smallest ship yet tested as a space flight recovery ship.

Operating in Lynhaven Roads off Virginia Beach the amphibious transport dock USS LaSalle was tested for its ability in handling helicopters, space flight communications, and recovery personnel.

Primary recovery ships in the past have been aircraft carriers like the USS Wasp and amphibious assault ships like the USS Boxer. The LaSalle, which can operate six helicopters from its fantail flight deck, is one of the newest types of amphibious ships. Launched in August 1963, it is 530 feet long and can cruise at better than 20 knots.

Unlike NASA's Gemini and Apollo programs which use equatorial orbits, the Manned Orbital Laboratory (MOL) program will use a more complicated polar orbit.

Where a single end-of-mission landing area is planned for a Gemini or Apollo mission, both primary Apollo and secondary Atlantic landing zones are to be used in the MOL program. They are required because of the relative movement of the earth in the case of polar orbits.

The test of the LaSalle results from an expected need for more primary recovery ships.

While Gemini and Apollo landings have been at Cape Kennedy, the Vandenberg Air Force Base in California will be used as the launch site for the MOL program. During the launch phase, MOL recovery ships will stretch south from California to below the equator.

A number of these ships must be capable of launching several helicopters. With its speed, helicopter and communications capacities, and extensive troop quarters which can be used for space flight personnel, an amphibious transport dock appears to meet all needs.

NASA personnel helped conduct the test, along with personnel from the Atlantic Fleet Amphibious Force and the Manned Space Craft Recovery Force Office at Norfolk.

Notes from Your Agricultural Agent

E. R. "DICK" COCKRELL, JR.

The world's oldest and most respected short course of its kind will be held July 10-14 at Virginia Tech.

It will be the 39th Egg Quality School sponsored by the Northeastern Poultry Producers Council, Virginia was last host to the school in 1953. Cooperating in conducting it will be Virginia Tech and the Virginia Department of Agriculture.

Attending will be students from most of the 14 Northeastern states, as well as a few from other parts of the country. Both classroom and laboratory instruction will be offered by a faculty of 30, drawn from the U. S. Department of Agriculture and the land-grant universities in the Northeastern states.

The school offers an unusual opportunity to obtain the best information available on egg grading, egg quality standards and various factors affecting production and maintenance of egg quality. It is of special value to producers and processors who market eggs at retail outlets, and to persons employed in federal-state quality control.

This year, the curriculum has again been completely revised. Additional emphasis has been given to mass scanning; hand candling has been virtually eliminated except as a teaching tool. Demonstrations and lectures have been added on pasteurization, bacterial and chemical contamination, quality maintenance, increased shelf life of egg products, economic aspects of in-line processing, latest developments in egg plant equipment and layout.

Director of the school will be Dr. Cecil E. Howes, head of the poultry science department at Virginia Tech. Richard I. Ammon of Trenton, N. J., NEPPCO's executive director, will be administrator. Carl H. Watts of the Maine Department of Agriculture will be laboratory supervisor.

Among the subjects to be covered will be: "The Wonderful Egg," "Factors Affecting the Production of Quality," "Checks in a Quality Controlled Program," "Conserving Egg Quality of Shell Eggs."

Also, "Maintaining Quality and Increasing Shelf Life of Egg Products," "Egg Cleaning," "Egg Plant Equipment and Layout," "Volume-Equipment Relationship to Processing Costs," "Bacterial and Chemical Contamination," "Pasteurization of Eggs."

Reservations for the school, or additional information can be obtained from the NEPPCO office at 10 Rutgers Place, Trenton, N. J., or from the Virginia Tech Poultry Department, Blacksburg, Virginia 24061.

Flag Day At Fort Story

FORT STORY — The B.P.O.E. Lodge 2208 of Virginia Beach last Sunday sponsored THE FLAG DAY PROGRAM, in a colorfully impressive historical ceremony at Fort Story.

The United States Naval School of Music, Amphibious Base, rendered the Star Spangled Banner as the Elks' Exalted Ruler and officers, together with the officers of the Women's Auxiliary took their places seated around the famous Memorial Cross. The program was introduced by quotations from the Elks Creed, followed by a prayer by Chaplain Winfred M. Grimm, of the Lodge. In white coats with the jeweled necklace of purple, silver and gold and the Auxiliary wearing sashes with their offices embroidered in purple, the Elks watched the entire panorama of the history of the American flag from 1775 to 1953.

The pine tree flag, presented by the American Legion Honor Guard, The Stars, Flag carried by Boy Scout Troop 412, The Continental Flag of St. Andrew by the Norfolk Police Department Honor Guard, The Congress Colors (Betsy Ross Flag) by the U. S. Marine Corps Honor Guard LEFTU, Amphibious, the Second Congress Flag borne by the U. S. Navy Honor Guard N. A. B. and the Fifty Star Flag by the U. S. A. Reserve Guard Fort Story, were all presented before the Speaker's Stand on which sat Sidney S. Kellam, Trustee, Major Gen. Thomas Norfleet Griffin USA RET and Mayor Frank Dusch.

The Elks' Chorus, with Frank Ferrigno as Director, Mrs. Ferrigno as Pianist and John B. Delis baritone soloist did an outstanding job with the music.

Mayor Dusch introduced Gen. Griffin who spoke on the solemnity of the Shrine, the heritages that was the pride of Tidewater, and as one who knew his subject, he stressed the point of men and women who had fought and died since 1775 under these flags fluttering so proudly in the afternoon breeze. "We must stay on tunity prepared," he stated, "and those of you who bear these flags have not burned your draft cards nor been fearful of the fight for freedom. Old Glory bows to no individual! After World War II we were told bring the boys home. Had we kept up our defenses abroad we would not have lost Cuba and there would have been no fighting in Greece or Korea."

Griffin finished with the poignant poem "In Flanders Fields" as lips moved in accord with the familiar words.

Sidney S. Kellam responded briefly mentioning the hellish cost of war in lives and money and the overwhelming price of victory in preserving liberty. "Man's inventive genius," he said, "have pushed space and time to nothingness. We are all one under God and unless in God we trust and in His Laws America will pass like the Moes and Persians, Rome and Greece. Our liberty is not a static thing—it must be repurchased again and again and that the same flag that flew over Valley Forge, Ticonderoga, Gettysburg, Verdun, two Jims, the Battle of the Bulge and Korea flies over our boys today. May it ever fly as the emblem of obedience to the laws of God."

Brother Guy G. Narter was the Narrator. Joseph F. Curran, Exalted Ruler, gave the Elks Tribute to the Flag, and the officers and members of the Lodge constructed the Floral Belle of Liberty. A wreath of red roses for courage, a wreath of white lilies for purity, a wreath of violets for remembrance were topped by a green Cross with eleven bell stars symbolizing the occasion so dear to the heart of every Elk.

Eighth Class Ends Friday

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Virginia National Guard will graduate its eighth class Friday from its Officer Candidate School, boosting the number of home-trained officers toward the 300 mark.

The ceremonies at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon will be the last major event during the two-week period of field training for approximately 1,600 troops from Tidewater, central and southside Virginia.

A class of 21 young men will receive their diplomas and commissions as second lieutenants from Major General Paul M. Booth, the adjutant general of Virginia, after an address by State Senator William P. Kellam of Virginia Beach. Brigadier General Marvin T. Ball, commanding general of the 107th Artillery Brigade of Sandston, will administer the oaths of office.

The practice of affording enlisted members of the National Guard the opportunity of taking officer training while continuing their normal civilian occupations was inaugurated eight years ago and has provided a major source of officer material for the Guard since that time. A number of the graduates have moved on to important assignments in this country and abroad, including service in Vietnam. The course includes weekend training in Richmond, the school headquarters, and two summer field training periods of two weeks each.

Brigadier General Edward M. Hudgins of Richmond and Lt. Col. William P. McCaddin, also of Richmond, deputy commander.

Stones Here Fourth Of July

VIRGINIA BEACH — Civic Center director Sam Scott announced earlier this week that the Rolling Stones from England will perform two shows July 4 at the Dome.

Scott said the shows will be held at 7:30 and 10 p.m.

The "Stones" will follow Victor Borge who will present two shows July 2 and 3.

Other July shows include: Dave Gardner, July 10; Duke Ellington, July 16; the Beach Boys, July 29; the Kiwanis Jazz Festival, July 30.

"Besides all this," Scott said, "beginning July 6 there will be a 'Beach Ball' every Wednesday night, surfing movies July 5, 19, and two dates in August, and a display of teenage art."

In August, the Dome will offer the Miss Virginia Beach Pageant the 5th; Peter Nero, the 6th; the Sunnys on the 19th and the Tidewater Dance Guild will meet there on the 26th.

Scott said he hopes to have many varied summer programs this year, for young and old alike.

United Fund To Help In Beach Hospitality House

VIRGINIA BEACH—The new hospitality house in the basement of the old General Hospital of Virginia Beach is gaining momentum. The site was the only thing that was certain for the summer until the United Fund agreed to help out considerably.

The new home away from home for servicemen both from this area and from other areas at 25th and Arctie came about as the result of much hard work and the co-operation of the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association and the Virginia Beach Recreation Department.

In the past the ministers have underwritten the operation of such a hospitality house in Virginia Beach, but there has never been a large operation or a permanent home. The hospital is now available for servicemen both from this area and from other areas at 25th and Arctie came about as the result of much hard work and the co-operation of the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association and the Virginia Beach Recreation Department.

F.O.P. Will Meet Here

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Fraternal Order of Police of Virginia Inc. will hold its annual conference beginning this weekend at Virginia Beach, according to conference committee Chairman Lt. Harry Terry.

Terry, who is in charge of training here at Virginia Beach Police Department, said the conference will begin Sunday morning with registration at the lobby of the Cavalier Hotel.

Later that afternoon the State F. O. P. Board of Directors will meet in the Colonial Room. The evening will be rounded out with a reception and cocktails at the pool lounge.

Monday, Terry said, the organization will hold its business meeting and a banquet and dance that night.

At the banquet, he said, the members of the 17 lodges represented will hear an address by U. S. Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr. The final business session and another meeting of the Board will be held Tuesday morning, Terry said.

He said the Ladies' Auxiliary will hold its fourth biennial meeting during the conference.

$10,000 - A 'Richard Award'

VIRGINIA BEACH — When Edward C. Richard was trained in the critical rating of Aviation Fire Control Technician, he had no idea how critical his job could get. Monday he found out when the Navy paid him $10,745 to stay on his job with Ocean-based Attack Squadron 35.

Richard is an Aviation Fire Control Technician First Class (AQ1). He is trained in the science of maintaining the sensitive instruments which determine the accuracy of the Navy's new A-6 Intruder aircraft. It took the Navy almost three years to train him, and they don't want to lose his know-how to a civilian concern.

To keep Richard and other highly trained technicians of the more than twenty-five critical ratings, the variable re-enlistment bonus system was initiated as an aid to retention. Under the program, men who have been trained in the critical skills are paid multiples of the normal "shipping over" bonus they would receive upon re-enlistment.

The payment of the variable re-enlistment bonus is figured from the amount a man is paid each month. In a non-critical rating, this amount is multiplied by the number of years stated on the re-enlistment form.

With the new system, however, three categories exist within the critical ratings. The category in which a rating is placed depends upon the shortage of technicians in the rating. Richard's rating is on the top priority list.

Richard's monthly base pay as a first class petty officer is $330. Since he is re-enlisting for six years, his non-critical bonus is $1980. But when the variable scale of $9900 jumps to the sum of $9900, Richard added to that figure the travel claims and other pay he was to receive for extra training assignments, and the total broke the $10,000 mark.

Richard seemed happy with the amount he received. "It's not quite up to Quarterback Joe Namath's standards," he smiled, "but I'm happy with it." He added that he's wife thought it was a pretty good days work too.

Wreck Kills Three Men

VIRGINIA BEACH—Three people have died as the result of a single-car accident on Salem Road Saturday night.

The third victim of the crash, day at St. Paul Hospital in Norfolk.

Gerard Thomas Davis, 27, of Norfolk, Douglas Lee Hodges, 18, of Virginia Beach, and Williams were in a car headed east on Salem Road when it went out of control, struck a cement block in a ditch, overturned and burst into flames.

1600 Enrolled

VIRGINIA BEACH — About 1650 high school students are presently attending summer classes at F. W. Cox High School and Princess Anne School.

A spokesman for the schools said approximately 600 students are attending classes at Cox and another 1000 are enrolled in classes at Princess Anne.

Besides the high school students other children will be attending school this summer. With the $150,000 received from the federal government for Project Headstart, 225 pre-school-age children will be indoctrinated into the ways of elementary school life.

The city is also offering a remedial and the headstart classes are scheduled to get underway Monday.

Councilmen - Present And Future - Endorse Robertson

VIRGINIA BEACH—Incumbent Senator Willis Robertson picked up additional strong support in Virginia Beach over the weekend. The announcement of the new support was made by Democratic National Committeeman Sidney S. Kellam at a meeting of Robertson supporters at the Alan B. Shepard Civic Center Saturday.

Kellam told the approximately 200 persons there all members of the present Virginia Beach City Council and all of the newly elected council had endorsed the re-election of Senator Robertson over challenger William B. Spong of Portsmouth.

Senator Robertson attended the rally at the Dome where 110 members of the Virginia Beach Youth for Robertson committee were named. The committee is headed by H. Davis Gray, Jr., and William E. Culverhouse. The steering committee includes C. M. Baylor, Jr., Robert S. Cramer, Jr., John C. Peterson, Mrs. Evan J. McCorkle, Jr., and Dr. Alvin O. Jarrett.

The Senator thanked the members of the committee and said he was greatly pleased with all the support he has in Virginia Beach. The Lt. Governor of Virginia, Fred G. Pollard, First District Congressman Thomas N. Downing, State Senator William P. Kellam, Virginia Beach Mayor Frank A. Dusch, Del. E. B. Pendleton of Richmond and Delegate Inez Baker of Portsmouth also spoke briefly in behalf of the Senator.

Another brief address was made by Roger Davis, State co-chairman of the Youth for Robertson committee. The other co-chairman is a noted athlete, Ken Willard. Saturday night Senator Robertson addressed the closing session of the Association of Commonwealth Attorneys of Virginia. Robertson, a former Commonwealth's Attorney in his home county of Rockbridge, spoke to his audience on a subject very much in the news at present. He deplored the seeming laxity of enforcement of criminal law by the U. S. Supreme Court, and suggested possible ways of aiding the situation. He noted he would support pending legislation that has as its purpose the curbing of the rise of crime.

Three Beach Boys Elected

BLACKSBURG, VA. — Three boys from Kellam High School were elected to the State Farmer Degree, which is the highest degree the State Association Future Farmers of America can give.

Herman M. Dudley, Jr., son of Mr. & Mrs. Herman M. Dudley, Sr. of Back Bay Station, excelled in corn and hog production. He produced 484 bushels of corn on 3 acres for an average 161.3 bushels per acre. He raised 15 hogs and produced over one and one-half tons of pork. Herman was treasurer of his local F.F.A. Chapter. Board Hears HEW Letter

By Douglas Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH—Last week at the regular meeting of the Virginia Beach School Board a long awaited letter from the Department of Health, Educational Welfare was read following the roll call and the reading of the minutes of the last meeting.

The letter read, in part:

"After a careful review of all factors relevant to desegregation in the Virginia Beach schools and after giving every possible consideration to your situation, we find that the provision in May 2 resolution for the establishment of non-racial geographic attendance zones for twelve of your thirty-eight schools will be acceptable for the 1965-67 school year, provided, however, that your freedom of choice period is reopened for an additional 30 days in accordance with the revised guideline (see subparts B, D and E) for those children who will not be in attendance at the twelve schools which are being zoned."

The letter is signed by David S. Seeley, Assistant Commissioner, Equal Educational Opportunities Program.

The twelve schools referred to are: Oregon, Hermitage, King's Grant, Kingston, Luxford, Malibu, Old Donation, Pembroke, Shelton Park, Thalia, Thoroughgood, and Trantwood.

Some of the 12 schools already had some Negroes attending them.

Mrs. Vivian Taylor, representing the Joint Committees of the Union-Kempville P.T.A., Virginia Beach chapter of the NAACP and the Virginia Beach Council on Human Relations gave a spirited talk on the "short range" and "long range" programs of the school board for bridging the gap at Union-Kempville High School.

Three things entailed in "bridging the gap" are:

● The school is being considered for a junior high with an upgrading for vocational studies.

● It could be closed as an all Negro school.

City Praised In Washington

The Star's Travel Editor Charles Yaoborough "did Virginia Beach up proud" in his enlightening and comprehensive article. He discussed not only the sun-and-surf image of the city, but also the interesting things to do while visiting the "World's Largest Resort City." He mentioned the stimulating tours that can be taken, the surfing area, bicycling on the boardwalk, the fishing piers and their tournaments, the forthcoming horse show, the Boardwalk Art Show, and things to do after dark.

He was quite specific in mentioning certain clubs and restaurants featuring all the different types of entertainment and food and refreshments available here. Included in the discussion was the Dome, where name entertainment appears each summer.

As a matter of fact, the article made Virginia Beach so attractive, the Chamber of Commerce can expect a great influx of folks from the Washington area in Virginia Beach soon.

The city owes a debt of gratitude to Mr. Yaoborough for a fine article well presented.

Luncheon Enjoyed

VIRGINIA BEACH — A luncheon held at the Seaboard Club, Oceana Naval Air Station, was enjoyed recently by the members of the Navy Wives Club of America, Princess Ann No. 141, for their monthly social for June.

Captain D. C. Runsey II, Commanding Officer of Oceana Naval Air Station, spoke to those present concerning the importance and necessity of recruiting volunteers to help at the Well Baby Care Center at the Oceana Station Dispensary.

For information regarding meetings and membership in N.W.C.A., you may call Mrs. Irving Cehrs at 340-5866 or Mrs. Joseph Boggs at 497-6950. Prospective members and guests are always welcome.

In the 1890's ice was imported from Maine and brought to Norfolk by sailing ships.

Then H. D. Oliver had been serving Tidewater 25 years.

The old brick ice houses, were a familiar sight in Norfolk. The Kennebec Ice Company had offices at 47 Granby Street with its coal, ice and lumber yards behind. In those years H. D. Oliver had been serving the community for a quarter of a century, offering dignified, respected burial and funeral services. Today, a complete century of service enables them to provide the most complete facilities and handling of all your needs. A second handsome home is now open in Virginia Beach to serve that area. Call on H. D. Oliver.

She carried a white bible topped with white roses, baby breaths and flowing English ivy.

The groom, wearing a tuxedo, carried the bride down the aisle. The ceremony was officiated by Rev. Paul R. Best, Pastor, of the Chesapeake Methodist Church.

Golden Age Williamsburg Tour

VIRGINIA BEACH — The Golden Age Clubs of the Virginia Beach Recreation Department, Union Kempsville High School Division, had a most delightful tour of Colonial Williamsburg on Saturday.

The bus left the Seaboard Elementary School with members of Blackwater, Creeds and Nimmo groups on to Lynnhaven Baptist Church to pick up the Atlantic Park and the Lynnhaven group then to Bayside to pick up the Bay-side members.

Upon arrival at Williamsburg, the members went to this picnic area, had lunch and then began the tour.

The Powder Magazine was most interesting. They were able to see guns of all types — dating back two hundred years; the Millinery Shop; the First Drug Store; Operating Room and the Governor's Mansion.

Pictures were made of the group after the tour. A most enlightening day was spent by the entire 45 persons who made the tour.

Annual Picnic

VIRGINIA BEACH — Today is the day of the annual picnic for the Golden Years Club, and will be the final activity for this season. The next meeting will be held on the second Thursday in September.

The picnic will be held in Knott's Island, N. C. at the home of Bernie and Chris Murden. It is expected a group of 25 or more will attend.

The Golden Years group enjoyed a chartered bus trip recently to Nags Head, Wright Memorial, Lost Colony theatre and museum. The 30 members and guests report they all had a good time.

The Golden Years Club is open to all persons over 60 years of age and meets in the First Presbyterian church. There are no dues and no admission fees to the meetings. Its next meeting in September will be in the form of an Open House and will introduce the prospective members to the various forms of fun planned for now in their "golden years".

Slattum Graduates

VIRGINIA BEACH — Earl V. Slattum of Virginia National Bank has graduated from The Stonier Graduate School of Banking, which is conducted by The American Bankers Association at Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey. Slattum was one of 374 bank-ers from all sections of the United States who are members of the Class of 1966 honored at commencement exercises held in the university gymnasium.

The Stonier Graduate School of Banking, founded in 1908, is one of the world's outstanding schools for graduate study in the field of banking and finance. In order to qualify for graduation, Slattum attended three two-week resident summer sessions at the school, completed two years of intensive extension work at home, and wrote an original thesis on a banking or financial subject. During the past two weeks, besides completing his required class assignments, he passed an oral examination by a panel of authorities on the subject covered by his thesis.

The Stonier Graduate School offers major courses of study covering commercial banking, and trusts. Slattum majored in banking. Slattum is manager of VNB's Virginia Beach office at Atlantic and 30th Streets. He joined the bank in April, 1949 and was elected an assistant cashier in 1956. He has served as manager of the bank's Tidewater Drive and Suburban Park offices in Norfolk, and was elected a vice president in 1960 after being promoted to assistant vice president two years earlier. He attended Bryant College in Providence, Rhode Island, and has received the graduate certificate from the American Institute of Banking.

Med. Assistants Hold Banquet

By Douglas Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH — Last week at the Cape Colony Club approximately 70 Medical Assistants of the Tidewater Association met for their annual banquet. This dinner, preceded by a cocktail hour, is held each year in conjunction with the Portsmouth chapter.

Crisp white uniforms were superseded by dinner attire and the latest hair-dos. Each lady was presented a golden garter upon which was attached a miniature flag bearing "Virginia Beach, Va." This is the famous garter given by the Golden Garter whose owner is also an executive of the Cape Colony Club. The garters were slipped on with much giggling, laughter and pride.

Other favors given at the dinner were bath oil and guest saps.

Mrs. M. a c e l Wiscaver, assistant to Dr. William Stallings and Dr. Joe E. Burt, was social chairman and coordinated the affair. The state president, Mrs.

Lonie Kanak, added prestige to the occasion.

Mrs. Ruth Huddleston, attractively gowned in black, short length chiffon, was there as president of the Tidewater Association.

The centerpiece of vari-colored summer flowers on the head table was presented to Mrs. Huddleston by Mrs. Wiscaver in appreciation for her services to the club. Mrs. Wiscaver wore eyelet Navy blue with pearl accessories. Mrs. Kanak wore an aqua-gold short brocade.

Also among those attending were Mrs. Ruth Dive, Mrs. Anne Whitehurst and Mrs. Evelyn Camper.

Cuties Enjoy Byrd Coffee

By Douglas Barnes
VIRGINIA BEACH—Mrs. J. L. Strole Jr. and Mrs. R. L. Counselman, co-chairmen for the Women Workers for Harry F. Byrd Jr., held a coffee recently at the home of Mrs. Strole on Atlantic Avenue and organized their forces.

Attorney Frank Gallagher, Delegate Edward T. Caton III and State Senator William P. Kellam expressed gratitude for the turnout, explained the issues of the campaign and offered help with future gatherings. Gallagher and Caton head the Byrd Campaign Committee in Virginia Beach.

Kellam, nattily dressed in a grey-blue sport coat, referred to Byrd as one who did not vacillate in ideas nor in ideals and stated "He is a man consistent in friendship, religion and work; one whose loyalty and service always has been and always will be for the interests of those of his native state."

The purpose of these social hours is to relax over light refreshments, to discuss and to disagree on, without being disagreeable, the current political issues, the qualifications and the sound reasons for voting for the man who will best represent you in the U.S. Senate.

The Byrd Women received bumper stickers, pins, literature, etc., to circulate the Byrd work and on the attractively appointed table, June apples—tasty and tempting—sure winners in any culinary preparation prophesied victory on July 12 for another apple admirer.

Enjoying the kick-off coffee hour, ready, willing and able were: Mrs. George Aldridge, Mrs. L.C. Airman I/c Michael T. Miss Barclay—Unique Woman

By Douglas Barnes
VIRGINIA BEACH—Recently we heard the Rev. John Liles of the First Presbyterian Church speak on "Jesus, the Unique Man." He brought out the poignant fact that Christ was mortal, exceedingly human, tempted, lonely, forgotten, hated, but never-the-less He had the divine power of always helping His fellow man. He did not succumb to temptation; he did not hate and he gave His life for others. He was human, He was also a saint. His life was unique.

In the congregation sat a saintly woman, whose life has been unique. For 22 years she has taught the little ones in the Sunday school as well as running her well-known "Cypriote" private "Miss Barclay's School." In a sense the day belonged to her, because this was the day on which the entire congregation was present to recognize a noble woman who had given her prayers, energy, money and self to humanity.

Reporters are usually on the run; it was difficult to get a snapshot because person after person, men, women, and children kept coming up after the service to congratulate and embrace her, while some of the little ones shed tears. "Everybody loves somebody," slurs Dean Martin, "people without people are the loneliest people in the world," sings Barbara Streisand. A lot of people love Miss Barclay and she has and will have somebody all the time.

A petite, pert and utterly feminine woman, Lillian St. Clair Barclay has had through the years the power of decision, the tenacity of purpose and the love of people which has kept her youthful. A man who looked almost as old as Miss Barclay was heard to remark, "You taught me in nursery school and now you're teaching my children." A former teacher said of her, "Her experience and giving of all disciplinary problems is unique and kind."

she helped me with mine." A child, "We love Miss Barclay. She's kind and pretty." An elderly tourist from Canada, who attended the service said, "I want to meet that lady."

Miss Barclay's blue eyes were misty as she received the award. Her silver hair and navy blue attire with spotless white gloves and pearls were fitting for a true daughter of Virginia. Her head held high, she impressed us as one who had met and would meet life's crises with dignity.

Her citation read:
In appreciation of her 22 years of dedicated service to the Nursery department of the church school of the First Presbyterian church, dated June 12, 1966, it was signed by the Rev. John S. Liles, minister, and Howard E. Jones, Church school superintendent.

At this service, the church school staff was also dedicated in a responsive literary. Truly Miss Barclay is "sensitive to the needs of children everywhere," she "understands and helps children learn and grow," she "has patience and skill, breath of vision, self-discipline and joy and serenity" in personal living. May she survive as Frank Sinatra sings "to 165."

The Bankers And Robertson

Reprinted from the Richmond Times-Dispatch,
Sunday, June 19, 1966.

State Sen. William B. Spong is getting as much mileage as possible out of the fact that Virginia bankers are contributing to the campaign of his rival for the U. S. Senate, the veteran A. Willis Robertson. But the fact that bankers are backing Robertson seems no more significant than that labor union leaders are backing Spong, or that other groups are backing other candidates.

This sort of thing happens in every political contest. Groups which feel that a certain candidate represents their viewpoint more nearly than a rival aspirant, are always inclined to back that candidate.

And by the same token, they raise campaign funds for such a candidate. Every statewide contest for office, and many that are city-wide, require large sums of money to be spent legitimately on such things as headquarters rental and staffing, TV time, newspaper and billboard advertising, etc. Most candidates can't possibly meet these bills out of their own pockets.

It is no more reprehensible for bankers to raise money for their preferred candidate—in this case a man who has served for years with unusual ability as chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency—than it would be for the truckers, the retailers, the brewers, the hotel or restaurant owners to do likewise for a man whose views they approve. And it is no secret that various groups with a special interest in the outcome of campaigns do furnish funds in one way or another, for the political war chests of their favorite aspirants.

In the case of the Virginia bankers, they are frank to say that they regard Senator Robertson's continued presence as chairman of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency as highly important to the well-being of the nation. For if the ultra-liberal Senator Paul Douglas of Illinois were to take over that post, as a result of possible defeats this year for Senator Robertson and Senator Sparkman of Alabama, the consequences could, indeed, be catastrophic to the continuance of sound banking practices, as well as to a sound currency.

In seeking to embarrass Senator Robertson, Mr. Spong has issued a sworn statement as to the amount of money raised so far for his campaign—a total of over $68,000. He states, and we believe him, that no more than $300 of this total was raised from labor union sources.

However, it should be borne in mind that labor unions frequently make their most important contributions to political candidates without providing any cash donations. What they prefer to do, and it is often most effective, is to publish and distribute literature at their own expense, supporting the candidate of their choice, and to pay for hiring campaign workers to ring doorbells in his behalf, and to get out the vote on election day. All this can cost large sums, but none of it appears on the financial statement of the candidate who is the beneficiary.

Since Mr. Spong has been endorsed by the Virginia AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE)—as has Armistead L. Boothe, who is running for the seat now held by Sen. Harry F. Byrd, Jr.—the extent of that agency's contribution to their respective candidacies cannot be ascertained by referring to the financial statements filed by the candidates' headquarters, either before or after the election.

So this attempt to build the interest of the bankers in the Robertson candidacy into something sinister is a dud. They are naturally behind a man whose views they admire and whose ability and integrity they respect.

Furthermore, the defeat of Senator Robertson and of Democratic Senator Sparkman of Alabama (Alabama is full of Republicans these days), and the automatic elevation of Senator Douglas of Illinois to the chairmanship of the Senate Committee on Banking and Currency, would be likely to lower further the value of the dollar. And that would be damaging not only to bankers but to all American citizens.

Now that the City Council election is over and all the campaigning fuss is forgotten by most, we feel that one matter can safely be discussed at last, without causing bad feeling on the part of some of the ex-candidates.

All during the congressional campaign, several members of the independents' ticket placed printed material under the windshields of automobiles parked on city streets and in parking areas, both public and private. This is not only against the law and qualifies as a misdemeanor in Virginia Beach, but it also makes for much littering.

After one mass campaign on automobiles in a particular large parking lot, we saw literally hundreds of the campaign literature papers discarded by motorists. All this mess had to be cleaned up by someone, and certainly did not contribute to keeping our city clean and beautiful.

The law against the placing of any handbills on or in parked vehicles in parking lots, on streets or in driveways has been on the books for a long time, and could have been enforced during the campaign. It was not, and we are glad it was not. That would have just

Strike Up The Band

The band festival, just ended at Virginia Beach, is a wonderful event, and we look forward to it again next year. The music in the parade furnished by all the bands, was downright pleasant. The colorful uniforms added much to the occasion, but it is to the participants themselves—all two thousand of them—that the credit really belongs.

These high school age youngsters came to Virginia Beach from all over the country to participate in this event. While they were here, they conducted themselves in a manner which deserves praise and accolades. That many kids in one place could easily cause trouble if they had a mind to, but this group had a wonderful time and never caused a moment's problem for anyone, except possibly for their harried chaperones.

They came from many places and from many walks of life. We didn't see any beatniks and remarkably few of the longhairniks, and very few of the sloppy-niks either. These youngsters knew they were not only representing their school and their bands but also their hometowns and families. They left with us in Virginia Beach a favorable impression on all counts.

Too often we adults are responsible only for criticism of the younger generation. We think the members of these bands deserve praise, and we look forward to having as many of them as possible and their younger brothers and sister band next year.

In addition we are happy this event is held in Virginia Beach. It is another reason to visit our fair city and note with pleasure the remarkable diversity of our entertainment facilities and establishments.

Gull's-Eye View

BY N. S. CROW

By N. S. Crow

This is bandwagon time. Lots of folks are just jumping on a Senatorial candidate's bandwagon. And they are jumping in all directions, with a slight edge being given to the bandwagons of the incumbents, Robertson and Byrd. At least, from the gull's eye view, that's the way it looks.

Here in Virginia Beach, for instance, the Robertson bandwagon has quite a few new rides. All the members of the present City Council and all the newly elected council members have jumped on. They waited until their own campaigning was over before jumping on, which was a good move. There was no need to cloud the issue in a tepid councilmatic campaign anyway.

The Robertson bandwagon was heavily weighted with important folks at the Dome last Saturday. The Lt. Governor was there. Congressman Downing was there. And there was one very charming lady, Mrs. Spong's hometown, Mrs. Inez Baker, a member of the House of Delegates, is backing the reelection of Robertson over her fellow citizen. This should qualify as an interesting turn of events. How about that?

In the State Senate, thirty of caused more problems. But now that this campaign is over, we can truthfully say we hope such littering will never be done again by any candidates for any offices in Virginia Beach.

In the heat of any campaign, some matters of good decorum are possibly forgotten. Perhaps that is how this all happened. No one in the city government ever complained at all. We just happened to note the result of this law being broken. The result was much waste paper littering the streets and parking lots. Let us hope it won't happen again.

A Vote Of Confidence

Recently certain school officials and members of the School Board have been much maligned concerning policies in effect. The criticisms have usually come from those who know little of the inner workings of the schools or those who do not recognize the real problems.

In the past we have praised our school officials, headed by F. W. Cox, for the fine job done over more than two decades. It has been a difficult job keeping up with the increase in population. Money is not always available for building new schools or hiring new personnel as school officials would like to see. But they have done an excellent job, many times on a shoestring.

There are those who are now criticizing the physical plant of one school building. Admittedly, in this and some other plants, there are some deficiencies, but the faults are being rectified as fast as they can be by those who recognized the deficiencies long before the recent publicity. And there are certainly some beautiful school plants in Virginia Beach, with others under construction now.

Other critics are calling for reduction of fees and the like. Perhaps they do not realize the reason why some taxes in Virginia Beach are lower than in other areas is because such fees are charged. Perhaps these same critics would like to see an increase in the low real estate taxes, although we doubt it.

Still other critics are demanding a fast pace of integration. This is a real mistake, since Virginia Beach has been a leader in this field and has done an orderly and smooth job in the past of integrating, not only students but also faculties. There was really no trouble until critics saw fit to stir it all up.

Virginia Beach now has a nucleus of a superior teaching and administrative staff, as enrollment begins to level off slowly. We are proud of our schools in every way. No school system is perfect and none will ever be, because the human element is deeply involved, but ours is okay with us.

We suggest that the self-appointed critics look the entire matter over in the future before saying things that are not entirely correct, or are intended to hurt officials or the image of our schools.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Dear Sir:

I have been reading from time to time in various newspapers the accounts of statements made by Mr. Spong to the effect that Senator Robertson has neglected his constituents from this and other sections of Virginia. It is surprising to what length he is going to try to find something wrong with the Senator's record. Why doesn't he say that he finds his job and let it go at that?

As the wretches from Roanoke say over television, "Let's settle this matter once and for all." I think perhaps that I am in a better position to testify to Senator Robertson's effectiveness as our representative than anyone else I know. It will be necessary to write this letter in some detail and to reveal something of my own business in order to tell the story. I am Treasurer and Business Manager of Southern Seminary Junior College, Buena Vista, Virginia.

It was during World War II. One morning two car loads of Army officers headed by a civilian drove up in front of the main building, entered and informed us that we were to be taken over by the government as a WAC Center. We were asked to provide office space for the group and were told that a survey of our buildings must be made. I imagine our consternation with a full enrollment of students and a faculty and staff of about a hundred people for whom we were responsible.

But how does one challenge the U. S. government? So we cooperated in every way. Naturally, our students were greatly concerned when we were told that we would be taken over overnight upon a telephone call from Washington. This was war. Our students and faculty would have to leave in April. The President Emeritus and his wife who occupied an apartment in the main building would have to move out, etc., etc. We referred the gentlemen to the Natural Bridge Hotel when Mr. Davis, the manager at that time (now deceased), asked me to please send them to see him. Other hotels including Alton House near Waynesboro also asked to be inspected for use by the government. When other places wanted to be considered we began to think about how we could save Southern Seminary. In the course of our many conversations with the head of the group we came to the conclusion that our property was not large enough to do the job that was to be done, but we were told that a hundred and twenty-five WACS could be billeted in the Ball Room, that a hundred and twenty-five men could be housed in the Stables to take care of the grounds, etc. (We use four, and then only part time.) A large disposal plant would be installed on the campus and a bulldozer run through the grounds to widen the roads. We were told we would receive $950,000.00 for the property. When I asked the head man what we should do with our horses, he said, "I'll add another $50,000.00 and you can give them away."

About this time Senator Robertson came to Gloucester for the awarding of the Army and Navy "E" and we asked him for a few minutes of his time. After discussing our problem with him behind one of the buildings where we resided to avoid the cold and wind he said, "Let me talk with the proper authorities in Washington after I get back." In less than a week we received a letter from the Assistant Secretary of War Patterson saying that he had gone into the matter thoroughly and had decided not to take our property.

I have gone into this matter in detail to illustrate Mr. Robertson's great help in preserving Southern Seminary. We are celebrating our centennial this year. This never would have been possible had not Senator Robertson's wise counsel been heeded. It was, and is, a testimony to his influence in Washington.

An incident such as this can be multiplied a thousand times, as many can testify. Senator Robertson has always acted in the best interest of his constituents in Virginia's towns and cities, and they should support him in July. I am an independent in politics and therefore I am free to vote as I choose. I choose to support Senator Robertson.

Sincerely yours,
H. Russell Richey
Treasurer & Bus. Mgr.

Dear Sirs:

The Virginia Beach Hospital and Horsemen very much appreciate the support you gave us in our recent Horse Show at Aldo Farms. —Thank you.

Gerry M. Ashburn

So very many times during this campaign I have said, "Sure, I'm in this race to win. And, I did win. While my name will not be on the list of the members of Virginia Beach City Council I still feel, very sincerely, that with my running as a Republican, I have erased the 'fear' that kept candidates from running and voters from taking part in the government of Virginia Beach. For the first time Republican judges and counters were able to put aside the "cracker barrel" atmosphere in the polling places. It seems a shame that we must still cling to the out of date hand written ballot over most of the city when voting machines would best serve the city and its citizens.

At a time like this there are so many to thank. For all the help, understanding, loyalty and love extended to me over these past weeks will forever be my very personal prize in this campaign.

I must extend my best wishes to the members of the Organization team, but with my hopes for their renewed resolve they will also put into action the "promises" and consider the voices of the people who seek only to make this city number ONE in Tidewater.

Mrs. Lois Nelson

Dear Sir:

The United States has been sending vast sums of money for foreign aid to the various nations of the world over the last couple of decades. Foreign aid has many faces—some good, and unfortunately, some bad.

Army Boothe recognizes in his campaign platform both the positive beneficial results as well as the failures of our foreign aid program. He realizes that much of it has been investment in military and economic security. The Food for Peace and the Peace Corps programs have been two of the most important programs of recent years.

These successes must not blind us to the fact that expenditures for foreign aid must be constantly scrutinized realistically and carefully with an eye to terminating the evils and waste and strengthening the successful.

Army has called for more of our assistance to be of the bilateral type; working through the World Bank or the Export-Import Bank. He feels that by such bilateral action, our efforts would be appreciably increased.

Army Boothe demands that we act more like businessmen rather than Santa Clauses.

With this type of positive thinking on the part of Army Boothe, Virginia has the opportunity to elect a man to the U. S. Senate who recognizes modern necessities and who will see that our dollars are wisely spent.

Sincerely yours,
Ray C. Roberts, Jr.

ESSA Opens

21st Class

NORFOLK — Thirty-one college graduates began training Monday for future assignments in the Environmental Science Services Administration (ESSA) with the opening of the bureau's 21st officer training class.

The class, including largely engineering graduates from throughout the United States, will undergo an intensive 18-week course in the scientific disciplines of ESSA. The course is being held at the Coast and Geodetic Survey's Atlantic Marine Center, Norfolk, Va.

Upon graduation, each will be appointed an Ensign in ESSA's commissioned corps, except for two members who were commissioned earlier this year. The officers will then receive individual assignments after a brief orientation at ESSA headquarters in Rockville, Md. Most new officers will serve aboard ships of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, the ESSA agency which operates a fleet of 14 vessels.

Cdr. Edwin K. McCallister, of Virginia Beach, is the officer-in-charge of the training program. The program includes the work done by ESSA in tides, currents, geodesy, oceanography, photogrammetry, seismology, cartography, meteorology and aeronomy.

The ESSA commissioned corps is one of the seven uniformed services in the federal government, the others being the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps, Coast Guard and Public Health Service. The C & GS fleet surveys coastal waters, searches for underwater navigational hazards, makes gravity and magnetic measurements, conducts tidal and tidal current surveys, and engages in deep sea oceanographic research.

VIRGINIA BEACH—Dedicated to daughters, the Cavalier Teen Beauty Camp opened last week with an orientation "Coke Party" on the right terrace of the Beach Club.

Mothers learned that the class will run for two hour sessions from 10 to 12 a.m. Tuesday and Thursday mornings and is the brainchild of Nellie Bryan and Shirley Fentress.

Nellie is fashion coordinator and commentator, director of the Miss Norfolk Pageant, official chaperone for Miss Virginia and instructor in charm, personality and poise. Shirley is a superb actress, choreographer, dancer, model, songstress and charmer. A blue-eyed brunette, she is also a pixie.

There will be lessons in posture, cosmetics, poise, personality, fashion and hair styling. Table setting and table etiquette will also be taught.

The students in the course will learn exercises in rhythm where they will slim to a syncopated beat and learn to move gracefully to music.

Leotards, comfortable attire, and a symplex notebook are required for the course.

The 16-hour course will include two guest instructors on drama, hair care and speech. The class is limited in size and the cost of instruction is $30. Nellie's telephone number is 494-3953; Shirley's is 428-6062.

Young Ladies Sweep Test

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Princess Anne Jaycees finished their boating safety course this weekend with a final test on the water.

The course consisted of three lectures and those high school students who made 80 points or better on the test were allowed to compete in the water portion of the exam.

Joe Buck, president of the club said the youngsters were faced with an obstacle course that presented a test of rules of the road under normal operating conditions.

Portions of the test included problems on a privileged vessel, a burdened vessel, a meeting situation, an overtaking and passing situation, and a docking and mooring problem.

The students were graded by Coast Guard representatives who rode in the boats with them and the Jaycees who made up the obstacles.

Buck said the girls outclassed the boys in nearly all instances. The first three positions were won by: Martha Korte, first place, who made 100 on the written test and 95 1/2 on the water course; Meredith Pollard, second place, who made 100 on the written test and 93 on the water course; and Rodney Bowles, third place, who made 100 on the written test and 92 on the water course.

Buck said Miss Korte, who will be a junior next year received a $250 scholarship. Miss Pollard, a senior next year, won a $100 savings bond, and Bowles, a ninth grader, won $75 in savings bonds.

Other contestants in the water trials were Vicki Mittelsdorf, Fred Owens, Pam Hackworth, Fred Rudiger, John Fowler, Jeff Gohr, Linda Seely, John Thurston and Frank Powers.

The awards were presented Monday night at the regular Jaycee meeting.

Buck said the scores on the water portion of the test ran from 47 to 95 1/2 points.

White Team Leads League

VIRGINIA BEACH—In Duffer League play, sponsored by the Virginia Beach Department of Parks and Recreation, White Telephone Answering Service took the league lead with an extra-inning, 7-6 victory over the Reds. In the hard fought contest, B.D. Spratt, punctured the Reds defense for three hits in four attempts at bat to lead his team and all hitters for the game. In other league play Hoff Cadillac swamped the Eagles by the score of 21-1. Richard Vanderploeg, with two home runs and seven runs batted in, and Jerry Merritt, with one home run and three runs batted in, were the mainstays of Hoff's attack.

In another Duffer League game, the Beachwarmers smothered the M-Boys 16-3.

In Women's League play, the Truckers slid past Overtons' 11-10 to remain tied for first place with the Travelers who blanked Bill's Braves 7-0 in another League game. A showdown between the Truckers and the Travelers will occur this Wednesday night at 9 p.m. in the Kempville no. 2 field.

This should be an interesting and hard fought game with plenty of action for the spectator. Court-house remained in contention for third place with its 10-8 win over Aragona.

In Class "A" League play, DeHart defeated Rio's to aid their position in the standings. Walker Really blanked Firestone 12-0 to retain their league lead. In another league contest Brown's 11-10 to win over Seaboard 7-6.

Unlimited league play found Smith & Keene nipping Pungo 11-10 in a hotly contested game.

Kempville found the going easy as they whizzed by London Bridge 11-4. Thalia bombed the ITT Falcons 24-4 in a one-sided contest.

Chesapeake Beach remained tops in the league as they administered a 19-5 loss to the Lithonia Lightening team. Johnny S.P. Sing was 4 for 5 at bat, collecting one home run, two doubles and a single for his efforts. Dave Jackson hit 3 for 5 for the evening, a triple and 2 doubles.

In Pre-Teen League play (Girls' Softball) the Gems won over the Surfers 20-9. Debbie Pittman was the big stick for the Gems as she hit for a bases loaded home run, a triple with two on and a double with two on. In another league game, the Links romped over the Tenets 20-0. Jenna Liles hit a home run with the bases loaded; Monica Adeock was 3 for 4 with a triple and 2 singles; Donna Roughton pitched a no hitter for the Links.

The students were graded by Coast Guard representatives who rode in the boats with them and the Jaycees who made up the obstacles.

'HINKY BRINKY' ALSO THERE

Abraham Guides Murphy's Tour

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

VIRGINIA BEACH—The silent Sphinx and the Great Pyramids were just no match for Abraham. And it's a cinch he'll never be immortalized as the Sphinx. He just can't stay quiet that long, according to Mrs. A. M. Murphy.

Mrs. Murphy and her husband, Col. A. M. Murphy (U.S. Army, Ret.) recently visited Egypt while on vacation. One of the attractions of the trip was a jaunt into the great desert on camelback. So off went the Murphys for a closeup view of the catlike Sphinx and those marvels of ancient architecture, the Pyramids.

They had a most interesting guide, according to Mrs. Murphy. His name was Abraham and he said his camel's name was "Fantastic." Col. Murphy's driver didn't get a chance to get a word in edgewise, Abraham did all the talking, but the Colonel did learn that his camel's name was "Canada Dry." Whether that was the prefix for bourbon or ginger ale was never established.

"It was a wonderful way to travel," said Mrs. Murphy. "And Abraham kept us laughing all the time. He was fabulous."

Abraham's English was not the best, however. He confided to Mrs. Murphy that his camel was very famous. He said proudly that "Fantastic" has been on American television, and made famous by "Hinky-Brinky" while they were in Egypt for the filming. "I wondered who in the world 'Hinky-Brinky' was, and then, all of a sudden it hit me. Abraham meant 'Huntley-Brinkley'."

At the end of the colorful ride, the colorful Abraham asked the Colonel to give him his tip "quick before my shake comes." That did not take any figuring out. "He was referring to his 'sheik', of course," said Mrs. Murphy.

Abraham also pointed out several persons along the guided route that the Murphys should tip, for one reason or another. He, in all fairness, pointed out some not to tip. But the Murphys still wonder just how many of those tipped Abraham met later to "divvy up the take."

"These people on the edge of the desert are very poor," said

Mrs. Murphy. Many of them make a small living by begging. When the Murphys were having their picture taken to prove they had ridden the hump-backed creatures, an Arab father asked if his little daughter could sit on the camel. He told the Murphys she had never been on a camel. They obliged and Mrs. Murphy held the child who obliged the camera with a big smile.

"I felt quite sorry for the child," said Mrs. Murphy. She was so tiny and thin. She was sort of pitiful."

Mrs. Murphy said that Abraham and his stories helped make the trip really worthwhile. And now that the Murphys have returned to Virginia Beach and more conventional means of travel, they are faithfully watching for a television re-run of the "Hinky-Brinky" report, in the hopes of seeing "Fantastic" again.

Hospital Resident Graduate

VIRGINIA BEACH—Though little more than a year old, the General Hospital of Virginia Beach is proud to announce it has its first resident graduate. Mrs. Jan Feazell received her Masters degrees from the Medical College of Virginia on June 4 after completing her residency in hospital administration at the local hospital.

Now the hospital is losing her, as she will soon be associated with a hospital in Norfolk. But her husband, Samuel G. Feazell, who also received his Masters degree the same time and from the same college has been appointed as assistant administrator to Earl Willis.

Jan was born in Johnson City, Tennessee and was educated there. She received her BS in Nursing at East Tennessee State College in 1958. For three years she was the head nurse on the surgical floor of Johnson City Memorial Hospital, and from 1961 to 1964 was the Director of Inservice Education and Volunteer Services. She got interested in administration at that time.

In September 1964 she began her studies at the Graduate School of Hospital Administration, and for the first year, it consisted mainly of classroom work on an academic level. The second year necessary to complete for her Masters was spent in residency. For six months she was at King's Daughters in Norfolk and the past six months at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach.

Hospital Administration is not a field chosen by many women and sometimes she wondered if she was right in her choice. "But it is such a fascinating profession, and everyone I have been associated with has been so helpful and kind," said Mrs. Feazell. "I have found it to be a most rewarding field." She was especially grateful to Mr. Willis who had studied the same field and knew many of the short-cut and especially details necessary for an administrator to learn.

"His help has been invaluable."

Being a husband and wife team in the same profession, the Feazells were able to complete their studies and write their thesis and understand each other's problems better than most newly weds. They have been married for a year and met while at the Medical College of Virginia.

Samuel Feazell was born in Beckley, West Virginia and completed his undergraduate work at Concord College in Athens, W. Va. to receive his BS in business administration. He completed his residency at Norfolk General to get his Masters.

While waiting for plans for her new post in Norfolk to be finalized, Jan Feazell will be at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach taking on relief work for the vacationing nurses. She was first of all an RN becoming a hospital administrator.

Blue Tournery

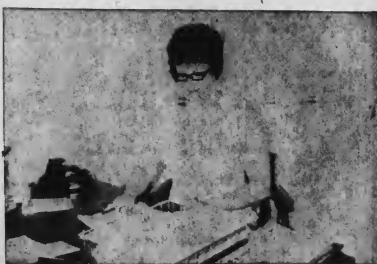

VIRGINIA BEACH—Anglers still have 11 days in which to enter the 3rd Annual Norfolk-Virginia Beach Blue Fish Tournament which began June 17.

The contest, sponsored as a promotion of the two cities is open to anyone, resident or visitor alike. The tournament was begun in 1964 by a small group of citizens and sponsors interested in furthering salt water sport fishing in Virginia.

The first tournament drew 583 participants with 41 anglers coming from outside Virginia. The second annual event had 772 participants of whom 171 were non-residents.

During the course of the first two tournaments, thousands of bluefish weighing up to 16 pounds were caught and the prospects remain good for this fishing success to continue.

A small registration fee is required for entry.

'Mark' On The Other Side Now

VIRGINIA BEACH—The son of the "Rifleman" has become a rifleman of sorts since December. Army private Johnny Crawford has been in the Army since Dec. 21 when he decided to join up instead of waiting to be drafted.

Crawford said, "I was going to be drafted so I volunteered for two years."

He received his basic training at Fort Bliss, Texas, and was sent to the Army Pictorial Center in Long Island, New York, after he got out of boot camp. There he was trained, not as an actor, but as a script clerk. He works with the director and assistant director on training films and finds it "quite an educational job."

"I was lucky enough to be assigned to something I liked," Crawford said. He added that he didn't have a choice of assignments and considered himself very fortunate.

The 28-year-old soldier began his acting career at the age of three, but it was not until six years later that he got his first big break. He was signed to a contract with the Mousketeers but his option was dropped three months later. "I was a has-been at nine," Crawford laughed.

Crawford said he started on the "Rifleman" television series in 1958 when he was 11 and worked on that show for five years before he went off the network and into syndication.

After his tenure with the series ended he went to Hollywood Public High School and finished his secondary education.

Crawford was filming a western called "Eldorado" starring John Wayne and Robert Mitchum when he got his "Greetings from the President of the United States." The film is expected to be released sometime this fall.

The Army Pictorial Center is located in the old Paramount studios which were sold to the Army in the late '30s. It is the largest sound stage on the entire east coast.

The young actor has been in only a few scenes since his enlistment because the Army prefers to use actual soldiers, not professional actors in its training films.

Crawford said he did not real-

William Garland Kellam is one among 96 candidates to receive baccalaureate degrees at Presbyterian College's 83th Commencement exercises on May 29. The son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Kellam of 110 44th Street is a candidate to receive a bachelor of science degree in Business Administration. While at Presbyterian College, Kellam has been a member of Theta Chi social fraternity and a member of the golf team. He has been a letterman all four years and for the last two years was Number 1 man on the team, this year helping to bring a State Championship victory to the college.

ize how important training films were until his basic training. "During the first week at Fort Bliss we did nothing but watch movies," he said. "They showed more movies down there than they do in a year at Grauman's Chinese Theater."

There will not be much advancement for Crawford during his short stay with the Army, but he could possibly attain the position of assistant director before his tour of duty is up.

Asked what he will do when he gets out of the Army, Crawford replied, "I try to get some work."

He said he thought a career like that of Gary Cooper's would be an ideal one. Cooper did 90 films and played every type of character imaginable. Crawford said he wanted to be a versatile actor.

Certainly he is versatile. He has released 15 singles and five record albums. He likes call-roping as his favorite sport.

As a singer Crawford said he likes all kinds of music—country and western, ballads, Broadway show tunes, popular and, last but not least, chorale work.

This is his second trip to a location and while they are here the unit is filming a film on the Lark-60, the world's largest amphibious assault craft. The APC turns out about 100 films a year but the young clerk will only be involved with a portion of those each year.

Asked how he liked the Army, Crawford said, "Well, here I am on the sandy shores of Virginia Beach. I wouldn't be here if it hadn't been for the Army."

YOUR LIFE PRESERVER

Each year lives are lost in the field of recreational boating due to the lack of life preservers. A life preserver is an important, if not the most important piece of equipment on board your boat. The size of the boat does not dictate whether or not a lifesaving device is required, but the law does state that each person on board any vessel must have an approved lifesaving device readily accessible. A preserver should be reties must not be weakened by rot or tears.

Your life preservers should be checked to determine if the kapok and fibrous glass inserts have a plastic covering. If not, the preservers are not acceptable. The covering material as well as the straps or ties must not be weakened by rot or tears.

The approval tab must be attached to the preserver and this tab is not transferable from one preserver to another.

A ski belt is not an approved lifesaving device. A skier may use a "ki belt while skiing, however there must be an approved lifesaving device on board the towing vessel for the skier at all times.

Use common sense and keep your life preservers in good condition and readily accessible at all times.

Life has a greater value than any life preserver, yet having one handy may save your life.

ONE OF THE MARCHING UNITS PASSES in review as Army National Guard jet planes from Richmond roar overhead in a fly-over.

GENERAL BOOTH IN HIS CAPACITY as Adjutant General of Virginia presents Governor Godwin with the National Guard's highest award, the Distinguished Service Award.

GOVERNOR PRESENTED MEDAL

Va. National Guard Ceremonies For Governor's Day Impressive

VIRGINIA BEACH — About a thousand persons from all over Virginia crowded into the reviewing stands at Camp Pendleton Saturday for Governor's Day Ceremonies. The overflow crowd stood near the stands at the parade grounds. The slightly threatening weather may have kept the attendance lower than in previous years.

A large number of Virginia Beach officials and residents were in the crowd which watched the hour-long ceremonies. The event had something for everyone. . . a band, marching units, military weaponry exhibits, helicopters, small airplanes, a fly-over by jet aircraft and all the pomp which surrounds an important military ceremony.

After the event, a number of guests, including municipal officers from across Virginia were the guests of the National Guard at a luncheon.

Although he did not take part in any official capacity, U. S. Senator A. Willis Robertson attended the ceremonies and luncheon at Camp Pendleton before making two major addresses that afternoon and evening in Virginia Beach.

Governor Godwin received the Virginia Distinguished Service Medal today as he paid his first official visit to the State Military Reservation for the annual "Governor's Day" ceremonies staged by the Virginia National Guard.

The State's highest award—unannounced until the Governor stood with the reviewing party on the parade field—cited the commander-in-chief "for outstanding service to Virginia over a period of many years, including dynamic leadership as the Chief Executive of the Commonwealth, in recognition of a continuing demonstration of those qualities of character treasured by military and civilian officials alike, in tribute to a public servant who has given liberally of his time and great talents to the promotion of the public good, thereby reflecting utmost credit not only upon the offices he has held but upon the Commonwealth of Virginia."

Major General Paul M. Booth, the Virginia adjutant general, made the presentation with the unanimous approval of the State Military Board. Announcement of the award climaxed a review in which approximately 2,000 troops from all sections of Virginia participated.

The medal was the first of two presentations to the Governor to day. From Lt. Col. James D. Sink, of Roanoke, president of the Virginia National Guard Association, he received a life membership in the association, which represents all the officers of the Virginia army and air National Guard.

The Governor had a hand in the only other award of the day. He presented to 2nd Lt. Charles C. Floyd, of Portsmouth, the Eisenhower trophy which went to Headquarters and Headquarters Battery, 4th Battalion, 11th Artillery for proficiency in training during 1963. The battery mans a Nike Hercules site, which is one of those in the Hampton Roads area defense.

Runners-up for the coveted trophy were Battery B, 1st Battalion, 240th Artillery, commanded by Capt. Donald C. Jones of Farmville; Company C, 1st Battalion, 110th Armor, commanded by Capt. Roy M. Wine of Harrisonburg; Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment, 120th Signal Battalion, commanded by Capt. Billy E. Redmon of Norfolk; and Company A, 2nd Battalion, 110th Infantry, commanded by Capt. Thomas E. Wood of Charlottesville. The citation to the Governor, read to the troops and visitors here for the day's ceremonies, recalled Mr. Godwin's numerous public offices, his civic and business activities, and declared that "in retrospect, Governor Godwin's whole career has been dedicated to public service."

Planes of the 149th Tactical Fighter Squadron, Virginia Air National Guard, staged a jet fly-by as a part of the salute to their commander-in-chief, and the 28th Aviation Battalion put on an aerial demonstration as the concluding feature of the military display.

The reviewing party, in addition to the Governor, included: General Booth, Lt. Gen. Harvey H. Fischer, deputy commander, Continental Army Command, Ft. Monroe, Lt. Gen. William F. Train, Commanding General, First Army, Ft. Meade, Md., Rear Admiral James S. Dietz, Commanding Officer, Naval Supply Center, Norfolk; Major Gen. Francis S. Greenleaf, Deputy Chief, National Guard Bureau, Washington, Major Gen. Archibald A. Sproul, Commanding General, 28th Infantry Division, Staunton; Brigadier Gen. Marvin T. Ball, Jr., Commanding General, 107th Artillery Brigade, Sandston; Brigadier Gen. Edward M. Hudgins, Post Commander, Richmond, and Lieutenant Floyd.

The Story Of Rabies

WHAT TO DO IF BITTEN BY A SUSPECTED RABID ANIMAL

1. All animal bites should be immediately and thoroughly washed with soap and water.
2. Consult a physician or report to the local health department for advice.

3. Do not kill the biting animal unless absolutely necessary. If the animal is killed in the early stages of rabies, the brain examination may show no evidence of the disease (Negri Bodies).
4. If for any reason the animal is killed, care should be taken not to shoot through or damage the head.

5. Capture the biting animal and keep it penned up for 10 days. If it remains well during the period the animal was not rabid at time of biting. Whenever possible, it should be placed under the observation of a veterinarian.
6. If the biting animal disappears, the bitten person should report to his physician for advice as to treatment.

General Control—Measures
Since it concerns public health, agricultural economy and wildlife conservation, the control of rabies involves the co-operation of the health department, the veterinarian, livestock owners, the wildlife conservation authorities, dog owners, sportsman, and an informed public.

Staff Sergeant Robert Scott, son of Mervin E. Scott of 1104 Sandra Lane, is now in Vietnam in the fight against Communist aggression. Sergeant Scott is an aerial medical technician in the Pacific Air Forces which provides offensive-defensive airpower for the U.S. and its allies in the Pacific, Far East and Southeast Asia.

Airman Charles D. Carraway, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Carraway of 577 Longfellow ave., has been selected for training at Keeler AFB, Miss., as an Air Force radar operator.

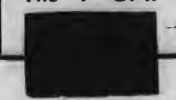

Sound local rabies control practices in Virginia Beach are based on the following broad principles:

1. Mass immunization of dogs
This should be carried out in an intensified manner on a schedule which will aim at the vaccination of all owned dogs within the shortest period of time.

2. Elimination of all stray dogs
Obviously mass immunization will not reach the stray or ownerless dog, which remains as a potential threat in transmission of rabies. An efficiently conducted program requires the operation of a local pound or humane shelter where stray animals may be kept for a few days.

Next week: Control Measures.

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus."
—Philippians 2:5

Have you ever given thought to the expression which points out that "what you think you are"?

Think happy thoughts and your attitude toward life is certain to be brighter and cheerful. Look for gloom and you will find it.

It follows that our life becomes enriched when we turn our thoughts to God, when we keep in mind the high example of the dedicated life of Christ upon earth.

Keep God in your life, every day.

Files For Permits

VIRGINIA BEACH—Real estate developer David I. Levine has filed an application with the City Planning Commission in a move to convert what was Seaview Beach into a $100-million-plus resort center.

The site is made up of 120 acres and is located on both sides on Shore Drive. It is bounded on the north by Chesapeake Bay, on the south by Long Creek, on the west by Beech Street and on the west by Great Neck Road.

The planning commission will hear the use permit and rezoning application at its July 13 public hearing.

The project will include:

- Five hotels along Seaview Beach that will have 2,500 rooms and will cost about $40 million.
- A series of 1,600 high-rise apartments on circular canals (south side of Shore Drive) which will cost an estimated $30 million.
- A $15 million recreation center.
- A shopping center.
- A parking building with a heliport constructed on top.
- A private club, luxury marina and a fishing center on Long Creek.

This plan had been speculated upon when the old Negro resort center was sold last year for about $500,000.

Acquisition of the resort beach and surrounding land took almost 10 years.

Myriad Awards

OCEANA—Eighteen awards for outstanding performance in work performed at Oceana Naval Air Station were presented to civilian workers at the air station on June 16.

The awards were presented at an outdoor ceremony held near the station administration bldg. Presenting the awards, Capt. D. C. Rumsey, II, the commanding officer of Oceana Naval Air Station handed the recipients a check with their award.

Cited for outstanding accomplishment were Alice Major, Leroy Payne, Alton Clark, Pearl Bullock, Jacqueline Ganter, Mary Nardine, Alice Ansell, Willa Rogers, Rachel Padon, Miriam Crowson, Alice Lindsey, Paul Congdon, William Phillips, Aaron Parsons, Kathleen Hales, Hallie P. Moore, Stanley Howard, and Richard C. Pancoast.

"FIFT", BLACK PET DOG OF THE OWENS' FAMILY, isn't very happy as he submits reluctantly to her necessary rabies shot. Even if she doesn't know its importance, her family does. With the "needle" is M. J. Owens, Supervisory Sanitarian of the Virginia Beach Health Department, and putting the comforting hands holding their pet are her little masters, Jim and Bob Owens. It is urgent that all dog owners who have not yet gotten the rabies shots for their pets do so this weekend and next. The shot costs only $1.50 at the clinics being held June 18 and June 25 at four different locations. On the 18th, dogs may receive the shot at Creeds Fire Station, Argonna Elementary School, Seacock Fire Station, and Kellam High School; on the 25th take the dogs to Lynnhaven Elementary School at Princess Anne Plaza, Ocean Park Fire Department, the Dome at Virginia Beach, and Kempsville Elementary School. Va. Beach In New Guide

ATLANTA, GA.—Virginia Beach has been given special note in a set of recently published travel guides of the United States. The series of eight regional guidebooks, entitled "Fodor's—Shell Travel Guides, U.S.A.", will soon be on sale at all book stores and Shell Oil Stations. For the first printing, 5000,000 copies were produced.

In a section devoted to "Exploring Virginia", Virginia Beach is referred to as "a noted niche for sun-worshippers in this part of the world. Here is the sophistication of Miami Beach and Atlantic City, Virginia Style, which gradually drifts into the remoteness of the Outer Virginia Banks to the south where surf fishing is unexcelled."

Eugene Fodor, general editor of the series, describes the books as the greatest undertaking of his career. In the past 16 years, he has edited and published 24 prize winning travel books on Europe, Asia, Hawaii and the Caribbean.

Each region and each state contains an introduction which traces the history of the region and captures the mood of the people, thereby enabling the traveler to understand better and feel a kinship with the local people.

For each state, and for 30 major cities, there is a very descriptive tour which serves as a personally guided trip.

Practical information is offered concerning the things most travelers need to know about hotels, motels, resorts, campsites, restaurants, historic sites, museums, national and state parks, tourist information services, etc. Hotels and restaurants are not rated or given a recommendation. Instead, they are grouped according to price range.

On Sale Soon

RICHMOND—Virginia hunters, fishermen and trappers will get somewhat less for their money when they purchase their 1968 licenses, but most will probably welcome the reduction as the Commission of Game and Inland Fisheries goes to a smaller, more modern format on the new license designed to fit modern billfold card cases. The new license will entitle the holder to all privileges conveyed by the older, larger model, but should fit into modern card compartments without folding or trimming. All regular hunting, fishing and trapping licenses and trout licenses will be issued in the new format.

The new licenses, shipped to license agents last week should have arrived by June 15th, according to Fiscal Division Chief Lillian B. Layne. All current hunting, fishing and trapping licenses will expire June 30th. Although the new licenses may be purchased in June, they will not become effective until July 1st, so early bird license buyers will have to retain their old licenses until that date.

Sportsmen purchasing deer, bear and turkey licenses will have to come up with a little more cash due to increases approved by the recent General Assembly. The resident deer, bear and turkey license for 1968-69 will cost $2.00 and its non-resident equivalent will cost $10.00.

Commission Law Enforcement Chief John McLaughlin cautions sportsmen, especially fishermen, to schedule a trip to their local license agent before the end of the month. Each July the prosecution lists are swelled by great numbers of procrastinators that failed to get their new fishing licenses before making that July fishing trip.

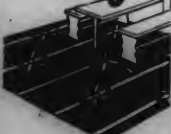

Airman 3/c Stephen F. Tuttle, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Tuttle of 3012 Island Lane, has been graduated from the technical training course for new members of the U. S. Air Force Medical Service at Gunter AFB, Alabama.

Beach Policing Interesting

VIRGINIA BEACH—To the average Virginia Beach Policeman a day's job means cruising around in a patrol car or investigating some case.

To five members of the department, however, it means covering the city's broad expanse of beach area in Jeeps.

One in particular, Patrolman A. D. Henderson, is presently the Sandbridge area during the "8 to 4" shift. Henderson goes on duty at 8 a.m. and goes off duty at 4 p.m.

Henderson has been on the force for three years and for three years has been assigned to the beach patrol during the summer months.

There is a second jeep that patrols the area during the daylight hours, but only one, Henderson's, remains on 24-hour duty. There are also two jeeps in the Virginia Beach Borough and one at Chesapeake Beach.

Henderson said many people have the wrong impression about the jeep patrols. He said they not only tour the beach but the paved streets of Sandbridge as well.

They keep an eye on traffic problems, illegal parking and the like on the paved streets as well as dealing with the surfers, vehicles on the beach and of course, dogs.

Henderson said one of the biggest problems the people hand us is bringing their dogs on the beach. Reports are called in daily by residents of the area asking the police to do something about the dogs on the beach in front of their houses. Henderson suggested that more people should read up on the "dog laws" of the city.

Henderson said that since the Little Island Park has opened it "has taken a load off of us". The new recreation area, according to Henderson, has given the surfers a place to go and keeps them off private property.

Henderson stated that to patrol the beaches of the city one must be a diplomat of sorts and be sociable all the time to all the people.

During days the weather turns bad, the job is very interesting, Henderson said. Sometimes, it is difficult to get down on the beach because of the people, the officer reported.

The beach patrols started May 27 and will continue until after Labor Day, possibly as long as Sept. 15.

The Jeeps are stored away during the winter months and are not used unless absolutely necessary. They are serviced and stored at the city garage when not in use.

The Sandbridge portion of the patrol covers the shoreline and streets from the property line of Dam Neck Training Center south to the Back Bay Wildlife Refuge. "We seldom go past the Refuge", he said.

All-in-all the beach patrol proved to be an enlightening experience in to the routine of a rather different police assignment.

New Landing Folder

RICHMOND—The latest edition of the Virginia Public Boat Landings directory is now being distributed to license agents and sporting goods dealers throughout the State, according to Game Commission's Information office. The free six page folder lists 218 boat launching points on major Virginia waters, including those constructed by the Commission and others available for public use. accompanying each listing is the nearest access route.

Wins Trip To Mexico

VIRGINIA BEACH—Mr. and Mrs. Lennie C. Whitson have returned after an exciting trip to Mexico and Acapulco which Whitson was awarded as a prize.

The Mexican Festival trip was awarded to various Chevrolet managers of the Eastern Seaboard, the represented Colonial Chevrolet of Norfolk and was the only one from this area. There were two from Portsmouth and four from Newport News who also went on the all expense paid trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Whitson left May 30 and flew to Richmond where they joined the other prize winners and went by chartered jet from Charlotte all the way to Mexico.

Wins Award

OCEANA—Mrs. Margaret Taylor, a supply clerk at Oceana Naval Air Station's supply department, was presented an award on June 10, for sustained superior performance in her job.

The award was presented by Capt. D. C. Ramsey, II, the commanding officer of Oceana Naval Air Station.

Reading the citation in which Mrs. Barton was commended for her work during the period of July 1, 1965 to April 8, 1966, Ramsey commented that it made him especially happy to be able to present an award for such outstanding performance.

With the citation for her performance, Mrs. Barton was given a check for $150.

'Critic's Choice'

Critic's Choice, Barksdale Theatre at Strawberry Banks, Hampton, Virginia. Directed by Hansford Rowe. Setting designed by Lyde Longaker. Cast includes Hansford Rowe, Nancy Kilgore, Hansford Rowe III, Woody Eney, Alice Fritzen and Helen Levinson. Production to continue Tuesday through Saturday at the dinner theatre for four weeks.

Critic's Choice is not necessarily a critic's choice of a good all-around play, but it will qualify as a witty, sparkling comedy that almost any audience will enjoy. The Barksdale production lacks a certain amount of lustre, but still comes off as a pleasant evening in the theatre.

The entire action of the play takes place in the New York apartment of Parker Ballantine, respected and famous critic, his second wife, Angela, and his son by the first marriage, John. Angela decides to write a play. Her critic husband derides her badly, but she is not shaken by his lack of faith. She goes right ahead. She finishes the play, finds a producer, a director, a theatre and quite a bit of adventure, all to the shegirn of her husband. What he really worries about is his honesty in reviewing and he thinks the play she has written is awful. He lost his first wife after a review he wrote about her as an actress.

At no time is there a lag in action, as written by the playwright, but the pace in this production is often so slow that the rapid-fire comedy lines do not catch fire as they should. Hansford Rowe, who directed the production and played the lead, Parker, is apparently at fault. He is the slowest of them all. He is quite possibly creating a deliberate character for Parker, but it all slows the action down too much.

The character that Rowe created for Parker however is a delight. Rowe moves nicely through the role and has audience sympathy at all times. His best scene is in the third act, when he tells his life story while in a drunken stupor. That scene makes the whole show worthwhile.

Nancy Kilgore is delightful as Angela, fledgling playwright. Mrs. Kilgore is a particularly capable and flexible actress.

The hauls of this production go to Hansford Rowe III, the real life and play-character son of Parker Ballantine. The boy-genius of Broadway role is handled beautifully in a very funny deadpan manner by the youngster.

The "angry young man" director, Dion Kapekos, is played consistently by Woody Eney. But Eney does not seem at home in the role of the dedicated and lecherous director. There just isn't enough "oomph". We have seen better things from him.

The role of Charlotte Orr, mother of Angela, is done adeptly by Alice Fritzen. She plays the ideal mother-in-law with warmth and sincerity while at the same time contributing nicely to the dry built-in humor.

Helen Levinson, as Ivey London, Parker's first wife, picks up the pace well while she is on stage. The only regret we have is that she did not play the role a little broader. A few more rolls of the eyes and a few more "dahlings" would have made it perfect.

Perhaps it was just opening night jitters or maybe it was the way it was meant to be, and the only thing with which we find fault is the pace. It was a fine production as it was, worthy of being seen by all, but even though the tremendous warmth came through, it was not just a bit too slow.

$50 Presented

OCEANA—Mrs. Gloria K. Brown an accounts maintenance clerk in Oceana Naval Air Station's computer department, received a citation for superior accomplishment in her job and a check for $50 in a ceremony held at Oceana Naval Air Station June 10.

The ceremony was held in the office of Capt. D. C. Ramsey, II, the commanding officer of Oceana Naval Air Station.

As Ramsey read the citation, he noted that Mrs. Brown had taken personal initiative in the indoctrination of new personnel coming into her department, resulting in a smoother operation of the department.

Common Glory

WILLIAMSBURG, VA.—(First light clouds shift slowly in the sky. Across appear in the amphitheatre. They scatter down the aisles and lounge in the seats. It is 7 p.m. and "company call"—the official gathering of the 1966 "Common Glory" Company.

Under the general management of Mr. Roger Sherman, the "Glory" Company is in its 20th performing season. In early June actors, singers, dancers et al. invaded the Lake Matoka Amphitheatre to prepare "The Common Glory," 1966.

Written by Paul Green, this drama tells the story of Tory-Patrick conflict in the American colonies.

Green calls his play a "symbolic" drama because it involves all the theatre arts: acting, dancing, singing, authentic costumes and scenery.

To perfect each of these aspects, the company members struggle out of bed each morning and hasten to rehearsals in the "three corners of Williamsburg": Ewell Hall, Adair Gymnasium and the Amphitheatre proper.

During the two-week rehearsal period, the amphitheatre is a workshop in three theatre arts. Backstage, the costume room and shop hum with the noise of sewing machines and jigsaws.

Rachel Hitchens and her costume crew are fitting 66 cast members of all sizes and shapes into over 300 18th century costumes.

Comments like "I've never had one of these hoop-contraptions on in my life... maybe we can get away without trying them on... or HELP!" lend a merry atmosphere to the fitting rooms.

Tall tan young men, technicians for the "Glory," are manufacturing new props and renovating old ones in the shop.

The new "prop" for this season is the great French ship. Upon its decks sit cannons friendly to the Patriotic cause.

Facing the critical scrutiny of Director Howard Scammon, "Glory" actors depict the men who fought for that same cause.

After hours of rehearsals and a few quickie meals like beans, Vienna sausages and onion soup, the "Glory" troupe walk or motor to their Ludwell apartments for the night.

No one says, but everyone dreams of opening night June 27 and the 1966 season which runs through September 3.

Hospitality House In Old Hospital

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Board of Directors of the General Hospital of Virginia Beach has given space to the Virginia Beach Ministerial Association, in cooperation with the Virginia Beach Recreation Commission, for a hospitality center for Area servicemen.

The board donated the basement floor in the old hospital facility on 25th Street and Arctic Avenue to be used until Labor Day. No permanent home has been found. There are approximately 17,000 servicemen in the area, and in the past as many as 5,000 servicemen have utilized temporary hospitality centers in Virginia Beach.

Representing the city Recreation Commission, Algy Cohen has been working with the president of the ministers association, the Rev. Dickson Taylor in developing the new center, which was ready for operation Wednesday. Initial plans call for showers, lockers, a snack bar and a reading room to be provided in the near future. The center will only be open on weekends at present, directed by Mrs. Madeline Hogge and junior hostesses.

A military and civilian committee, however, has been named to look into the possibility of setting up a permanent facility to be operated on a year-round basis at Virginia Beach. Representatives of all military installations in the area are serving on the committee.

Efforts are being made to operate on a plan similar to that of the USO, although no USO funds are available. David M. Robinson, regional Executive of the USO, was in Virginia Beach for a planning session and press conference. It seems possible that initial money may be forthcoming from the United Fund through the Navy Y in Norfolk, but the committee will seek a permanent operation, using UCF funds and perhaps city aid for future planning.

At present, USO is not able to provide funds, according to Robinson, because of expanded commitments in Viet Nam and the present structure of the national USO.

The operation of a permanent hospitality house in Virginia Beach is the evolution of a center opened about 17 years ago at the old Galilee Church on Atlantic Avenue. The centers were in recent years supported by several parishes and have been operated as a joint effort.

Lost Colony

MANITOW, N. C.—An entertainment favorite of the Carolinas and Virginia for more than a quarter-century is being presented for the 28th season in the Waterside Theatre on the Fort Raleigh National Historic Site, June 24 through August 28. "The Lost Colony" outdoor drama, authored by Paul Green, Pulitzer prize-winning playwright, is one of the prime attractions of the Dare County Outer Banks of North Carolina.

Fifty-seven performances are on the 1966 schedule, every night except Sunday at 8:15 (EST). Accommodations include a 2,000-seat amphitheatre and a 600-car free parking lot.

Joe Layton, dynamic young director and choreographer of Broadway and TV fame, is back for the third year to stage the show. He won an EMMY award on TV for his 1965 production of the first Barbara Streisand spectacular, "My Name is Barbra", and captured Broadway's coveted TONY award in 1962 for directing and choreographing the Richard Rodgers hit, "No Strings". He was director of the dances for the original Broadway production of "The Sound of Music". Currently he is also choreographing a motion picture in Hollywood starring Julie Andrews. Carol Channing and Mary Tyler Moore.

Faculty of the N. C. School of Performing Arts at Winston-Salem, is in his first year as the season-long Production Coordinator. He is also an internationally famous dancer, director and choreographer.

The Fort Raleigh National Historic Site, a National Park Service facility, has been upgraded by a $1 million re-development program which includes a new Visitor Center and museum. Located immediately adjacent to the beautiful Elizabethan Garden, operated by the Garden Club of North Carolina, Inc. It has also been undergoing improvements.

John Bryan Day, son of John B. Day of 4465 Wickham Road, has earned recognition as being an outstanding student in the psychology department of East Carolina College, Greenville, N. C.

Under the general management of Mr. Roger Sherman, the "Glory" Company is in its 20th performing season. In early June actors, singers, dancers et al. invaded the Lake Matoka Amphitheatre to prepare "The Common Glory," 1966.

SUPREME COURT RULING DISCUSSED

State F.O.P. Convention Hears Address By Senator Byrd

VIRGINIA BEACH—The closing night session of the State Fraternal Order of Police convention at the Cavalier was highlighted by an address by U.S. Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr., candidate for reelection in the July 12 Democratic primary.

About 120 members of the State FOP Lodges, the civilian FOP Associates and guests attended the banquet which climaxed the four-day event. State Senator William P. Bellam of Virginia Beach was master of ceremonies for the evening, and Senator Byrd was introduced by Democratic National Committeeman Sidney S. Kellam of Virginia Beach.

Sen. Primary Campaign Stirring Much Activity

VIRGINIA BEACH—With less than two weeks to go before the voters go to the polls in the Democratic senatorial primary, campaign activity at Virginia Beach is picking up considerably. All four candidates for the two available nominations have made at least one appearance in Virginia Beach in recent weeks.

Senator Harry F. Byrd, Jr., has been here several times, including his Monday night appearance before the closing session of the State FOP convention at the Cavalier. Senator Robertson has been here twice, his most recent appearance last Saturday at the Dome. State Senator William Spong of Portsmouth who is challenging Robertson, has not made criminal suspects has produced what he called a "three-faced-constitutional interpretation."

Police Continue Search For Man

VIRGINIA BEACH—Police, at press time last night, were continuing their search for a man surprised in the act of prowling around early yesterday morning near the White Heron Hotel.

Several dog units were used on the scene, on Laskin Road, but failed to turn up a suspect.

Members of the detective bureau continued their investigation all day Wednesday.

Police officers combed the area around the American Legion hut, the White Heron, and surrounding areas for several hours without any apparent results.

a public appearance in Virginia Beach recently, but has campaigned here at least twice. Former State Senator Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria, who is challenging Byrd, has only made one short visit to Virginia Beach so far to talk with campaign workers, but will be here all day Saturday, July 2.

Whether the candidates are in town or not has not stilled the fervor of the campaign workers. A long list of coffees, teas, picnics, rallies and outings are scheduled in the next two weeks, especially for Byrd and Robertson.

In the Byrd and Robertson campaign, the Byrd and Robertson cam-

It's A Dogs Life For Bur. Of Animal Control

By H. Joseph Lowenthal, Jr.

R. L. Reed and the three men who work with him really do lead a dog's life in Virginia Beach. And sometimes they even lead a cat's life or the life of any other domesticated animal. The problem is that there are only these four men to serve the entire city of Virginia Beach as the Bureau of Animal Control of the Police Division.

Reed says it is nearly impossible to answer all the many complaints that come in daily, much less patrol the city. There are between 75 and 125 complaint calls coming in to the Bureau of Animal Control each month. In some months, notably "Dog Days" in August, there are even more. So if you call in a complaint and the officer does not show up immediately, try to understand he is a little busy.

Although there are no laws covering cats, there are very specific laws governing dogs. No one is permitted to have a vicious dog or a dog deemed a nuisance, and no dog is permitted to run at large on streets or private property or beaches. Dogs are required to have licenses. And it is the responsibility of the four representatives of the Animal Control Bureau to enforce these laws, as well as carrying out numerous other duties.

The officers confine dogs running at large and issue summonses to owners when they can be located. They also must be on the lookout for any "mad dog", and aid the Public Health department in any case where a dog bite occurs. The responsibility in that case may mean tracking down the guilty dog and quarantining the animal until checks for rabies can be made.

The Bureau, in addition, runs a dog "hotel" for strays or those picked up for confinement. If the owner picks the animal up, a charge per day is made for the confinement. If not, the animal is sold for "adoption". Although the disposal of dead animals is the owner's responsibility, the Bureau will assume that responsibility for a small fee.

In other words, it's a lot of work for four men to handle, when all the paper work attached to the job has to be done too. The "adoption service" is Reed's favorite job. Although he is a "dog-catcher", he admits to having a soft heart. He helps the animals find a home, whenever possible.

The most complaints where dogs are concerned come from homeowners who get tired of having a stray or even someone's pet tearing up their lawns, turning over their garbage cans or chasing their automobiles.

"I try to warn an owner the first time," said Reed. "But the second time his dog is found at large or without a license, I issue a summons."

The fines are stiff and the costs of court are high. It behooves a dog owner to obey the law. Reed added that if anyone wants further information of the subject or interpretation of the laws, his office is always available to answer questions and complaints. He also invited anyone who wishes to come to the kennels on Bonney Road and look around. The phone number of the Animal Control Bureau is 977-4787.

Reed and his men are conscientious police officers. They, like all policemen, are dedicated public servants, and they have a tough job. Not only do they have to cope with the owners but they always stand a chance of being bitten, by the animal that is.

"Most people are very cooperative," said Reed. And when they aren't they get a chance to tell it to the judge."

Little Dissension At Recreation Forum Mon.

By Douglas Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH—Indicative of little dissension, and later proved by a 100% "aye" of handraising, the Parks and Recreation Commission held its third public Forum Monday night at the King's Grant Elementary School. Present on the platform were Maury Rigan, chairman; Marion Wrenn, chairman; R. E. Dorer, Mason Gamage, chairman of City Planning Committee; Stanley Phillips, Assistant Commonwealth Attorney of Virginia Beach; William McClurg, architect for the city; and Harold Whitehurst, director of the Commission.

Only 15 persons attended, but as Rigan remarked, "This is a good sign, because when we have a large attendance at one of these Forums, it usually means that there will be a negative and complaining attitude toward the Master Plan. Of course the sole purpose of these meetings is to explain to the residents in the different areas the present and future plans for the recreational facilities, the parks, and the physical educational undertakings which are in the Master Plan for the next 20 years. Our plans are elastic, and can be altered. We are a democratic group, working for the good of all the citizens of this wonderful city. Any problem of yours is naturally ours, also."

AT F.O.P. CONVENTION

Policemen Refuse To Criticize Court Decisions

VIRGINIA BEACH—The F.O.P. Associates Monday approved two resolutions asking the next session of the Virginia General Assembly to secure more aid for police training.

The police called for "efforts to require a minimum of two years of college training for all police officers and a minimum of 200 classroom hours of training."

The members of the convention also rejected a resolution criticizing the recent decisions of the United States Supreme Court regarding police investigating and questioning procedures.

On delegate commented that the theory that policemen should not criticize the court brought on the rejection when the resolution was introduced by one of the many committees.

Despite the members killing the motion, the topic received much discussion at the three-day meeting at the Cavalier Hotel.

In other action, the state officers of the F.O.P. were elected. The Officers are: Frank S. Duling of Richmond, president; Sidney Cherry of Norfolk, vice president; Gordon Baird of Charlottesville, secretary; and W. A. Hudson of Roanoke, treasurer.

E. A. (Sonny) Culverhouse, personnel director of the City of Virginia Beach, was reappointed legislative chairman for the organization.

WILL COST ABOUT $12,000

Council Approves Facelifting Of The Courthouse Front

VIRGINIA BEACH—City Council, at its regular meeting Monday morning, authorized the renovation of the front of the Circuit Court building at Princess Anne Court House.

The city will advertise for construction bids for the project. The job calls for the replacement of the rotten, second-story porch and brick and wooden columns with five columns rising two stories high, keeping the motif in pattern with the entrance of the clerk's office which is located next door.

The Building, parts of which were first constructed in about 1830, will assume a colonial style. A. J. Cheving, III whose architectural firm designed the renovation, said it would cost an estimated $12,000 for the facelifting. He said the raising of the five columns would be cheaper than replacing the porch and would enhance the appearance of the old structure.

The porch was found unsafe about a month ago when the city engineer's office conducted a survey of the soundness of the old building.

Council also made a giant step in the recreation problem Monday when it agreed to purchase the former Nike Site south of Kempsville for $75,000. The site includes 21 acres of land and several buildings used as the headquarters for the Parks and Recreation Commission. The city has been attempting to purchase the land from the federal government for some time now.

Council also agreed to require persons here on military duty purchase a city tag, at the price of $1 for "identification purposes". The token charge will cover the issuance of the tags.

An ordinance approved by council on the tags will go before council for its final approval at the next regular meeting.

City Attorney Harry Marshall said the ordinance was required because high courts have ruled that the city can not sell revenue-producing tags to the servicemen. He said the city will not require servicemen to purchase the $10 city tags that everyone else buys unless they purchase regular Virginia tags.

Four new members of the Virginia Beach School Board were appointed Monday—two for 18-month terms, two for six-month terms.

Those appointed were: Dr. Roy A. Woods, a 52-year-old professor at Norfolk State College; Dr. Charles P. Fletcher, a 40-year-old dentist; Robert H. DeFord, Jr., a 34-year-old dairy farmer; and James L. Kitchin, a 45-year-old insurance man.

Council appointed Woods and Kitchin to 18-month terms and Fletcher and DeFord to six-month terms. The four new members will serve as "at large" representatives while incumbent members of the board will represent the seven boroughs of Virginia Beach. The new members take office tomorrow.

In other action, Council:

● Voted to raise the salary of City Manager W. Russell Hatchett by $2,000 next fiscal year (beginning July 1). It raised his yearly salary to $20,500.

● Approved $1,500 raises for Judges Richard R. Kellm and Robert S. Walsh for the next fiscal year.

● Took final action on the adoption of a one per cent retail sales tax and accompanying ordinances on or before Sept. 1 when the state two per cent retail sales tax comes into effect.

● Approved an appropriation of $33,000 to buy a sewage lagoon in Kempsville Borough. Councilmen S. Brown of Princess Anne Borough and Kenneth Whitehurst of Pungo Borough voted against the measure.

● Voted to give several acres of land at the intersection of Oceana and General Booth Boulevard to the newly formed Virginia Beach chapter of the S.F.C.A.

● Authorized City Attorney Harry Marshall to acquire by purchase or condemnation if necessary, two small parcels of land that are needed in the Little Island Park area to complete the city's plans for a recreation area there.

In surprise move, council rejected, on second reading an ordinance which would reduce the tax against certain types of entertainment shows in the resort city. The new levy would have to let shows as yet fairly been put on for charitable organizations and the like for only $100 dollars a day instead of the present tax of $300 a day plus one per cent of the proceeds imposed against any carnival, or tent show. There was no reason given for the move by council.

'MISS VIRGINIA' PAGEANT

Jaycees Plan Trip To Roanoke

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Virginia Beach Jaycees drew up final plans Tuesday night for the annual "Miss Virginia Beach" pageant to be held in August at the Alan B. Shepherd Civic Center.

Deborah Bryant, the reigning "Miss America" will be on hand for the selection of a new representative for Virginia Beach in the "Miss Virginia" contest, held each year in Roanoke.

Bill Stewart, chairman for the function said the club will offer more than $700 in scholarships and numerous other valuable prizes will be awarded to "Miss Virginia Beach" and her runner-up. Stewart said a week of social activities for the contestants and their families will precede the big event.

All interested girls are asked to call Bill at 977-9126.

Also at the meeting, final arrangements were made for the current "Miss Virginia Beach" to travel to Roanoke for the "Miss Virginia" pageant next week.

Cathy Carson, "Miss Virginia Beach", her chaperone, Mrs. Janet Fishel, Cathy's mother, Mrs. Carson, and Bill Stewart, her sponsor, will leave Monday at 11 a.m. from the Dome.

Cathy will remain in Roanoke through Saturday night when the "Miss Virginia" for 1966 is announced. Stewart said the group will stay at the Hotel Roanoke

Cathy, for her talent portion of the contest, plans to sing selections from "Mary Poppins" and "Stop the World—I Want to Get Off".

The Saturday night final judging and selection will be televised across the state.

Warehousemen

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Bright Bit Warehouse Association, a group that represents more than 400 tobacco warehouse firms on the east coast will hold a three-day convention in Virginia Beach next week.

POWER WAS TURNED ON at the traffic signal system here at the intersection of Shore Drive and Virginia Beach Boulevard. The system is the final portion of a complete rebuilding of the intersection, the scene of many accidents. The confusion in turning was solved with the installation of turning lanes. This recreation had been in the planning and construction stage for about six months before it was finally completed. (Sun Photo by Moore)

THE THIRD FLOOR of the Virginia Beach City Jail was turned over to the city last week after its completion. The addition took about eight months to complete and cost an estimated $300,000. It will almost double the present capacity of the jail. It includes up-to-date features in bedding, plumbing, etc.

Vows Exchanged

Mrs. Franklin Estrille Dickerson, Jr.

VIRGINIA BEACH—The marriage of Miss Barbara Cleverger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stanley Cleverger, of Winchester, Virginia, to Franklin Estrille Dickerson, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin L. Dickerson of Virginia Beach took place June 25th in the First Presbyterian Church Chapel in Winchester.

The Rev. James Jackson, Pastor, officiated, assisted by the Rev. Raymond Wormedorf, assistant minister.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of peau de soie, with an embroidered organza bodice. Her headpiece was a circlet of orange blossoms with veil. Summer flowers formed her bouquet.

Mr. Douglas R. McDaniel of Westfield, New Jersey, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and her bridesmaids were Miss Ann Cleverger of Winchester, sister of the bride, and Mrs. Gwen Bragg, of Virginia Beach, sister of the bridegroom.

Mr. Dickerson was his son's best man. The ushers were Oliver Reedy of Chester, Va., and Douglas R. McDaniel.

Following the ceremony, the parents of the bride entertained at a reception at their home. After a wedding trip, the couple will reside in Chester, Va.

St. Nicholas WC

VIRGINIA BEACH—The high light of the June meeting of the St. Nicholas Women's Club was a Bible Vigil held at the Church. The service was most inspiring and conducted by Father Thomas M. Summers, Pastor, and attended by members of the club, officers from the Tidewater Deanery, and visitors from other parishes. The Bible meditation was on the relationship between the Sacrament of Confirmation and women's work. Verses were read from St. Paul, John, Isaiah and others for meditation.

At the meeting, Mrs. Helen Mar, maid, chairman for Christian Women for Decency, explained the work of the group. Their purpose is to rid the newsstands of literature not suitable for children's viewing. The group, begun at St. Nicholas, has been joined by other denominations of the area. Stores cooperating with the display of decent literature will be awarded a certificate for display, signed by the clergy of the churches.

Party Line . . . By OLGA EDWARDS

By Douglas Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH—We spent many weekends at Virginia colleges in our more youthful days, but the University never seemed to beckon. A Virginia Man was different. A dignity and a casual disregard for women usually kept us in awe and maybe that's why we returned other tokens of affection, and accepted the jeweled emblem of a true Cavalier—his "frat" pin.

At least 80 Wahoos entertained at a buffet and social hour recently at Cape Colony Club, honoring their "Women" altho' many lawmen were at the state convention at the Cavalier. No business was brought up, and everyone present enjoyed an evening of sedate conviviality.

C. N. P. Johnson is the newly elected president of the men, succeeding J. Peter Holland, III, E. H. Langhorn is vice-president; James E. Crocker is secretary; and Wyndam Brown is treasurer of this fast moving group.

The crowd circled around the buffet table, laden with pyramids of jumbo shrimp on crisp heads of lettuce, miniature meat balls in Mexican sauce, veal birds and silver bowls of cheese dips. Old friendships were renewed; new ones were formed in the spirit of the orange and blue.

Dress was casual, but we noted the "in" yellow-striped sport coat of Langhorne, the natty dull gray-green suit of Bruce Murphy (he's just opened a new law office next to the Chamber of Commerce), the brown tones sported in sartorial elegance by "Duck" Brailwaite, and the conservative blue of Jordan Ball, II, whose golf game is known throughout the south. Johnson wore a blue British blazer with gold buttons and an orange "V" embroidered on the pocket. His tie was blue with orange stripes.

Mrs. Hoyt Capps, with Mr. Capps and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Richmond, were an adroit cocktail dress. Mrs. Howard Gill's deep lined blue linen with large white cape collar was outstanding while Mrs. Hergert Smith's coral-red sleeveless cocktail shift made her blue eyes dance. Mrs. Jordan Ball looked like a high school girl in her summer sassy. Mrs. Joseph P. Sadler wore black chiffon, and Mrs. "Duck" Brailwaite's white silk jersey complemented her deep tan. TWO ATTRACTIVE CAMPAIGNERS SHOW OFF POSTERS. Mrs. A. Willis Robertson, Jr., daughter-in-law of Senator Robertson and Mrs. W. P. Kellam, of Virginia Beach examine the Senator's re-election posters at his Virginia Beach campaign headquarters.

MRS. A. W. ROBERTSON, JR. VISITS BEACH

Robertson Campaign Aided By Appearance Of 'Southern Belle'

VIRGINIA BEACH—"I'm here in lieu of Mother Robertson. I wish she could be here. She's so eloquent," said the charming lady as she chatted easily with reporters and campaign workers at her father-in-law's campaign headquarters on Atlantic Avenue in Virginia Beach.

The attractive blonde with a quick wit and a twinkle in her eye is Mrs. A. Willis Robertson, Jr., wife of Atlanta investment banker, A. Willis Robertson, Jr., and daughter-in-law of U. S. Senator A. Willis Robertson, now running for re-election in the July 12 Democratic Primary.

Mrs. Robertson, known affectionately as "Glo-Glo" (taken from Gloria) when asked if she enjoyed campaigning, said quickly in a delightful Southern accent, "We don't call it campaigning. I'm just in Virginia visiting with people. That's my contribution." But with "Glo-Glo" on Robertson's team, there is a definite campaign advantage.

"I haven't been to Virginia Beach in twenty years," she said. Then she assumed a rather shocked look and added, "I remember when my father used to say he remembered something that had happened twenty years ago. I used to think he was so old." Mrs. Robertson marveled at the changes and growth in Virginia Beach. She said she was so surprised to see so many new motels and hotels.

Gloria Robertson is a native of Chattanooga, Tennessee, and has lived all her life either there or in Atlanta, Georgia, which easily explains her soft Southern speech. She has only been married to Senator Robertson's son for about four-and-a-half years. "He was a 'mature bachelor' when I married him," she said merrily.

The younger Robertsons have no children, but Mrs. Robertson said they have two "four-legged children." She referred to her two large dogs, one a seventy-pound English setter and native of Buckingham County, Virginia.

She is a graduate of a Girls' Prep School in Chattanooga and a graduate of Pine Manor Jr. College in Wellesley, Massachusetts. She confided, "I went there because it was a good way to get into Wellesley without taking College Boards."

After college, Mrs. Robertson made her debut in Chattanooga, then in addition to her various civic activities became fashion coordinator for a large and exclusive store in her home town. Her talents were soon recognized, and she moved to Atlanta to a large women's store in the same position, and just prior to her marriage was fashion director at one of Atlanta's largest and finest department stores.

"I haven't worked outside the home since marriage," she said. "But I think I work harder now in the home." One of her hobbies is cooking, although she said she used to enjoy golf immensely. Two serious auto accidents within a year curtailed her golfing, she said wistfully. She added that she also loves to travel. She appears to be thriving on this trip.

Her husband is a shy person, "although he is good at selling stocks and bonds over the telephone," she said laughingly. She quickly added that he is not in politics at all and that he does not like to make speeches at all, even though he has to often in his work.

Mrs. Robertson has only been in Virginia a few days on her current trip and is making the rounds of "coffeees," "teas" and rallies on behalf of the candidacy of her father-in-law. Besides chatting with campaign workers, she was the guest of honor Tuesday at a coffee at the Cupes, attended by a large number of Robertson supporters, including many men. From Virginia Beach she traveled to Newport News and Richmond, but plans to be back in Virginia Beach before the campaign ends.

F.O.P. Ladies Meet At Beach

By Douglas Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Seventh Biennial Conference of the Fraternal Order of Police of Virginia, Inc., has just finished a successful meeting with around 200 persons enjoying a three-day gathering of business, fun and fellowship at the Cavalier Hotel.

The Ladies Auxiliary of the F.O.P., after their registration of delegates and guests last Sunday, held a State Auxiliary Board of Directors meeting in the Williamsburg Room. That evening a cocktail hour and a reception for the entire assembly, sponsored by the state F.O.P. associates was held in the pool lounge of the hotel and overflowed into the lobby and adjoining terraces.

Mrs. Estelle Davis, publicity chairman, was hostess to this reporter, who spoke to police Lieutenant Harry Terry, who coordinated the three-day affair. He mentioned Harry F. Byrd Jr.'s acceptance as the banquet speaker Monday night, although the Senator's schedule was very tight. The banquet was held in the Colonial Room and was followed by a dance at the Cavalier Beach Club. The ladies were also guests of the tea dance held Sunday afternoon at the Beach Club, though the weather was unpredictable.

On Monday morning the Ladies Auxiliary held a Presidents' Breakfast for state officers and Conference Chaplains. After the official opening of the F.O.P. in the Colonial Room the Ladies Auxiliary, their associates and guests held their first business meeting. A second one was held in the afternoon.

Over fifty ladies, with the officers seated at a table graced with a large center piece of gold gladiolas and blue bachelor buttons, discussed business and then adjourned for luncheon. The officers wore with their fashionable morning outfits, the gold and blue ribbon emblems of the F.O.P. Auxiliary with the police star as a medallion pendant. They were Myrtle Powell, Auxiliary Conductor; Barbara Terry, President; Jacqueline Aldridge, National Conductor and State Trustee; Virginia Toler, Vice-pres.; Elsie Beer, Recording Sec.; and Chief Trustee; Beatrice Perkins, Trustee, and Gloria Hicks, Coordinator. Mrs. J. E. Moore, wife of Beach Chief Moore was also present. Mrs. Terry appointed Committees on: Credentials, House, Honor, Publicity, Organization, Ritual, Residency and others.

A secret session followed the appointments and we left in time to note the Richmond Honor Guard composed of 4 pretty ladies from Lodge II. They were the blue sash in cape with one side folded stylishly over the shoulder displaying the Police Emblem. They were; the gold lining of the Common-McClurg discussed the architectural set-up of the Master Plan and expressed hope, someday for an Aquarium, an Amphitheatre, and large gardens of flowers and shrubs.

Garman spoke specifically of the plans for District 3, which tentatively include King's Grant Sandlot, Birchwood, Buchanan, Pinewood, and Pinetree Park, and spoke of Virginia Beach's being a recreational Utopia with its natural wildlife, open lands, shore lands, etc. A beautifully drawn map was shown, and Tim Barrow, a U.V.A. student with the Commission for the 2nd year, was introduced as a summer assistant.

Dorer made 3 financial points clear: (1) It is necessary to have and to own land. (2) Land must be developed. (3) It must be maintained and operated, and this takes money. He also mentioned the desire of the Commission for the gifts of Memorial Parks, land to be donated in memory of a loved one, and then developed by the city.

In the Question and Answer period which followed, Mrs. Haskell, of King's Grant, Mrs. Theresa Worrell, Allen John Maillot, Joe Fazio, and others asked questions concerning trespassing on their property, littering, etc., and were told that the city had no jurisdiction over privately owned property. A right of way was also discussed. Fazio was most complimentary in his remarks concerning the fine job that the city was doing in its recreational facilities and plans for the young and the elderly in comparison to other cities in which he had formerly lived.

The next Recreation Forum will be held July 11, at Virginia Beach High School, Districts 4, 5, and 9 will be discussed then.

THE STATE CONVENTION of Commonwealth attorneys completed a successful three-day meeting at the Cavalier Hotel recently. On the final day, the ladies, informally dressed in shorts and shifts, gathered around the pool terrace before lunch, sipped beverages and watched as Rose Hall's professional models paraded before them. Breathing, yet moderately price swimsuits, beachwear, street, afternoon, cocktail and evening wear were shown. As we approached the party, one of the girls was coming up the stairway and paused awaiting her cue. Attorney's president, Robert L. (Bob) Simpson, Commonwealth Attorney of Virginia, who was highly responsible for bringing the convention to the beach and two other attorneys from Danville attempt to escort one of the beauties on the runway. Although her eyes said yes, her lips said no, and the gentlemen lost their case. (Photo by Cassandra)

EDITORIAL SPEAKING

Virginia Beach Traffic - Good And Bad

Critics are often too quick to criticize a city when major traffic tieups occur and they often find the wrong reasons for the tieups. This may or may not be the case in Virginia Beach, but the entire matter needs a frank and open discussion.

The city of Virginia Beach has two major traffic problems right now. They are, obviously enough, the only two east-west routes from Norfolk to the resort area. . . Virginia Beach Boulevard and the Shore Drive. The problems on both are being rectified now.

Shore Drive will no longer be a problem after December first of this year. The long awaited second span across Lynnhaven Inlet will be finished then. Then the four-laning will be complete from Norfolk to Fort Story. Plans are in the works to finish the four-laning all the way to Atlantic Avenue in the future, but that area is not necessarily a problem now. So this summer when traffic is heavy, there is nothing that can be done. We must wait.

The Norfolk to Virginia Beach Toll Road is almost one-third complete, and running far ahead of schedule. It generally parallels Virginia Beach Boulevard, and with its completion will come the end of the problems on Virginia Beach Boulevard. There has been incorrect criticism that construction on the massive Laskin Road Interchange is jamming traffic badly. This just isn't so. The same tieups were there last year when there was no construction.

We regret that the traffic problems have become so critical, but this should be the last full year of it. The city just grew too fast for the construction of roads to keep up and more and more tourists come here every year, jamming the roads more.

Those who are in the habit of criticizing had better take a good look at all the construction and be thankful for the great progress being made for the future of our city.

Putting On The Dog

A friend of ours owns a freedom-loving dog that stays in the yard all the time. The unlicensed, ancient animal was let out of the yard the other day by some neighborhood children. That offense cost nearly twenty-five dollars, and no warning was given the owner by the "dog-catcher." The incident is unfortunate, and we think the price tag on the incident is a shade high.

At the same time, however, we can fully understand and appreciate the problems of the Bureau of Animal Control, which has the responsibility of policing all stray and unlicensed animals, as well as those running at large. There are only four men assigned these tasks. They have much more to do, as can be seen by reading the story of the Bureau elsewhere in this section of today's paper.

There is nothing worse than having to pick up garbage from the street after a dog has been in the garbage can, unless it possibly is cleaning up a yard after a dog has dug it up to hide a bone or used it for other reasons. We feel it is up to the owners to take care of their dogs and obey the laws of Virginia Beach. If they do not, then we feel it is up to the Bureau of Animal Control to do its duty.

Pets are wonderful things, but they can be annoying at times. We do not like to see a pet owner in court faced with a stiff fine, but in many cases that seems to be the only way.

And although we have long-standing feelings against "dog catchers" we understand them and compliment them on the difficult job they are doing in Virginia Beach.

One bad trouble spot for traffic for many years has been the intersection of Route 60 with Atlantic Avenue. So many accidents took place there that folks stopped keeping count. The intersection was clearly marked, lighted and had numerous signs, but the accidents still happened. But now the hazardous spot is gone, and as traffic moves smoothly through the new gentle turn-around there, the old sharp turn is but a memory. . . and a bad one at that. We congratulate the city for finally doing something about that spot.

There are other trouble spots too. The city is desperately closing off the number of entrances onto Virginia Beach Boulevard in heavily commercialized areas, especially near Princess Anne Plaza. Although this presents a bit of a hardship, it removes another hazard.

One that remains is definitely the entrance to Malibu at those silly looking palm trees. It is the next thing to impossible to make a left turn from the Boulevard in peak traffic times. And that is the time traffic backs up far too far when many are trying to make left turns. Much as we hate to see another traffic light on the Boulevard. We recommend that the city seriously consider one at that point for the safety of everyone.

This Fourth of July weekend, traffic will be treacherous in Virginia Beach. It would be no matter what, but with the new roads not finished, all we can do is drive with care at all times, and drive like the other fellow is absolutely nuts. That philosophy could save many a life this weekend. Have a happy Fourth, but take it easy on our roads and look forward to the day when things will be better.

Oh yes, there are many of us who remember when the roads were far worse, so now is not the time to become critics.

Thank You Governor

Last week, Virginia's Governor Mills E. Godwin, Jr. took another great step forward in traffic safety. By proclamation, he authorized the inclusion of light motorcycles in the State's official motor vehicle inspection program.

Now all of those menaces to the road must be inspected by January of 1967 and then at least every six months after that. They will be required to undergo exactly the same inspection procedure accorded automobiles, as far as the law can possibly apply.

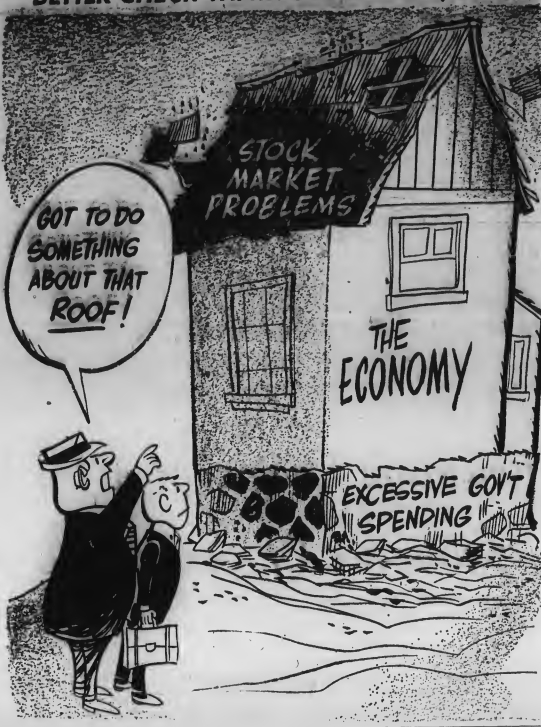

That is excellent news, since there have been mounting fatal crashes on these vehicles in the past year. In 1965 in Virginia there were nearly 900 persons injured while riding these light motorcycles. Some of the accidents have been due to faulty parts and safety equipment, and the inspection will help that problem.

Of course, the driver himself is responsible for most of the accidents, and all the inspection can do is make him aware of the danger these bikes cause. We would still support legislation to get them off the road entirely after sundown and to control their speed as much as possible, but this step by the Governor is certainly a start to control the two-wheeled monsters.

The inspection will also cut down on the noise of the things too. Since those loud mufflers will then be illegal. We say thank goodness for that.

Governor Godwin has reminded the owners that operation of one of the light motorcycles after January first without an inspection sticker will be a violation of the law. We wish simply riding one would be against the law, but this is at least, a move in the right direction.

BETTER CHECK THAT FOUNDATION, TOO!

Please Give To A Good Cause

The month of July in Virginia Beach each year is devoted to fund-raising by the twelve volunteer fire departments located in every part of the city. We urge the support of every citizen. Through the year, these volunteers give of their time and efforts for the protection of our citizens. Now it is time to show our thanks for a job well done and our support of the job to be done in the future.

Many times we have heard the volunteer fire departments of cities maligned. This cannot happen in Virginia Beach, since our volunteers are as highly trained and proficient as any regulars anywhere. And furthermore there is a strong competition among members of the individual departments to see who can become the most efficient. What better qualifications can any city offer.

We fully recognize that someday, perhaps in the not too distant future, the city will outgrow volunteers, and that paid firemen will take over, but in the meantime and even then, we feel certain we could never have any better protection than we do now.

The modern equipment used to protect us, and to fight the fires that do occur, costs money. In fact, the equipment is downright expensive. Part of the purchase price is underwritten by the City and part of the everyday operation of the volunteer fire departments is also supported by the City, but the rest is up to us.

These volunteers are protecting us and we should never forget that. We must therefore give any amount possible to keep the operation as fine as it now is. Let us never lose sight of the fact that if we cannot help out or if paid firemen come to Virginia Beach, taxes will go up.

We cannot praise the volunteer firemen and rescue squadsmen of Virginia Beach enough. Time after time we have seen the members prove their ability and willingness to serve. Now the time is here for us to prove ourselves.

When a volunteer or member of the auxiliaries comes to your door, please give something, even if the amount is small. One never knows when that small donation may mean the difference between life or death for himself or his family. Perhaps your donation will make the difference in being able to obtain just the right equipment.

Fike is a horrible thing. This is the best way we know of to prevent that horror.

'Button Up' For Safety

Nationally, burglaries in 1965 increased six percent over 1964. In Virginia Beach alone there were almost 900 last year. There are many ways the homeowner or apartment dweller can reduce the possibility of loss from burglary.

The first step is to give a vacant house a "lived-in" look while away on vacation. To make it appear that someone is still at home, make arrangements to have the lawn mowed, handbills and circulars picked up, have mail forwarded or held at the Post Office and cancel all home deliveries. Then leave a light on, preferably to an automatic timer, so that someone will not be able to see a constant light during the day too.

"Button up" the house in every way by using strong locks on all doors and windows and being certain they are utilized. Carelessness is an invitation to the burglar.

In spite of all precautions, burglary is still possible; therefore, the Police Department recommends that little of value be left to steal while no one is home. The safety deposit box is the place for securities, jewelry, cash and other valuable items. In addition, the homeowner should have a list of all serial numbers of all "stealable" items. That way they can be identified if they are stolen and later found.

Probably the most important thing to do before leaving on vacation is to notify the Police Department. Responsible men will then keep an eye on your property while you are away. Also tell ONE neighbor, not the entire neighborhood, and leave a key with that neighbor in case of emergency. And please don't tell the Virginia Beach Sun about your trip until you get back. Then we'll be glad to publish it. Burglars have been known to get information from newspapers too.

None of the above measures are foolproof or burglarproof, but they will greatly reduce the chances of trouble.

THE VIRGINIA BEACH OPEN FORUM

Dear Sir:

In Article 4 of the Virginia Declaration of Rights, George Mason declared: "neither ought the office of magistrate, legislator, or judge to be hereditary." These words have been in the Virginia Constitution since its adoption and are among the keystones of the Constitution today. The youth of Virginia have been inspired by the belief that the son of a farmer, workman, technician or businessman might earn as high a political office as the son of a Senator.

Even if we are to assume that Senator Byrd, Jr. is qualified to serve in the U. S. Senate, his ascension to that office upon the retirement of his father strikes at the basic foundation of our constitutional prohibition against hereditary succession. This possession of such an important office should not be in the private reserve of one family, no matter how illustrious the father.

The existence of our democratic form of government rests squarely upon the will of the citizens to choose their own leaders. The citizens of Virginia should repudiate the idea that high public office can be inherited.

Sincerely yours,

Allan Palmer

● Your information is misleading. Sen. Byrd, Jr. was appointed by the Gov. of Va. He did not inherit the job.—Ed.

A REVIEW

'Cat On A Hot Tin Roof'

Cat on a Hot Tin Roof, by Tennessee Williams. Wedgewood Theatre, Toano, Virginia. Performance through July 23, 1966. Direction and Setting Design by Paul Iddings. Costumes by Caroline Silcox. Lighting by Stephen Osbrach. Cast includes Claudine Iddings, Bob Calvert, Gene Galusha, Waltham Hamilton, Roby Brown and Bobby Jo Draughton, Debra Legum, Dick Hamilton, Vance Adams, Jr., Carolyn Cawthorn, Frank Staroba, Henry Geddy and Ethel Matthews.

There are really two stories within the play, Cat on a Hot Tin Roof. Both are sad treatises on life. And the Wedgewood production of Tennessee Williams' controversial play meshes the two stories together with beauty. Williams plays more often than not expose the soul of his characters and leave them exposed for three acts. Although this can sometimes cause his audiences to squirm a bit, the current Wedgewood offering holds the spell, never giving the audience time to squirm at the "life in the raw" situations they are witnessing.

The play itself is set in the plantation home of Big Daddy, a rough-hewn and self-made multimillionaire. The entire action covers the span of only a few hours. Williams has provided adequate comic relief in the lines and situations. Had he not this play would be trading rivalry only the ancient Greeks. It is an unusual Williams play because it has what can probably be called a happy ending.

The main story line revolves around Maggie, the frustrated wife of an alcoholic who drinks to forget doubts about his manhood. Brick has steadily become a drunkard since the death of his "best friend" and former cohort in athletic endeavors. Maggie is the "cat on the hot tin roof" as she tries to regain some parts of her marriage, while at the same time being completely rejected by her alcoholic and lethargic husband.

Brick's father, Big Daddy is dying of cancer, but is either not aware of it or refuses to accept the fact. Big Daddy is the personification of strength, but it is a hollow and lonely strength. The immensity of his death causes Maggie and Brick's brother, Gooper and Gooper's wife, Mae to vie for the favor of Big Daddy in hopes of inheriting the fortune. The attempts are badly lacking and superficial.

If these problems are not enough, Williams has added Big Mama, married to Big Daddy for forty years and still seeking his acceptance and love. She never succeeds.

Claudine Iddings creates probably her finest role as Maggie, the cat, as she moves through the action with all the feline qualities. The role is an emotional one, and Mrs. Iddings handles frustration, passion, fear and true love to perfection.

Gene Galusha, as Brick, is quite consistent in the role of an alcoholic trying to find himself and hurting others at every turn. One can feel the tension in the role, although Galusha, on crutches throughout, underplays it well.

Bob Calvert, as Big Daddy, takes all the laurels. As the blustering and belittling plantation owner, he commands all the attention while he is on stage. Also Mr. Calvert has a fine and powerful voice which he uses well.

Waltham Hamilton, as Big Mama, the long-suffering wife who refuses to accept her unloved fate, is magnificent. The tragedy as seen in her facial expressions is a moving experience.

Roby Brown as Gooper, the older brother and nervous lawyer, does a nice job with a rather insignificant role, and plays a fine foil to his fertile and unpleasant wife and five children.

Bobby Jo Draughton, as Gooper's wife does an acceptable job, but at times is a bit too sweet for the virile role.

Director Paul Iddings has taken two versions of the play and put them together nicely, creating a production rich in every way.

The setting, however, is not up to Iddings' usual excellence. It never disturbs when there are no real doors and walls where doors and walls are supposed to be, but with the characters using the imaginary doors so much in this production it is somewhat frustrating to note that all the players did not imagine the doorknobs in the same place.

Wedgewood has another hit on its hands with this production and it will probably become known as the best offering to date.

Gull's-Eye View

BY N. S. CROW

As the crow flies, it is less than two weeks until the voters go to the polls in the Democratic primary. And it seems too quiet to me. Somehow or other, everywhere I fly I see another pleasant coffee or tea going on, but that's about all. I hope it will last, but somehow or other I have the feeling it won't.

The two opposing the present senators must be aware their campaigns in Virginia Beach reached a not too high peak several weeks ago and have been on a downhill plunge since then. It really is a shame. There is nothing I like better than responsible opposition. It just hasn't been forthcoming. The issues the challengers have used are all negative ones, and this is the time for positive action. Senators Byrd and Robertson are campaigning on positive issues and on their records. What better recommendations can any candidate have, especially when the records are excellent.

I kind of expect some kind of shot in the arm to the ailing opposition campaigns, and I hope the real mud-slinging stays out of this campaign. It has so far but, the deadline is approaching now.

I don't know if Spang plans to drive to Virginia Beach or not before the campaign ends, but

Three Drown In Va. Beach

VIRGINIA BEACH—Four-year-old Robin Denise Via drowned Tuesday while playing in Lake Joyce near her home.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at the General Hospital of Virginia Beach at about 8 p.m. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dean Via of the 4500 block of Powell's Point Road.

Senate Primary Campaign

paings there has been a gradual merger of the two campaigns until at present the public meetings and social gatherings are generally accepted as being for both candidates backed by the dominant Democratic Organization of the city.

A coffee for about 100 persons was held at the Capes on Tuesday in honor of Mrs. A. Willis Robertson, Jr., who was visiting Virginia Beach. She will probably attend two other outings on July 9 and 10 in Virginia Beach. One is being held at the home of Mrs. Edith White on Bay Island and the other at Cressy by Dr. Ira Hancock, co-campaign manager for Robertson in Virginia Beach. Another gathering was held Wednesday at Thalia, while two are being held today. One of today's Byrd-Robertson coffees is at Shore Drive Inn, the other in Princess Anne Plaza. The former was arranged by Robertson supporters, the latter by Byrd supporters. Also today the Youth committee for Robertson holds a meeting at the American Legion.

The Ecche campaign, relatively quiet in Virginia Beach prior to this time, gets into full swing Saturday with a motorcade, which will begin at Chinese Corner at 1 p.m. and visit several shopping centers, winding up at Seaside Park Saturday night, where Boothe is scheduled to speak at 9 p.m. Campaign workers said it is tentatively planned for the motorcade to visit Aragona and Pembroke Shopping Centers, Princess Anne Plaza, L. & J. Gardens and Robbins Corner, although a definite time schedule was not available. Boothe workers indicated that additional functions are scheduled for the final week, but plans are not fully worked out at present. Several Boothe coffees are also scheduled in different areas of the city.

Spong supporters said several social gatherings are also planned for their candidate, but campaign officials said no definite plans had been made for the final week in Virginia Beach.

The campaigns have not yet reached full fever pitch in Virginia Beach, and although there is considerable interest in the campaigns and a large turnout of voters is expected at the polls on election day, the campaigns have been generally considered to be run on low-key issues not bringing forth a great deal of controversy. The biggest issues have been personal and have been called, by many, "negative" on the part of the challengers.

MISSY, JIM, LANE AND SUE SADLER, standing near the pool of their home on Greatneck Point, where the newly formed Cavalier Circle of the Virginia Beach King's Daughters and Sons, International, held a swanky benefit smorgasbord for more than 300 people.

By Douglas Barnes

VIRGINIA BEACH—The James Sadlers are noted for their warmth, their originality in entertaining, and their large parties given with such ease and grace that those attending seldom realize the enormity of the preparation behind the scenes. No matter what the weather, a Sadler party is always a delight, and Missie and Lane, the youngest of the five Sadler daughters, are fast becoming as charming as their mother as hostesses. Sue Sadler—a name and a face synonymous with beauty and brains—she never mentions her several college degrees—has a sense of humor as well as a strong executive ability, and Jim, her "Kingpin" is as compelling in masculinity as he is in the field of business.

Recently, at their estate on Great Neck Point, after days of rain and a downpour all day till five, the sun broke forth to enhance the green grounds rolling down to the water's edge, to dazzle the aqua ripples of the swimming pool, where four sleek black cats—Mary Payne Cole, Mary Anne Dee, Marilyn Klinefop, and Helen Thomas, Princess Anne Club Swimming Felines, slithered in effortless silence as they presented a synchronized ballet to the tunes of "Ailey Cat" and "Goldfinger." These cats belonged to the "in crowd" and opened the festivities.

This party with a purpose was staged by 54 members of the Virginia Beach Cavalier Circle of the International King's Daughters and Sons, who have left the Norfolk fold, and who have worked and are working for the General Hospital of Virginia Beach and its immediate needs. Mrs. John F. Winn Jr. is president, Mrs. Sadler is vice president, and Mrs. Joseph Jett is chairman of the board. Little publicized, they have already worked and given to the hospital a crump tent, a positive pressure machine for emphysema, an infant circulation attachment for infant anaesthesia, and have staged a food tent at the recent Horse Show put on by the Auxiliary of the hospital. Also, thru the courtesy of Herbert Harrell, this circle presented the attractive flower cart which brightens the halls and rooms of the hospital, and has made and distributed gifts, and seasonal flower baskets to the area nursing homes. The circle has also worked with retarded children at Fort Story and last year they contributed $360 to the Cancer Fund.

Approximately 300 of Virginia Beach's elite enjoyed the sumptuous smorgasbord served in the huge basement by "barmaids," attired in crisp yellow organdy aprons with saucily tilted pancake hats, ruffled in green. We noticed Mrs. Linwood Branch, Mrs. S. R. Brockbrough, Mrs. William Cahoon, and Mrs. W. Taylor Johnson Jr. (Betty Jim Sadler) serving. Mrs. Sam Meredith's popular raffle booth, where hand-knit sweaters and other attractive articles were fast-moving commodities, was a novel and productive idea.

The large crowd, convivial for a cause, milled around under the trees, a la Hollywood; colored Japanese lanterns flattered the landscape; some husbands hid within to watch the golf matches on TV; one attractive widow was seen bussing unwilling, dignified Sidney Kellam, (he was fresh from the Flag Day exercises at Fort Story) as she cooed, "Honey, I want to help you elect Byrd." All circle members and their husbands were helping in one capacity or another to make everyone enjoy the fantastic evening.

Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Albert Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. Reeves Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Raleigh Alexander, Mrs. Sidney Kellam, Delegate and Mrs. P. B. White, Dr. and Mrs. D. L. Lowry of Washington, D.C., Mrs. Dorothy Abdlil, Mr. "Red" Miller, Mrs. Herman Lerner, Mayor and Mrs. Frank Dusch, and 286 other happy people.

Little League Wants Land

VIRGINIA BEACH—The City Planning Commission has taken a request for city land under advisement.

The Princess Anne Plaza Little League asked for permission Tuesday to lease land for three baseball diamonds on Holland Swamp Road between two sewage lagoons. The ten acre site is undeveloped at the time and the Little League would foot the bill for $15,000 worth of improvements on the property, if the city approves the request.

Big Drags Sat. Night

VIRGINIA BEACH—Saturday Night, July 8th, Virginia Beach Dragway will be host to the biggest and wildest match race ever to be held in this part of the country.

It seems that a match race between America's Number One Ford and America's Number One Chevrolet has been brewing all year. . . so after many phone calls and wheeling and dealing Virginia Beach Dragway will bring these two together.

Ford will be represented by their very own factory sponsored number one NASCAR boy . . . Tommy Grove, from Oakland, Calif. . . and his Fast Back Mustang, sporting the new overhead cam motor.

Chevrolet division will be represented by none other than the Atlanta Georgia "Cracker", Houston Platt (Wildman) in his fabulous Chevy II "The Dixie Twister". The best 3 out of 5 match race classes as "Run What You Bureng!", No weight limit, no cubic inch check, any size tires. . . 160 m.p.h. plus. . .

Also as an added feature, Virginia Dragway will present Larry Holland in 1966 (42 Cu. in.) Oldsmobile, super charge with 4 speed transmission, "The Loner". Holland hails from Burlington, N. C. and is making the trip to Norfolk for the sole purpose of racing against Norfolk's own Hank Hankins in his 1963 super charge Plymouth, "The Trader".

Weather Blamed

VIRGINIA BEACH — The weather reportedly has been blamed as the prime reason why a yacht ran into the pier at 14th Street in Virginia Beach. Fog completely closed the resort borough and the rest of the shoreline last weekend, causing a navigation hazard. The weather bureau explained the reason for the fog—no wind and high humidity on top of high temperatures. The bureau also said no pressure areas, (centers) neither high nor low, were close enough to cause a disturbance and therefore cause enough wind to blow away the fog. "The yacht came out of the fog and struck the pier," one witness said, "before anyone knew what was happening." The pleasure craft tore several pilings from the pier, but the fishing facility was again opened to the public after the Virginia Beach Rescue Squad investigated it for safety.

This is to notify the public that on and after this date, June 15, 1966, I will not be responsible for any debts contracted by anyone other than myself in person. S. PRESTON SHELTON, III 500 N. Birdneck Road Virginia Beach, Va. 22451

Two Offices Now Open

VIRGINIA BEACH — When Seaboard Citizens National Bank formally opened its permanent branch at Pembroke Mall Monday, it became the only bank in the United States with two separate offices in one closed Mall Shopping Center. The situation is so unique that a special ruling was required in March 1965 before Comptroller of the Currency, James W. Seaton would approve locating two offices of the same bank so closely together. Seaton must approve all new locations for national banks. Historically, banks opening offices in shopping centers have located either in the center with other stores or on the edge of adjacent parking areas; but not in both places. Seaboard, after extensive research, decided to open an office inside Pembroke Mall as well as on the parking apron. It was felt that two offices would be the only way to adequately service the wide variety of residents and businessmen expected at Pembroke. The inside office opened March 21, 1966 and is located on the north side of the mall where service stores (laundry, supermarket, shoe repair, etc.) will be situated as a convenience to nearby residential areas. The same office also serves other shoppers inside the mall and all the businesses there. Monday, Seaboard opened its second office at Pembroke, a free-standing structure in the parking area south of the mall next to Virginia Beach Boulevard. The temporary office located west of the shopping center has been closed. The free-standing office will offer full banking services, including three drive up windows and an extra large night depository. Both offices will be managed by Harry A. Gard, Assistant Cashier and F. Edward Harris, Assistant Cashier.

VIEW

(Copyright, 1966 — Doris Padrick)

Now that you live in the "World's Largest Resort City", are you happily taking advantage of all the special summer attractions... or do you find this season a time of frustration because of the crowds and expense?

If you have small children in the family and the regular bathing site makes your day at the beach one of constant watch and worry, you may find the area at the Lynnhaven Fishing Pier more to your liking. It's off Shore drive, down Starfish road where you will find adequate parking at no fee, warm sand, and quiet inlet waters.

The little ones can play happily along the shore or even go into the water for quite a distance without fear of being knocked over by waves or venturing too deep before you can get to them.

Unfortunately there is no lifeguard, but there is not usually any danger as long as parents maintain reasonable watchfulness. Seidm is the water deeper than a grownup's waist.

There's sanddiggers for fascination, shells for collecting, and on the pier a little store for refreshments if you didn't bring your own picnic lunch. It's the ideal spot for Daddys who like to fish but who don't care about the beach. Bring him along—he can fish on the pier, Mom can get a suntan and enjoy the cooling relaxation of bathing, and the kids can splash in the water, run in the sand, and make all the noise they wish.

If you don't care for sand in your picnic, try one of the newest recreation parks opened by the City. Its called Redwing and is off Oceana Blvd. just before you get to Dan Neck.

Picnicking in the country used to be one of a family's most enjoyable outings together until wooded areas got swallowed up by progress. Redwing features all the facilities and charm of an old-fashion picnic in the country. It's open every day from 8 a.m. till sundown.

You will turn into a long dirt road and come to a grove of tall trees on the edge of woods. Under these trees are many picnic tables and charcoal grills strategically placed. A fenced in playground for the children has swings, monkey bars, a spider, rocking horses, slides, and gaily-colored pipes of various sizes for crawling into!

And a nature trail through the woods gives young (and old) explorers a long hike over soft pine needles under a canopy of trees. The silence is broken only by the sound of buzzing bees, chirping trees, and the rustle of leaves.

Parking is adequate and restrooms are available. A big field with a baseball diamond is on the other side of the road.

Individuals or groups of families will find fun and relaxation freely available at Redwing.

And when the inescapable time comes when shopping must be done on a hot summer day, try Pembroke Mall shopping center. It's almost like going to a carnival (especially if you must take the children) and it's cool there.

All kinds of services and products are close at hand, but it is the mall itself which makes a day of shopping a joy instead of a chore. Benches are for sitting when your feet get tired, the spraying waterfall fountain can be a wishing well with a little imagination and a few tossed pennies. Instruments keep you informed as to the time and temperature, rainfall, humidity, and barometric pressure; and the family telephone booth is the most fun of all!

It's practical if you have many members of the family who always want to talk on long distance calls. Here they can do it. You all sit in a soundproof booth, and after your party is reached you just start talking without having to hold any instrument. To the person receiving the call, you may all sound like you are in a cave somewhere! That's the fun.

Fun doesn't have to cost a fortune; many places in Virginia Beach your fun is free. You just have to look for it...

Watch Out For The Sun

VIRGINIA BEACH—New emphasis on the dangers of over-exposure to sunshine was described here today by the American Cancer Society's Virginia Beach Unit which warned that too much sun is the principal cause of skin cancer.

In focusing attention on skin cancer, the ACS announcement said the disease is mostly preventable and highly curable in its early stages. The warning about skin cancer is part of a nation-wide program to raise the cure rates for various sites of cancer.

A new film, "Sense In The Sun," has been produced as a weapon in the campaign and is expected to increase the public's consciousness to skin cancer. The film is available through the Virginia Beach Unit of the American Cancer Society for free showing to audiences of all age groups. The 16 mm color-sound film has a running time of 14 minutes.

The American Cancer Society's goal is to push the over-all 95 per cent cure rate for all skin cancer closer to the 100 per cent mark. Basal cell or squamous cell Carcinoma, which are the commonest forms of skin cancer, are highly curable in their early stages by means of a minor surgical procedure, or radiation therapy.

This is one of the points made in the new film which is an attractive story about a fisherman who wonders about a skin lesion on his cheek, and does something about it by visiting his doctor without delay.

Among the points is that early skin cancer is not a dangerous disease and is not difficult to cure but delay can prove dangerous and complicate treatment.

A major emphasis is given the fact that skin cancer is preventable as well as curable. In the film the physician-narrator says, "The principal cause of skin cancer is excessive exposure to the sun over the years. And it's not only fishermen who have to be careful."

Scenes of farm workers and others working under the sun are used to illustrate the point. The spokesman adds, "Those who don't work under the sun have to be careful too. Especially those with blond or red hair and blue eyes."

The point is based on a number of studies which show that persons with fair complexions are more susceptible to skin cancer than dark complexioned persons. The lowest rate of skin cancer has been recorded among Negroes and other dark-skinned races.

A free copy of the Society's leaflet on skin cancer, entitled "Sense In The Sun", is available through the Society's Virginia Beach Unit.

League Elects

VIRGINIA BEACH—The Haven Heights Civic League met June 20 to elect new officers.

The League elected Dr. J. H. McCoy Jr. president and E. J. Deemar secretary-treasurer.

A civic council was formed at the meeting. Its purpose is to look into water problems and other community projects.

Group Will Attend Conf.

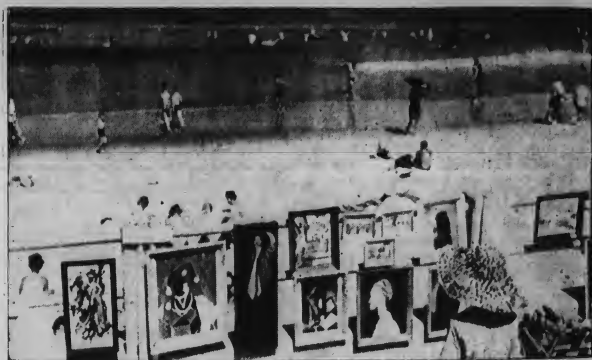

VIRGINIA BEACH—Earl H. Jacobs, Jr., presiding minister of the Virginia Beach congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, announced today that the group will attend a five-day district convention in Baltimore, Md., this summer.

The gathering is to be held August 17-21 in the Baltimore Memorial Stadium and is sponsored for Jehovah's Witnesses by the Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of Brooklyn, N. Y. Attendance of 50,000 or more persons is anticipated, Jacobs stated.

"The convention's theme will be 'God's Sons of Liberty,'" Jacobs said. "Program features will be outstanding Bible discourse and vivid portrayals of Bible accounts that are filled with meaning for persons living in these critical times."

According to Jacobs, the Baltimore assembly is one of thirteen being held by Jehovah's Witnesses this summer in the United States and Canada. The series began in Toronto, Ont., on June 22 and will conclude in Miami Beach, Fla., and Mobile, Ala., on August 28.

"These conventions are the yearly highlight in the lives of Jehovah's Witnesses everywhere," Jacobs explained. "We feel that inasmuch as they are patterned along the lines of Biblical assemblies they play a vital role in equipping persons for life and service to God in the difficult days ahead."

OPENS JULY 14

Final Plans Made For Art Show

VIRGINIA BEACH—Artists, art appreciators, and even those who just like to look will all converge to the area of 7th to 17th street July 14 through 18 to take part in the Virginia Beach Art Association's 11th annual art spectacular by the sea.

Grown from what was called an "Art Mart" back in the spring of 1955, when the exhibit offered a modest award of $25 for best in show and, to the delighted surprise of the courageous band of volunteer workers making up the original Virginia Beach Art Association, rang up a sales total of $2,782. This year's boardwalk show offers prizes up to $2,700 in cash with $1,000 for best in show. Based on last year's staggering total of nearly $40,000 in sales, the present hard working committee expects both artist's works and proceeds to once again turn to gold.

Committee members are headed by Mrs. C. R. Masterson, general chairman; Mrs. F. Kimberly Turner is in charge of publicity and judges; Mrs. Gordon Atwill, entries; Mrs. J. Douglas Hubbard, placement and staging; Mrs. Donald Jefferson, art direction; Mrs. C. Bernard Brown, text direction;

Mrs. Charles Fishel, finance; Mrs. Gilmore Lee Tibbels, secretary; Cdr. C. R. Masterson, judging; and Richard D. Tayloe, at large.

Original work of artists over 18 years old will be displayed in eight classes: Oils, acrylics, and gouache; watercolors; mixed media; prints including etchings, engravings, monotypes, and lithographs; drawings (pastel pencil ink, and wash); sculpture; ceramics; and sketch of show in progress.

Hours of the show will be from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily; Sunday, 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

New Building Planned By Seaboard

Seaboard Citizens National Bank President, J. Hoge Tyler, III, announced the completion of negotiations for the bank's occupancy of a new nineteen-story office building to be constructed between Plume Street and the north side of Norfolk's downtown commercial plaza.

The new structure will be known as the Seaboard Citizens National Bank Building. The land was recently purchased from the Norfolk Redevelopment and Housing Authority by Thomas J. Ross and leased to the Ross-Davis Development Group of Washington, D.C.

Originally announced as a twelve-story building, the developers, in conjunction with bank directors and officials, increased the complex to include both a nineteen-story office building and an adjacent multi-story parking facility. The bank plans to locate its executive offices, trust division, and partial downtown Norfolk banking office in the new structure.

The new high rise will contain approximately 255,000 gross square feet. The building is designed as a tower structure that will overhang an open ground floor lobby. A multi-story adjacent parking facility accommodating 255 cars will be connected to the main building by a covered pedestrian ramp and service driveway.

The Bank will initially occupy the lower level, first-floor lobby and three upper floors for a total of approximately 57,000 square ft.

An open balcony overlooking the main banking floor at the second-story level will house the bank's executive offices, Board of Directors' room and conference rooms.

Seaboard has occupied its present eight-story location, located several blocks west of the contemplated site, since 1888. Bank officials state that a permanent office with complete banking facilities will be maintained in the old location after the move. They said that plans for disposition of the present structure are not complete at this time.

Work Done At Fair

RICHMOND—Extensive improvements to the plant facilities and showgrounds have been made for the 1966 State Fair of Virginia to be held here September 23-October 1. F. W. Hasselback, Executive Vice-President said today.

The existing Midway Area has been widened ten feet to a total of 50 feet along two lanes 800 feet long for a total of 1,600 feet. This provides more than 40,000 square feet of hard-surfaced area for shows and rides. Additional rest-room facilities have been provided for women in the amusement area. Several food concession stands have been up-graded and one of them has a brick exterior. A new modernistic pylon and light tower has been constructed. New hard-surfaced walkways have been added. Additional storage facilities for equipment and machinery have been added. Further improvements and modifications have been made to the four principal entrances to the fairgrounds to provide speed handling of traffic.

Fifteen permanent buildings and seven large tents will house the principal indoor exhibits, demonstrations and activities. The cattle show will take place in a huge brick and steel building with extensive wings. Other buildings of aluminum and steel with hard-surfaced floors are Industry of Agriculture, Women's World, Commerce and Industry, Commonwealth of Virginia, Junior Club and Swine Judging.

Aluminum over wood frame building house Hofstein and Guernsey dairy cattle and Junior Exhibits. Tents are used for swine, poultry, rabbits, types of cattle and dairy goats, pigeons and "Young McDonald's Farm." Farm Crops, Milking Parlor, Press, Information and Public Safety Buildings are of steel, concrete and masonry construction.

Wire Act At Park

VIRGINIA BEACH—The biggest fireworks display of the season will mark the Fourth of July observance at Seaside Amusement Park, Virginia Beach, on Monday. The show goes on over the Atlantic at 10 p.m.

The Great Eric, an "astounding acrobat," is the pre-holiday week attraction at the park. His act is a new European novelty, a high wire performance. The Great Eric whose talent as "foremost king of the high wire," has been handed down by tradition from a Viennese family of wire-walkers, wraps his stunts in the guise of comedy, although they wouldn't be much fun for a man of lesser skill. Particularly so, since he scorns the use of a safety net, or even a balancing device.

Seaside Amusement Park's ballroom is currently the showcase for the Great Adrians, a six-piece combo who proved so popular on their introduction to the beach's dance patrons that they were engaged for the entire season. They play every night and on Saturdays and Sundays from 11 a.m. with the Go-Go Girls in their stage-side cages an extra discoteque-type attraction.

Regular attractions available to the park's daily patrons include the midway rides—the Scooter, Ferris Wheel, Luff-in-the-Dark, Carousel and Whip—not to mention a whole section devoted to junior-size rides for the tots. There is also a shaded picnic area with everything necessary to make a family or group outing pleasant, all at no charge.

Admission to Seaside Amusement Park is free.

Airman David J. Spreder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Servi A. Spreder of 1206 Manatee Drive, has been selected for training at Chanute AFB, Ill., as an Air Force aircraft equipment repairman.

Captain John Bacs, son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Bacs of 5283 Carlsbad Drive, has been graduated from the Air University's Squadron Officer School, Maxwell AFB, Ala., and has been assigned to Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz., for duty.

'Shot' Begins At Cavalier

NORFOLK—A former employee of New York Sen. Jacob Javits was accused of murder, Wednesday night, at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse in Norfolk.

Miss Trudi Mathes of Stuttgart, Germany plays the lead in Tim Jones' production of "A Shot in the Dark," the mystery comedy by Marcel Achard, which opened Wednesday night for a four week run at the Cavalier Dinner Playhouse, in Norfolk.

At eight-thirty, after the dinner buffet had been cleared away, the lights dimmed and Trudi Mathes, who once served as a nurse governess in the household of Sen. Javits, took the stage to portray a French parlormaid accused of murdering her jealous lover, a chauffeur employed by a prominent Parisian banker. As the maid Josefa, Trudi must convince a young and inexperienced straight-laced magistrate of her innocence.

Matthew Chait of New York is seen as the young magistrate who finds not only the maid is a suspect, but that her employer, Benjamin Beaurevoir, and his wife, Dominique, also have motives for murder.

George Williams plays the role of the banker who has an affair with the maid, and Angela Walker portrays Beaurevoir's wife. Also appearing is Charlie Richmond as the experienced magistrate's clerk and Terri Reed as the inquisitive wife of the magistrate. Tim Jones is seen as the hard-nosed chief prosecutor who wants a quick confession and conviction.

Scenery is designed by Tim Jones, lighting by Roy Ivy, and costumes by Ty Sbert. Located at 3517 Argonne Avenue in Norfolk, The Cavalier will present the buffet-play fete of "Shot" nightly except Mondays from June
